Rebel Plane Downed After Lagos Attack

LAGOS (CP) — A plane from successionist Biafra was shot down by anti-aircraft fire today after it bombed a residential district of this federal capital that contained several foreign embassy buildings.

The plane's eight crew members—four Africans and four whites—were killed when the plane exploded 30 feet above the Ikoyi residential district.

The bodies of the crew were found hundreds of yards from the plane. One smashed through a roof of the Czechoslovakian embassy; another in the Czech embassy's garden and the third behind the embassy's servants' quarters.

Record Rains Slosh Tofino

A record 5.29 inches of rain fell on Tofino in the 24 hours ending at 4 this morning.

The rain swelled the Kennedy River and left a foot of water on parts of the Tofino-Alberni Highway.

NOT WANTED in Jamaica is touring U.S. black power advocate Stokely Carmichael who has been prohibited from entering the country by the ministry of home affairs. No reason was given.

Besides being wet, some residents were also cold.

Tofino, Ucluelet and Long Beach residents ate cold suppers Friday night during a power blackout. Blasting operation knocked out a transformer near Taylor River Bridge where road widening work is being done.

POWER OFF

Power was off for five hours.

The rain was still falling at press time but the road was once more passable, according to reports from the west coast centre.

Today's rain brought the Tofino total for October up to 8.5 inches. There has only been one day without rain. Previous record for 24 hours in Tofino was 4.40 inches in 1961.

Victoria has had its share with a full two inches this month or five times the normal for the period.

In Tofino its "very wet but we're having no real problems," said Barry Dean of the Maquinna Hotel.

ROAD CLOSED

He said the road had been closed but the conditions had improved and the mail truck got through.

Mr. Dean said a number of visitors are expected today but h. didn't know if they would arrive.

"If enough people want to come a ferry will make the run to Ucluelet and visitors can take to paved road from there to Tofino."

Meanwhile, high winds were causing trouble at Patricia Bay airport.

Air Canada cancelled two flights in to Patricia Bay because planes could not land. Consequently two flights out were abandoned.

SOME CLEARING

The weather at the airport was clearing a little by noon and many passengers were in the waiting rooms hoping flights would be available. Meanwhile, some were taken by bus to the ferries to travel to Vancouver and Seattle.

But even if flying conditions were improving the weather office held out little hope for a general improvement.

"It will be a wet weekend," said meteorologist Allan McQuarrie.

Rock Kills Michigan Truck Driver

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A truck driver in Michigan was killed today by a rock that smashed through his windshield from an overpass.

Five other trucks were hit by rocks or gunfire in Ohio and Pennsylvania as the tempo of violence picked up despite attempts to find a solution to the steel haulers strike.

The Michigan man was killed on U.S. 23 just south of Flint.

The driver, Frederick E. Beck, 40, was hauling animal parts to a soap factory in a flatbed but a state trooper said the load could easily have been mistaken for steel in the darkness.

Bomb Halt for Talks Called Same Old Tale

SINGH
. . . old song?

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — American officials today expressed skepticism about an Indian claim to inside information that North Vietnam would talk peace if the U.S. stopped bombing it.

The claims were made by Indian Defence Minister Sarsar Swaran Singh in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly Friday.

The administration is studying the speech, but officials are reported skeptical of Singh's categorical statement that Hanoi would respond "favorably" if the U.S. unconditionally stopped bombing the North.

Officials said they heard frequent similar assertions from Indian spokesmen in the past, but knew of nothing to suggest New Delhi obtained recent information from Hanoi.

MEMBER OF ICC

Diplomats at the UN attached considerable importance to Singh's speech because India is a member of the International Control Commission in Vietnam with Canada and Poland, and because it has top-level representation in the key capitals involved, including Hanoi.

One American source said it was "a fascinating statement."

The U.S. has repeatedly called for reconvening the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conferences on Vietnam, of which Russia and Britain were co-chairmen. Russia has blocked the efforts.

Even before the Indian call for a stop to bombing—one of many since the start of the UN General Assembly—President Johnson was under greater pressure than ever before to halt the bombing. Most of the pressure came from national rather than international sources.

But authoritative sources said there is no reason to believe he contemplated any great change in strategy. The prospect was for more steady pressure being applied militarily on North Vietnam, sources said.

Cardinals Win 5-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Boston Red Sox 5-2 today in the third game of the World Series.

The largest crowd in St. Louis baseball history—54,575 fans — saw the home team jump to a 3-0 lead after two innings.

Each team has won a game in the best-of-seven series.

Quebec Poll: 'Last Chance For Ottawa'

Viet Cong, Press Dodge Egg Barrage

MONTREAL (CP) — Trouble broke out at the University of Montreal Friday when 30 students from South Vietnam protested against the presence of three Vietnamese students of the National Liberation Front who were completing a tour of Quebec.

The three students—two men and woman—were touring the province to explain the viewpoint of the Viet Cong guerrillas.

The 30 students organized a systematic bedlam until Prof. Jacques Yvan Morin, an international law specialist, succeeded in gaining a measure of control.

DODGE TOMATOES

The community centre of Maplewood Avenue in west-central Montreal was packed to the point where even a small section reserved for reporters was so overwhelmed that they went on the stage where they had to dodge tomatoes and eggs.

Ly Van Sau and Mrs. Ngoc Dung spoke for a short time but could hardly be heard, while Le Mai, the third member of the team, did not choose to speak.

"Assassins" and "Communistes" were heard throughout the centre by students protesting against the presence of the three students.

Mr. Sau was derided when he said his country would give every assistance in helping towards Quebec's emancipation.

He was in turn applauded when he compared the lot of the French Quebecers to that of the American Negroes, the South Americans, the Africans and the Asians.

QUEBEC (CP)—Le Soleil, summarizing results of a survey conducted among members of the legislative assembly, says supporters of the Union Nationale party of Premier Daniel Johnson intend to give Ottawa "one last chance" to grant "equality" to Quebec within two or five years before opting for independence.

In a copyright story, the Quebec daily says the survey showed that the majority of Opposition Liberal members favor a "special status" for Quebec and reject independence for economic reasons.

The survey was conducted jointly by Le Soleil and the Toronto Star. Questionnaires were sent to 39 members of the Union Nationale party, 42 Liberals and two of the three independents in the assembly.

The standing in the assembly: Union Nationale 56, Liberals 49, Independents 3, total 108.

SENT TO JOHNSON

Le Soleil says the questionnaire, drafted as debate on possible constitutional changes continued in the province and the country, was sent to Premier Johnson, now recuperating in Hawaii from a bout of phlebitis. The story does not say whether he replied. Identity of those replying was not given.

Replies were received from all 42 Liberal who were sent the questionnaire. Only 34 of the 39 Union Nationale members questioned sent answers.

The Union Nationale members backed their leader's theme of "equality or independence." All insisted on the importance of immediate negotiations with Ottawa.

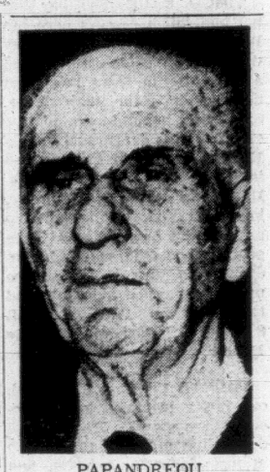

But they differed on just what equality means. A total of 82.3 per cent considered equality meant a special status for the province. The remainder felt it meant economic independence.

WANT TAX POWER

However, they were agreed on these major objectives:

1. Recovery by the province of all taxation powers;
2. Exclusive provincial jurisdiction on education, culture, manpower, social security and immigration;
3. Participation with Ottawa in the drafting of economic and fiscal policies;
4. The right to conclude international agreements;
5. Equal school rights for French minorities in other provinces.

A total of 88.1 per cent favored a special status for Quebec and 95.? per cent rejected the idea of independence for the province.

PAPANDREOU
. . . released

Former Premier Set Free

ATHENS (Reuters) — The army-backed Greek government tonight freed former premier George Papandreau from house arrest.

Papandreou, leader of the Centre Union party, had been under house arrest since the military took over in April.

An announcement by the minister of public order said that the government had lifted all restrictions on the movements of the former premier and eight other former deputies of his party.

Papandreou, 79, was arrested on the night of the coup, April 21.

He was held for few days in an Athens hospital, then he was placed under strict house arrest in his villa in Kastri, 16 miles north of Athens.

OTHERS SET FREE

The announcement by Public Order Minister Paul Totomis said the government would refer the case of 22 other former deputies of the Centre Union party, now under arrest, to a security committee.

Papandreou was treated at an Athens hospital for a suspected blood clot. The military regime paraded him before the world press seven days after the takeover.

He and his son, Andreas, who was seized and accused of high treason, form a focal point for liberal and left-wing loyalties in Greece.

People Ordered Away From Canal

SUEZ, Egypt (AP)—The Suez Canal cease-fire line separating Egyptian and Israeli forces appears to be hardening day by day into a fortified international border.

Thousands of Egyptian civilians daily are streaming westward away from the canal. Egypt plans to evacuate up to 250,000 persons and all factories from the frontline area vulnerable to Israeli guns.

The evacuation order, coming four months after the United Nations-sponsored ceasefire that ended the June 5-10 war, proves the Arabs do not expect a quick settlement, informed sources say.

The evacuation also diminishes hopes of reopening the Suez Canal, closed to shipping since early June.

The 103-mile canal linking the Mediterranean with the Red Sea, is still considered an important international trade route. But many shippers, forced by the long closing, have found substitute routes.

Oil companies that depended on the canal are planning supertankers that carry huge cargoes around the Cape of Good Hope at less cost than smaller vessels able to fit through the waterway.

Egyptian Vice-Premier Aly Sabry described the evacuation a "a forced migration of all citizens whose stay is not essential and shifting of all industries from the zone of other governments."

MYSTERY OBJECT MAKES SPLASH

Saw Saucer . . . Same Sank

SHELBURNE, N.S. (CP) — Seven navy divers were searching waters off nearby Shag Harbor today for a mysterious object.

Four divers covered the area about a half-mile off shore Friday and three divers from Halifax joined the hunt.

They were sent here Friday after local residents and RCMP reported Wednesday that they had observed an illuminated object splash into the water and float for a time before sinking.

RCMP Constable Ron O'Brien, summoned to the scene minutes after the initial sighting, said he saw a light floating or the water about a half-mile offshore.

"It was being carried out to sea by the tide and disappeared before we could get a boat to it."

Fishermen reported sighting a wide patch of yellow foam in the area immediately after the object splashed down but it had disappeared when divers arrived.

Naval spokesman in Halifax said defence department officials had ruled out the possibility that the object fell from an aircraft or came from a passing ship. No aircraft were reported in the vicinity at the time of the sighting.

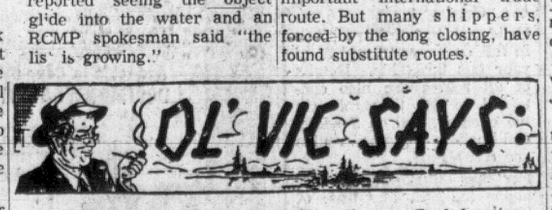

Meanwhile, a spokesman for a special RCAF department on unidentified flying objects said Friday his department was following the search with interest.

"We get hundreds of reports every week," he said, "but the Shag Harbor incident is one of the few where we may get something concrete on it."

At least a dozen people reported seeing the object glide into the water and an RCMP spokesman said "the list is growing."

'RUSSIA GETS JACKPOT; WANTED EGYPT TO LOSE'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The former British commander of the Jordan's Arab Legion says the Soviet Union has stolen the jackpot in the Middle East and now holds a pistol to the head of Western Europe.

He also said the Soviet Union wanted Egypt defeated in the June Middle East War.

The war gave the Russians the chance—after 200 years of trying—to establish their fleet in the Mediterranean, Lt.-Gen. Sir John Glubb said Friday night in a speech to the English Speaking Union.

Glubb spent most of his life in the Middle East. He commanded the famed Arab Legion during the Second World War and until 1953 when he was dismissed by Jordan's King Hussein. He now lives in England.

GLUBB
. . . hold on trade route

Glubb said the Soviet Union warned Egyptian President Nasser Israel was about to attack his ally, Syria. When Nasser sent his army into Sinai, the Soviets immediately supported him and sent warships through the Bosphorus.

He said the Soviets knew that Egypt would be defeated but supported Nasser anyway.

"There can be only one conclusion: namely, that the Soviet government wanted Egypt to be defeated."

Like Napoleon and Sir Winston Churchill, Glubb said the Soviet Union realizes control of Egypt by any great power and naval command of the Mediterranean permits the domination of Europe because the Middle East is a vital trade route for Western Europe.

SANDOWN PARK

Analyst's Comments — Monday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — They're putting Frazier on Royal Chic and off his last he may get the job done. My Madroana, dropping 11 pounds, Sherri's Star and Abine loom dangerously in this company. Rosalito showed fair speed and from the pole has to be considered. Mercilynn has met better and Ellabhai drops down. The eligibles are full of possibilities: Salemtown goes well for the boy. Cherie Q is better than her last shows and Seven L was closing stoutly. In a scramble . . . ROYAL CHIC, Seven L, Sherri's Star.

SECOND RACE—Heather W and Fleet Brother should be in the van of these early. The former stopped as if she had been hit in the head with a 2-by-4. The latter, who may be underrated, came on again and may go better here. The rest like to come out of it, and since there isn't that much between them, it may be a matter of luck and riding skill. Shadows Sake may be the most reliable. Picalad went well for the boy. Satin's Kin shoved slop at easier but went about the job in crisp style under a clever ride . . . SATIN'S KIN, Shadows Sake, Fleet Brother.

THIRD RACE—The boy has not had much success here but Boyaggio could be the one they will have to catch. He chased a swift one in Swan Lady and may draw clear with these. Star Pal hung tough to the stretch and is dangerous. Double Event switches to Phillips and is better than the last shows. Dark Bug tried it Saturday, loves the goo, but is hard to assess. All Smoke should save ground from the pole. If Andrews can tuck in behind the pace he may be able to grind them down late . . . ALL SMOKE, Boyaggio, Double Even.t

FOURTH RACE — Few crank out faster fractions in this society than Cranky Maggie. She drops five and will throw slop in their faces for a ways. Sun Lodge, Eastern Jewel and Social Club also like to ramble near the lead. Eastern Jewel has a class edge and a better post here and may be the staunchest. Dark Doll who went Saturday and Sienna Fire are the dangers late and benefit from a pace duel . . . EASTERN JEWEL, Dark Doll, Cranky Magie.

FIFTH RACE—Bring out the tea leaves and the crystal ball—you need them here. Pils Friday likes this distance better than the marathon and can run on anything. Wild Bruce found the marathon too much and could be a different horse in here. Punters Joy is remarkably consistent and is game in the stretch. Dainty Duchess obviously favors the soft stuff as does Jakes Special who ran well for the boy. Sir Silver Scot is by no means out of it. But in the consistency department few can top Milford of Kent. He's not in easy but at the weights may be the one to fear . . . MILFORD OF KENT, Wild Bruce, Punters Joy.

SIXTH RACE — Bouncy Belle and Christopher B like to chase the rabbit and will probably be out winging. The former has been packing it up—with fast company—at shorter but has won at the distance and the rider helps. Christopher chased the best on the grounds but may feel the package. Enchalade hasn't been showing too well but always against the big boys. Polizonte couldn't cope with much the same but he has a shot if they decide to take him off the pace and take one run. Silver Wave has a look. The one we fear is War Top. He turned back slightly easier in sizzling time and may loom large in the stretch . . . WAR TOP, Polizonte, Bouncy Belle.

SEVENTH RACE — This is True picks up two pounds but we've always believed he was more at home sprinting than at a distance. He has a Churchillian bulldog approach and the pole may give him the edge. Princess Vega may miss Harris—few get them out of the gate more quickly—but Shields is hardly a liability and she loves the mud. Kenos Boy moves up and is crying for a win but the top two don't stop to pick the daisies. One final note: Gladys Ann has been freshened up, is in good hands and is an interesting possibility at a price . . . THIS IS TRUE, Princess Vega, Gladys Ann.

EIGHTH RACE—Who's Hydn moves inside and may not look back. Malheur Kitten, Primall and Cocoa Silk are likely to be in the second flight. Malheur Kitten switches to Sam who gets a lot of mileage out of horses. If Ron Arnold can get good position with G Day the others may be in trouble late . . . WHO'S HAYDN. G Day, Malheur Kitten.

Canadians See Filipino Healer Under Guard

MANILA (AP)—A large group of ailing and infirm Americans and Canadians had its rendezvous with a Filipino faith healer in a well guarded beach resort in northern Luzo today, it was reported.

The Philippine Medical Association reported the meeting as it watched the activities of Antonio Agpaoa, a grade-school dropout and self-made "doctor".

The 28-year-old healer was convicted of illegal medical practice either years ago.

Dr. Pacifico Marcos, PMA president, said the group—which included 108 from the Detroit, Mich., area and two Canadian invalids—met Agpaoa at a beach resort in La Union, on the western coast.

"My men reported they were driven away by burly men guarding the cottages occupied by Agpaoa and his patients," Marcos said. He said two of those assisting the faith-healer were identified as an American man and woman.

Marcos said nothing could be done to prevent anyone from seeking a cure from Agpaoa but that the local board of medical examiners could obtain a court injunction to stop him from administering treatment because of his previous conviction.

He said the 110 patients, who flew from Windsor, Ont., to Manila Thursday night accompanied by six relatives and friends, were reported paying Agpaoa $500 each.

"We strongly suspect that they were conned by their own countrymen," Marcos said.

Calling Agpaoa "an imposter with a gimmick," the Manila Times says his "so-called scarless operations have been exposed here and abroad as a parlor magician's trick effected with chicken entrails and expert 'palming.'"

The Philippines Herald says: "If what he is doing is something punishable under our laws, something similar to the one that led to his conviction in court, then there is no reason on earth why this should not be done fast.

"Not only is it embarrassing to the government authorities involved but also to the medical profession in this country. And this is not to add the horrific, if not ridiculous, image that the Philippines is gaining elsewhere in the world as a land where the hocus-pocus quackeries reminiscent of the dark ages are still being performed."

Names of the patients were not available.

Prince Ends City Visit

Crown Prince Harald of Norway left Victoria for Vancouver Friday after being entertained at lunch at the Union Club by Attorney-General Robert Bonner and the B.C. government.

Mr. Bonner was deputizing for Premier Bennett, who is touring Sweden.

The prince, who is heir to the throne of Norway, is spending the weekend cruising B.C. coastal waters aboard a private yacht owned by lumber executive H. R. MacMillan.

In Vancouver Friday night he was entertained at a dinner in the Bayshore Inn given by more than 400 members of the B.C. Sons of Norway.

He is due to fly back to Oslo Monday.

Troubled Chelsea XI Hammered by Leeds

LONDON (CP) — Chelsea, playing its first game since manager Tommy Docherty resigned, crashed 0-7 to Leeds United in English League soccer today.

The humiliating defeat came 24 hours after Docherty, suspended by the English Football Association for misconduct, gave up his job.

(See also story on Page 12.)

Docherty was in West Germany today as his former team slumped to disaster. Speculation was he might be seeking a job with a West German team.

Meanwhile, Sheffield Wednesday, slamming Coventry City 4-0, regained the lead in the First Division standings with 16 points from 11 games. Liverpool, defeated 1-2 by Leicester, had 15 points and Manchester United and Tottenham Hotspur were in joint third place at 14.

TAKEN OFF FIELD

Two Scottish internationals—Denis Law of Manchester United and Ian Ure of Arsenal—were ordered off the field in a stormy affair at Manchester's Old Trafford Stadium. It happened eight minutes from the end after a fist fight between the two players.

Manchester, cheered on by a crowd of 60,000, won 1-0 with a goal by John Aston.

Ambulances Sabotaged

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Explosions at five-second intervals Friday night wrecked three ambulances of the only firm providing such service in Texarkana. Police said no injuries were reported.

Investigators said there was a strong odor of dynamite afterward and they found ashes left by fuses to each vehicle.

Richard Birtcher, owner of the city licenced ambulance service, was sheriff of Miller County, on the Arkansas side of Texarkana, until his defeat in last year's election.

Birtcher said he could think of no reason for the dynamiting.

Two Escape Injury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Americans escaped without injury today when their light plane crashed in the Thompson River near Ashcroft, search and rescue headquarters reported. They were identified as Robert K. Brabrook and Merrill Eugene Loudon, both from Wenatchee.

Korean Bid 'Suspicious'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Pressure at the United Nations to pull U.S. troops out of Korea and scuttle a commission set up to reunify the country has aroused Western suspicion that the diplomatic moves may be linked to mounting Communist border attacks.

The General Assembly's steering committee agreed at the outset of the session to discuss a proposal by the Soviet Union and several other Communist nations for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korean soil.

Over-riding Western opposition, the steering committee voted Thursday to have the 122-nation assembly also debate a call by Cambodia, Congo (Brazzaville) and Yemen to dissolve the UN Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea.

U.S. Ambassador William Buffum challenged the inclusion of an item that had already been debated and defeated the previous year and noted that the Russian Korean item was already on the docket anyway.

Australian Ambassador Patrick Shaw asserted that a proposal to pull out the UN presence "starts to have a somewhat ominous ring about it" in view of the rash of attacks from the North over the past 12 months.

COMMISSION 'FAILED'

The Soviet Union gave strong support to the Cambodian proposal charging that no progress had been made in the last 20 years in reunifying Korea. It added that "the commission has failed to prevent the establishment of a strong American military presence in Korea."

The North Korean Communist party organ Minjoo Chosun was reported in Seoul, South Korea, today to have charged the U.S. with using the UN "as a tool of aggression in Korea."

The peace that generally prevailed after the armistice along the 151-mile line dividing North and South Korea was shattered late last year when armed bands of North Koreans began ambushing UN patrols. In one 18-day period, the forays resulted in the deaths of six Americans and 25 South Koreans.

TROOPS CLASH

The attacks were stepped up in 1967. Last April, some 60 North Koreans and 40 troops from the South clashed. For the first time since the 1953 armistice, South Korean forces had to use artillery to drive back the Communists.

The Northerners have also been infiltrating subversives and saboteurs into South Korea, the Seoul government claims.

So far this year, 14 American soldiers have been killed and 61 have been wounded in incidents involving North Korean troops.

The sharp step-up in Red attacks is believed by Western officials to be intended to raise public doubts in Seoul about the commitment of 50,000 South Korean troops to Vietnam and to distract U.S. attention from the Vietnamese war.

Clash Kills 73 Cong

SAIGON (CP) — Waterborne American infantrymen killed 73 Viet Cong guerrillas in a gruelling battle through the rain-swollen streams and swamps of the Mekong Delta, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The spokesman said nine Americans were killed and 23 wounded in the 8½-hour clash Friday — one of the heaviest in the densely-populated delta region since the monsoon began there in July.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Continuous rain on the south coast brought a new October record total for Tofino for a 24-hour period. This station on the west coast measured 5.29 inches. The previous record was 4.40 inches in 1961. A strong circulation will continue to bring in Pacific disturbances from the southwest. Rain and gales are expected on the south coast today and Sunday. There should be some slight improvement between disturbances but the general picture is a cloudy, soggy weekend for southwestern B.C. Cloud and occasional rain will be the weather in other regions.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

An item from Vancouver this week reports high losses of library books to thieves . . . 4,000 books worth $10,000 in one year. They've hired a private eye to trace them.

Our soft-spoken city librarian Jack Lort says proudly that Victoria has little such trouble. When library books do show up in used book shops, co-operative managers return them without prodding.

However, he says, in Edmonton's new library, they're using closed circuit TV and bugs to watch library patrons because thefts and book mutilations are plentiful. Aren't you glad you live in Victoria?

★ ★ ★

While we were checking our library for bugs (all we found was bookworms) we learned that the most popular book on the shelves right now is Death Of A President by William Manchester.

Runners-up are Sir Harold Nicholson's Diaries and Letters and Bertrand Russel's autobiography.

Most-borrowed fiction of course is Valley Of The Dolls, with Dr. Zhivago and Hawaii close behind.

★ ★ ★

One of our photographers goes around to people and says:

"I have four numbers written on a piece of paper. Without pausing to think, I want you to delete one of them."

The numbers were 1, 2, 3 and 4, written vertically, the figure one at the top.

We did as he said, scratched out the figure three. He turned over the paper where he had marked his guess that we would scratch out the figure three. It worked with most of the people he asked.

Would some psychologist in the audience please tell us why?

When our Ask the Times editor wrote to the Yukon archivist for the answer to a couple of simple questions, he was staggered at the reply.

The envelope from the territory's travel department contained, in addition to the answer to the question, a brief history of the Alaska Highway; four brochures, a large colored map of the Territory, a copy of hunting regulations, a map of Whitehorse, and seven pamphlets which included a list of campsites, angling summary, a fishing guide, a history of Whitehorse, a story of sternwheelers, and a list of birds and wildflowers of the Yukon. Anybody going north?

Some people are always harking back to the good old horse-and-buggy days when they read about the latest carnage on the highways. But the magazine Washington Highways says we're safer now.

The magazine claims that in 1909, the peak year for buggies, the U.S. had 30 fatalities for every 100 million miles travelled. Today there are only 5.6 fatalities for the same distance travelled by 94 million motor vehicles.

★ ★ ★

We had occasion to discuss traditions of the navy regarding the ensign and we reached an argument. We maintained the flag is lowered each night in harbor or at anchorage, but at sea it's worn night and day.

"Not so," said our friend the lieutenant commander, who's name we will shield.

But we finally got the word backing our stand. Who put the lieutenant commander down? Our friends in the Rainbow Sea Cadets.

Nicol's 'A Minor Adjustment' Gets Pasting From N.Y. Critics

NEW YORK (CP)—A Minor Adjustment, a comedy by Vancouver humorist Eric Nicol, opened on Broadway Friday night to initial reviews which were unanimous in agreeing that it was a minor accomplishment.

A Minor Adjustment, a situation comedy with overtones of farce set in a Vancouver suburb, was produced by Canadians Ed and Robert Mirvish.

Directed by Henry Kaplan of Toronto it co-starred Canadian Austin Willis and American William Redfield—a former Torontonian now striking it rich in the Hollywood hills.

And it was, say the critics, a disaster.

The first reviews out were those of the New York television critics, an influential group which reaches thousands of theatre-goers with efficacious capsule comments.

WASTED HOURS

But the review which carries the most prestige is that of the New York Times. The Times' regular drama critic, Clive Barnes, commented that he was sorry that, even though as a critic he didn't have to pay for his ticket, he did have to waste a couple of hours sitting through such a play.

As one man connected with the production observed just before the opening curtain: "You'll never see a brawl (premiere party) die as quickly as when the reviews start coming in and they're bad."

Then it was midnight. And nobody knew where Eric Nicol was. Nobody could recall seeing him, at premiere or party.

Nobody was surprised.

ERIC NICOL
. . . clobbered

Nicol and his wife were to take off to Montreal and a visit to Expo 67 today.

Nicol admitted he would be "emotionally upset if the play gets panned." It was.

He really hadn't "any expectation of surviving" but for "my own satisfaction, I wanted to know how the audience received it."

The play's plot concerns the efforts of a British Columbia pulp-and-paper-company tycoon to save his son from a life of predetermined do-goodism. He enlists his rake of a public-relations chief to involve the son sexually with a young thing in hopes that the encounter will mature the lad.

The play echoes much of Nicol's personal philosophy, to the effect that a young man should not encumber himself with such things as family if he wants to achieve the youthful goals he has set for himself.

The play has five characters, one scene and lasts about two hours.

John Chapman, New York Daily News:

The play "is such a defenceless little comedy that I haven't the heart to say anything bad about, or good either."

Richard Watts Jr., New York Post:

"A Minor Adjustment is certainly not a play that deserves denunciation. It simply isn't very entertaining."

Clive Barnes, New York Times:

"There are a few flurries of humor in the play, but for the most part it is as flat as Holland and as sparkling as mud."

ACTORS TRY, BUT . . .

'Harry' Wallows In Sea of Banality

By KATHRINE THOMAS

When Henry Miller has one of his characters criticize his own play by saying "it's not good theatre," he is absolutely right.

Friday's performance of "Just Wild About Harry" by the Canadian Art Theatre never got off the ground.

It didn't have a chance. Miller's play is, for the most part trite and uninventive — a sentimental banality.

Miller actually believes in such sterotypes as the hunchback who can't find love and the prostitute who is determined to better herself.

At the end of the play when Harry makes an impassioned plea against the war in Vietnam, crying out against all the power hungry warmongers who rule the world, the powerful acting of John-Destry Adams as Harry enables the 'message' to come off. But it seems to be completely disjointed and unrelated to the rest of the play.

The Harry of the earlier scenes was a mindless brawny tough — not in the least intelligent enough to voice these beliefs.

The Canadian Art Theatre might perhaps be commended for trying something a little thought provoking. But surely there are many good avant-garde plays more deserving of production.

Trying to deal with such a superficial disorganized play is a hard task for any actors. John-Destry Adams tries too desperately to make someting of a part that is undeserving in the earlier scenes.

But when he gets half a chance for characterization, he shows himself to be an intelligent, dynamic actor capable of holding an audience.

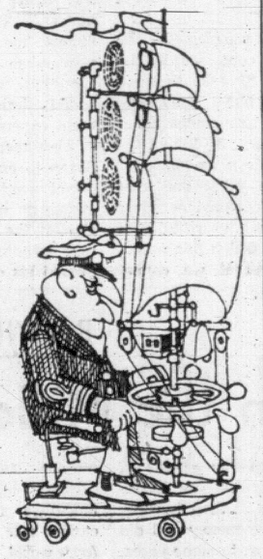

Cecil Glass is strong as the hunchback consistently underplaying to make us accept a characterization that would otherwise make us squirm.

Anne Hungerford as Jeanie tends at times to overact but it is not really her fault. It would take a miracle to make any lines that Miller gives her bearable. Nancy Failes as the bargirl has a much easier time of it.

Also deserving of notice is Graham Campbell who, as Dr. Kharkhoviski, has surely one of the longest and most rapidly spoken speeches in theatrical history.

Director John Stark is determined to keep this production lively and the pacing is excellent, though the staging is far too conventional

The production continues today with performances at the McPherson Playhouse at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE THAT AS LITTLE AS $10 DOWN and $10 A MONTH WILL BUY YOU A LOT ON THIS BEAUTIFUL ISLAND?

It's true! Beautiful lots on this magnificent sweep of sandy beach in the sunny B.C. Gulf Islands can be bought at the ridiculously low down payment of $10. Pay off the balance at $10 per month . . . and live and enjoy your property while you pay for it!

What's the catch?

There is no catch!

We made an exceptionally good buy on a fine group of lots on one of the most desirable of British Columbia's Gulf Islands. This is not "wilderness" land. The property is a legal subdivision, with a registered map of lots. The land is high and dry. There are literally miles of white, sandy beaches. The fishing is tremendous. The climate is something you have to experience to believe. Don't take our word for it . . . read what established periodicals have said about this area:

"They are the Unknown Islands. They are potentially the largest and most spectacular marine playground in the world. Their natural beauty beggars description."

VANCOUVER SUN, Editorial, Oct. 30, 1961

"These beautiful uncrowded islands have beaches so warm and sunny they resemble Hawaii. Savary Island, one of the most beautiful, is easiest to reach."

CORONET MAGAZINE article—
"Island Hideaways Close to Home"

"At Savary Island you will find all the fabled charms of the South Seas, long reefs, miles of white sand beaches, warm bathing, some of the Northwest's best salmon fishing, and wonderful clams and oysters, all free."

NORMAN D. FORD, "Today's Best Buys in Vacations," New York, 1960

"We made our headquarters at the Royal Savary Hotel, a gay little hostelry that'll do you proud. A typical day: up with the birds and out after those lusty big Northwest salmon. Morning's we played golf on the hotel's free beach course. Afternoons we lazily suntanned on the beach, swam, water-skied. Then cocktails, a superb dinner, dancing, and dreaming around a glowing beach fire. MAN, WHAT MORE CAN YOU ASK?"

JAMES C. WHITE, in "13 Offbeat Vacations," Man's Magazine, July, 1959

"At sunset we sailed 'twixt the main and a lovely verdant isle which I named Savary's Island. Here we landed and made camp on a fine sandy beach."

. . . from the Ship's Log of Captain George Vancouver, in the year 1792

Beauty? Yes . . . aplenty. But beauty and relaxation are not the only advantages of this island paradise. Here is an investment real estate situation beyond compare.

Waterfront property in B.C. is at a premium. Before long the price of sandy-beached property of this type . . . easily accessible and highly desirable . . . will be priced out of reach of all but the wealthy.

Pay $10 down to secure your lot. Pay $10 a month until it's paid for. Build yourself a home and enjoy it while you pay for your lot in easy monthly payments. Special Discounts for Cash.

But what are we talking about . . . a black and white newspaper advertisement can't begin to tell you the breathtaking story of Savary Island and what it can offer you . . . for investment . . . for relaxation . . . for retirement.

Furthermore, we won't ask you for one penny until you get the complete facts on what Savary Island has to offer you. Here's what to do.

Just fill in the coupon below. Doing so places you under no obligation whatsoever. What it will do will be to ensure that you get complete information on Savary Island.

Once you have the facts, you can make up your own mind as to whether you'd like to go further.

You won't be pressured. You'll get all the information and you'll make up your own mind.

But, remember what Will Rogers said about desirable land . . . "Grab it up, for once it's gone, it's gone . . . they're not making any more!"

A Fresh Look at Schools

WHAT EDUCATION MINISTER Leslie Peterson calls "a sort of state of the union" message on his department projects some interesting changes in the provincial school system. But it is sharply critical of mounting school costs, and it brings school trustees up short on borrowing for non-shareable expenses. Otherwise, the taxpayer gets only indirect encouragement.

Mr. Peterson told the trustees that they are spending too much and that the government is going to make it harder for them to do this by withdrawing provincial guarantees for some of their borrowing. He thinks the time has come to standardize school buildings so as to reduce unit costs and he calls for a study of the problem. This is a matter in which the public will be highly interested, but it would be a mistake if the demands of economy are allowed to reduce school buildings to mere utilitarian boxes. Costs must be controlled, of course, but the school's physical environment has an influence on the child just as the teacher has, and it should be an educative one.

On another issue contributing substantially to higher education costs—rising teachers' salaries—the minister is less specific. He is not satisfied with the formula on which payments are made by the government and the municipalities. A study is now proceeding in an effort to improve the formula. The minister does not say for whom.

General approval may be expected for Mr. Peterson's plan for more intensive use of school buildings and facilities—a trend being encouraged by the Greater Victoria School Board. Playgrounds, libraries, workshops, gymnasiums, even classrooms, should get round-the-clock use by both children and adults, the minister feels, and this view is in keeping with the new concept of schools as neighborhood centres. It is also in keeping with the principle of getting your money's worth.

A further proposal for more complete utilization could generate some friction with our established customs—it is to keep the schools open all year round. If this means summer classes, adherents of the Canadian vacation system and the summer-at-the-cottage tradition will raise strong opposition. Mr. Peterson did not enlarge on his premise that "school plants are too costly to be left vacant for one-sixth of the year." But at any rate, he's on firm ground with the general principle.

A proposal with a political aspect was hinted at earlier by Mr. Bennett. Mr. Peterson suggests a new form for municipal tax bills which would clearly disclose the mill rate established by trustees for schools—a sore point with aldermen and councillors who are blamed for high taxes. In Mr. Bennett's version it would also give full prominence to the effect of his home-owner's grant.

Many of Mr. Peterson's proposals are controversial, all of them are interesting. Above all they reveal a willingness to look at customary methods and practices, check their continuing validity and efficiency, and open the doors to suggestions, discussion, innovations and improvement. That is a healthful climate.

Cold Turkey

THE CONSTERNATION IN British government circles over the European Common Market executive commission report on the state of Britain's economy and the measures needed to become eligible for ECM membership, seems to be a bit overdone.

There is nothing in the report which was not known before. The British economy is indeed shaky—the Labor Party Congress this week acknowledged that fact—and to believe that this would be remedied simply by moving into the continental orbit is not realistic. There would be, as the commission report pointed out, increased competition in some areas and the nearly $800 millions contribution Britain would be required to make to the common agricultural fund would be a heavy burden.

The status of sterling in the Common Market is also a question which has been raised often enough before. France—and perhaps the other member countries—is entitled to be sceptical that Britain can be integrated successfully into the ECM while still holding onto sterling as a world reserve currency and without valuing the pound realistically. And the commission left open the possibility that a European currency, to which the pound would contribute, could become international money, being accepted in place of gold while the pound would continue to be used to trade with countries which wished to do so.

The point of the report is not the problems raised by British entry into the ECM but that an opportunity is offered for negotiation of the problems. If the British government believes that it can blast its way into the Common Market, or that only the intransigence of President de Gaulle stands in the way, it should find correction in the executive commission report.

Trouble in NASA

THE RESIGNATION, EFFECTive January 1, of Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., from the post of deputy administrator in the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration, underscores the troubles reported in NASA. These range from cutbacks in financing which are setting the space program back from target dates, to pressure on the administration and contractors since the tragic Apollo 1 fire last January.

The delays due to internal disturbances are expected to retard the effort to place a man on the moon by 1969, the previously announced goal. Apart from disappointment in NASA, the public reaction may be less than anticipated.

A moon landing will, of course, mark a major triumph in space efforts. But the date on which it is accomplished should be of secondary importance to the elimination of dangers before the attempt is made. If more time, fuller research and experimentation can ensure success, it should be of little real concern whether the landing is made in 1970 or substantially later.

There seems to be little scientific basis for viewing a moon landing as a contest between nations. It would be far better in every way if there could be a combined effort by nations able to contribute—a joint program by the people of the earth to explore and develop the space around their globe.

Pause in the Climb

WE HAVE BECOME SO ACcustomed to the regular monthly announcements of a rise in the cost of living index that the latest figures, indicating a slight decrease for September, are given almost with an apology.

But the decrease is so small—from 150.9 to 150.7—that it does nothing significant to change the upward trend and can be explained in terms of seasonal cuts in food prices and the removal of the federal tax on pharmaceutical items.

Nothing alters the fact that since 1949 the dollar, in terms of the index of prices based on a selected monthly list of goods and services, has drastically decreased in purchasing power, as it had before then too. What cost $1.00 then now costs $1.50, and the prospect is that the spiral will continue.

That is what has brought Finance Minister Sharp out with dire warnings and advice to cut back on unnecessary spending. But warnings and urgings are not likely to be enough. They have not been in the past, and the public demand has not changed. Much more concrete steps will be necessary.

"... I can't get them to go home ... they say this is the only place they can tolerate each other ...."

Montreal Le Devoir

In a weighty outline presented the other day to participants in the Liberal conference at Montmorency, Senator Maurice Lamontagne obviously tried to make up for certain recent blunders by his colleague Justice Minister Trudeau. ... Unlike Mr. Trudeau, who does not want to hear any talk about a special status for Quebec. Mr. Lamontagne admits that such a status already is a fact. He declares himself squarely "favorable to retention of a special status for Quebec within a true federalism, reformed in its functions to meet the exigencies of a new society."

Mr. Lamontagne adds that the special status "should remain flexible and vary according to the circumstances," that it should include only "that which French-Canadians consider clearly desirable for the flourishing of Quebecers."

All this is clarified, we believe, by an inconspicuous phrase which Mr. Lamontagne let drop at the end of his text.

"In effect it is a question of assuring Quebecers their kind of life, while at the same time protecting the standard of living and personal freedom."

If that is all that is involved, we could agree with Mr. Lamontagne. But a great deal more is involved. It is a question of ensuring the free development, the dynamic and creative expression of a community which, in the words of the Laurendeau-Dunton commission, forms a truly distinct society. This requires more than occasional special treatment, it demands a real status. . . . and written as much as possible into the juridical structures of the country. . . .

Mr. Sharp's Gentle Admonition Against Inflation

MR. MITCHELL SHARP has apparently persuaded himself that a minister of finance can make an impact on the country by roaring like any cooing dove. There was nothing very tough about the speech which served on Wednesday as a supplement to his budget message of last June. It seems improbable that the inflationary surge will be brought under control until the public is convinced that the government is in earnest. For this, in my opinion, more will be required than generally defensive speeches, coupled with hints of action behind the scenes and earnest exhortation about the need for restraint.

Western

Mr. Sharp observed with some satisfaction that his June forecasts seemed to have been borne out by events. "Since June 1, the state of the Canadian economy has developed fairly well, indeed surprisingly like the forecast I made in my budget speech."

The minister observed mildly that: "The undesirable rate of increases in prices and costs to which I referred on June 1 has continued. The need for restraint has not lessened." One would assume from this that the message of June had sufficed to arouse the country which seems very odd in the light of recent events.

Dealing particularly with the capital markets, Mr. Sharp said that they were influenced by three important factors. "First, there is now unfortunately a widespread expectation of price increases continuing over a long period, which makes investors concerned about the real value of long-term bonds and leads them to demand higher yields in compensation. To remove this concern will require action that will dissipate this fear of inflation that overhangs the market."

Good. But what action does the government have in mind? There are all sorts of hints and rumors but the country would be more impressed, surely, with particulars as Mr. Sharp reminded the Opposition earlier in the week in connnection with spending programs.

The other factors mentioned by the minister were an abnormal desire for liquidity so that businesses will be less dependent on borrowing and a general expectation that the pace of expansion will quicken again and be reflected in continuing strong demands for capital. Unless there are tax increases in the United States, Mr. Sharp thinks that our situation next year will be complicated by a stronger resurgence of spending, prices and incomes in that country.

But every warning seemed to be coupled with a reassurance. "All in all, Mr. Speaker, we are making a transition successfully from the high rates of expansion of the past year to the more sustainable rate of growth that is now beginning to emerge. This has really been quite a remarkable period."

Cost-Price Restraint

Mr. Sharp explained that he was not urging business to restrain its investment in productive equipment and new buildings but that there should be restraint in the field of costs and prices. This is sound economic advice. But very similar advice in much more vigorous language will be found in Mr. Sharp's budget speech of March 29, 1966. It manifestly was not heeded because 1966 was the great inflationary year which caused the minister last June to announce the period of "readjustment."

Turning back to his most recent budget, Mr. Sharp said that the deficit would conform with forecasts and is "appropriate to an economy in process of transition." What was done is right, however unfortunate the consequences may have been.

However, next year, because otherwise things would be worse, the performance is going to be better. Mr. Sharp plans to reduce the budget deficit below the present level with the objective of achieving a balance on the national economic accounts basis. This is perhaps less Draconian than it sounds for, on this basis, Mr. Sharp claimed a surplus of $141 million in 1966-67.

With this objective the government is now busily pruning estimates for next year. Mr. Sharp claimed that treasury board has already eliminated $650 million from the amounts requested by the various departments.

In any case Mr. Sharp claimed, and quite rightly, that action by the federal government will not alone suffice to arrest cost and price increases. Nevertheless the federal government must take the lead in creating a new climate of restraint.

It was interesting to note that the minister placed his exhortation in the future tense. "When we in the government and Parliament have taken the fiscal actions that we should take, then I believe they should be supported by a determined campaign to achieve by voluntary action a large reduction in the rate at which prices and costs are increasing — including wage settlements."

Determination tomorrow; why not today?

The most serious warning in the speech was probably contained in the following paragraph: "I feel that we must -- and we will — find some way to bring this inflationary movement under control even, if necessary, by letting the economy develop a little more slack for a year or two while price and cost increases taper off. We would certainly prefer to avoid the sacrifices of production and income which this would, of course, involve. But if we cannot collectively and individually exercise the restraint that is called for in wage and price increases in the present situation, then there would appear to be no escape from an essential cooling off period."

What this means, presumably, is that if we fail to check inflation, we will have to pay for it in unemployment. Why not spell it out? Mr. Sharp urged in March, 1966, that we should ease up on the gas pedal instead of slamming on the brakes. As there has been no conspicuous easing, it is small wonder that he is now apprehensively eyeing the brake.

But even in 1966 he felt that counsels of restraint should be underlined by announcements of definite, although modest, postponements of expenditure. One would think that there was need for a much sterner warning how emphasized by a more impressive display of resolution.

Inconsistent Criticism

It is true that Mr. Sharp faces two amendments. The Conservative motion would convict the government of irresponsibility "by its refusal to reduce taxation" — which would throw the budget even more out of balance and by its "reckless increase in governmental expenditures." It is impossible to take this seriously because Mr. Monteith complained at the time of the March budget that the government should have increased pensions and in December that Mr. Sharp had submitted a "Scrooge budget." The Conservative conversion comes too late. As for the NDP, conversion is not even in sight; Mr. Cameron is all for cutting taxes but would eliminate any mention of government expenditures.

Thus there was no compulsion on Mr. Sharp to enter a jealous defence of his pencil work. What might have been expected was a challenging speech, alerting the country to the dimensions of the inflationary danger. Mr. Sharp missed his opportunity.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

A Reshuffle Aimed at Mobility in the Middle East

UNITED NATIONS diplomats are casting about for ways to reshuffle the Middle East deck and introduce new mobility into a dangerously frozen situation. Israel's approach is to take the deck and toss it into the air, declaring all past obligations (except the June cease-fires) void. On this basis, the Arabs refuse to play. However, the net psychological effect could be good. It could make lesser, but still extensive, changes seem acceptable to the Arabs.

Frye

One peripheral change is being sought by the British. They set out this past week to renew diplomatic contacts with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic, and perhaps eventually to effect a political reconciliation with him.

Special Envoy

London selected for the intitial probing mission Sir Harold Beeley, a former ambassador to Cairo who has good personal relations with Nasser. It was obvious the Cairo mission was of great importance to Whitehall.

What was at stake was an effort to regain for the West a political foothold on the banks of the Nile.

It is ironic, in the light of the Suez war of 1956, that it should have been Britain that took the boldest move in seeking such a foothold; but the fact is that London is politically more acceptable in Cairo today than Washington is.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and United States UN delegate Arthur J. Goldberg had long talks with U.A.R. Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad here, but they did not produce a new opening to the Arab world.

Even before the British effort could get seriously under way, it was expected to have at least one tangible effect.

As a threat to the Soviet position in the U.A.R., it represented a form of pressure on Moscow to throw its diplomatic weight more heavily toward the U.A.R., Jordan, Lebanon and Tunisia, and less toward their more extreme colleagues, Syria and Algeria.

Moscow has already shown signs of being disillusioned with the results of supporting extremist Arabs. The Kremlim invested huge sums at their bidding, but they squandered the money and did not "stay bought" — nor, in some cases, even stay rented.

There are no Soviet bases in the Mideast, no denial of western access to oil and little dependable Soviet political influence. Last July, Algeria and Syria rallied other Arabs to rebuff Moscow when the Kremlin joined in offering them a compromise approach to peace.

Thus it would not be unreasonable for Moscow to want Cairo, which on occasion has been showing relatively moderate tendencies, to resume its earlier role as centre of power in the Arab world.

With Britain bidding for influence in Cairo, there is considerable pressure on Moscow to compete.

Coincidentally, Jordan's King Hussein, a leader of the Arab moderates, was in Moscow this past week, apparently also seeking a reorientation of Soviet policy in favor of the less extreme faction.

Some such change is very much needed, if there is ever to be progress toward peace in the area. So long as Soviet policy is in hock to extremist Arabs, little or nothing will be possible.

Israel, however, is disturbed by the possibility of a comeback for Nasser. Tel Aviv thought it had him effectively deflated.

Israeli Suspicion

Israelis think Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary George Brown are too inclined to see the Egyptian president as a "brother socialist." They fear London will be willing — despite everything that has happened — to give Nasser once again the benefit of the doubt.

Israel, where memories of Nasser are traumatic, apparently would rather deal with Algeria and Syria, for all their virulence, than with an Egypt restored to influence and power. Britain considers this kind of thing emotional nonsense.

The United States is maintaining its close ties to Israel, hoping these ties can be translated into decisive influence at critical moments. If London can restore a channel of communication with Nasser, it may be possible for the West to work both sides of the street, and to nudge Moscow in a constructive direction at the same time.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

About a mile along the shore where the sand dunes are at Island View Beach there is the most fascinating rocky outcrop.

This "island" in the sand and low marsh land supports an extraordinary growth of native trees and shrubs.

There are some very old yews growing there, where the trunk is about two feet thick and is hard and dried out on one side while the other side is covered with dark, shiny needles. Around the thick base many small branches have made a mat that somehow survives the sweeping sand blown by the winds.

Growing here are some very old Douglas firs that are twisted and bent. The tops are spindly, while the lower branches are contorted something like the Garry oaks.

There are a number of red cedars that have the lower branches reaching out to get the sunlight and are 20 feet in length. They too are twisted and in some places almost make a circle.

There are several clumps of poplar that have managed to survive and are tall and clean, each clump now taking on a different hue, which would indicate that each stand is from a different root stock.

Growing in the midst of these trees are several rose shrubs that are thirty feet tall. It is almost unbelievable that they are roses. The hips on them are almost as large as small orange plums. The base of the plant is up to six inches through. The stems are very straight and clean.

Growing with them are some osier dogwoods which have almost reached "tree" proportions and the limbs are a mottled green.

Here and there you will find several old willows whose trunks are heavily barked and up to two feet in thickness.

This is one of the most interesting habitats that I have found and a lot more exploration is due.

'Fortress Berlin' Crumbling

No Longer A Heroic Outpost

By NEAL ASCHERSON

WEST BERLIN—More than a city government collapsed in West Berlin last week. Down with a crash which shook all Germany came Mayor Heinrich Albertz, the senate and the whole weatherbeaten facade of "Fortress Berlin."

Six years since the last real Berlin crisis, four years since the last hint of one, the great actors have long departed. West Berlin today is not the heroic outpost the world remembers.

When students indirectly bring a government down, it is a sign that something is rotten in the state. Turbulence culminating in the riot of June 2, when the police shot one student dead and injured dozens, found Albertz helpless to cope or to defend himself against party enemies among the Berlin Social Democrats.

Now that he is on the floor, everyone agrees that Heinrich

HEINRICH ALBERTZ
. . . had bad luck

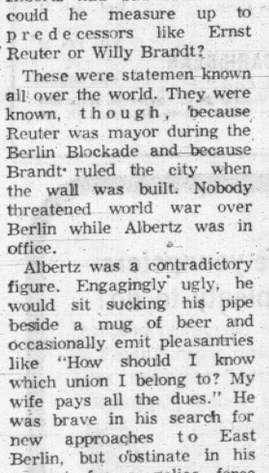

Albertz had bad luck. How could he measure up to predecessors like Ernst Reuter or Willy Brandt?

These were statemen known all over the world. They were known, though, because Reuter was mayor during the Berlin Blockade and because Brandt ruled the city when the wall was built. Nobody threatened world war over Berlin while Albertz was in office.

Albertz was a contradictory figure. Engagingly ugly, he would sit sucking his pipe beside a mug of beer and occasionally emit pleasantries like "How should I know which union I belong to? My wife pays all the dues." He was brave in his search for new approaches to East Berlin, but obstinate in his support for a police force whose excesses had shocked the country.

It is only nine months since Willy Brandt left West Berlin to become foreign minister at Bonn. As the world statesman left, he took his own best advisers with him. There remained only an elderly, thoroughly provincial power apparatus: the West Berlin Social Democratic Party.

Plotting against Albertz began at once. The right-wing "Berlin mafia" blocked his nominees, belabored him for "softness' towards young leftists, and finally sabotaged the whole senate rather than let Albertz appoint a new senator who was not from its group.

WILLY BRANDT
. . . took best men

In the whole dismal scramble for the pork barrel, Albertz alone seemed to show any concern for the fate of Berlin itself.

While observers had been warning that West Berlin is turning provincial, the students have been warning that the Social Democrat government was getting less socialist and less democratic. Now it is clear that the very calm which has reigned since the wall was built has slowly created yet another Berlin crisis", — perhaps the most difficult of all.

Brutal and ugly though it was, the building of the Berlin Wall by the East German regime did defuse the perilous East-West situation. But the calm of the past six years has in turn produced a different kind of crisis for West Berlin.

The building of the wall six years ago was a brutal enough thing in itself. But it ended the years of open peril. By a violent act, the German and Berlin situations were defused. Since then, there has been no serious threat to West Berlin. Although nobody can be sure that there may not be another, the Russians prefer the status quo in Europe these days.

West Berlin thrived on crisis. The entire world watched the city, and did all it could to overcome its isolation. Morale was high: the mayors were international figures. But today, would a new American president bother to come to Berlin and proclaim before the masses that "Ich bin ein Berliner"? or who abroad, outside the specialist, knows who Heinrich Albertz is?

These days, Berlin is a city struggling to find a new course in a new period. The wire on the wall is rusty now, and children unborn when it was raised are already at school. Behind the famous neon glitter along the main avenues, west Berlin's economy is declining. Yet the superb public housing schemes, the school system which is the best in Germany, continue to grow.

The city's only possible future now is to become a contact point between East and West. West Berlin, once the spearpoint of anti-communism will now have to be the pathfinder of co-existence. To do this, the old "fortress' ideology must go, and the tight rein on Bonn control must be loosened. Brandt began this process and Albertz carried it on as best he could.

The next mayor will be faced with the problem of how to hasten the conversion. Khrushchev once threatened to let West Berlin "dry up." Without a first-rate leader and a dramatic sense of direction, this could happen.

Berliners themselves are uneasy. Provincialism means isolation, and isolation, for West Berlin, means disaster.

The Great Money Crisis

$$$ $$$ $$$

An Inflation Psychology Has Taken Hold

By PETER C. NEWMAN

(In this first of two articles Mr. Newman reviews the serious financial situation in which Canada is enmeshed. In a second article on Tuesday he presents an exclusive interview with Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, who faces his greatest challenge since entering the Pearson ministry five years ago.)

OTTAWA—The great money crisis now shaking Ottawa is one of the more curious phenomena of Canada's chequered economic history.

Superficially, the nation seems to be in healthy economic shape. The gross national product is increasing at an annual rate of 7 per cent, unemployment is down to about 4 per cent, bank savings accounts are at an all-time high, and exports will set an $11¼ billion record for the year.

But another set of statistics—the recent rise in the bank rate to 5 per cent and in the NHA mortgage rate to 8¼ per cent—indicates that serious problems have been generated by our continuing prosperity.

These problems are so serious, in fact, that there's a body of opinion which holds that if they are not solved, and solved fast, the Canadian dollar may have to be devalued again.

Such a drastic step is still no more than a remote possibility and it is to prevent any such emergency action that the federal government is currently engaged in its most dramatic expenditure cutting operation ever undertaken. Up to a billion dollars may eventually be chopped out of spending estimates.

Newman

What the administration, led by Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, is attempting to accomplish is a breaking down of the inflation psychology which has been hampering its excursions into the money market for funds.

In the current fiscal year, Ottawa has to cover its budgetary deficit of $750 millions plus another $850 millions in non-budgetary items — a total cash requirement of $1.6 billions, the highest since 1946.

If unchecked, financing for the next fiscal year would amount to at least $2.2 billions, an amount that the experts flatly predicted could not be raised.

Only Two Ways

The trouble is that governments can raise money in only two ways: through taxation or through borrowing. And the acceptable limits seem to have been reached in both directions.

Despite the highest interest structure in the country's history, bond buyers have shown little enthusiasm for new government issues. (The last offering of $525 millions, would have flopped had not the bank of Canada taken up $175 millions of the total.)

The tightness of the money market seems to be based, not on any shortable of available funds, but on a "wait and see" attitude by wary investors dubious about the government's ability to carry out its promises of restraining future expenditures.

The result is the unhealthy combination of readily available credit and high interest rates. Potential investors are keeping their funds liquid in the confident expectation that interest rates will continue to spiral upward.

Federal government expenditures are such an important item in this picture because Ottawa has had to go into the market this year at an unprecedented rate. During the first seven months of 1967, government of Canada borrowings rose by 153 per cent over the previous year.

The reason for this sudden splurge is that the bills have been coming in for the many government programs started during the early Pearson and late Diefenbaker years.

According to the fourth annual report of the Economic Council of Canada government expenditures in Canada rose 35 per cent between 1963 and 1966. (This compares with a 25 per cent increase in the U.S., even though the Americans are spending $2 billions a month fighting the Vietnam war.)

Other factors which have made the current situation so unstable is investors' uncertainty over effects on the economy of the Carter Commission report and the Kennedy Round. Such pace-setting wage negotiatons as the current talks between Ford and the United Auto Workers could become important in setting inflationary union demands on this side of the border.

As author of the government's fiscal policies, Mitchell Sharp has been coming under the first heavy attack of his stewardship in the finance portfolio.

When he wrote his budget last June, Sharp had to choose between policies aimed at stimulating a mildly lagging economy, or applying gentle brakes on incipient inflationary pressures.

By not raising taxes, he opted for the former in the hope that this would "combine growth with stability."

But the inflation psychology was not broken and now, the government is having to face the consequences.

THE GALLUP POLL

Canadians Apprehensive About World War Danger

(By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion)

With the American escalation of war in Vietnam and the ever-threatening menace of China, public attitudes have changed greatly over the likelihood of another world war.

Two years ago more than half the population (53%) felt another world was was unlikely; today that ratio has dropped to just over a third of the people—38%.

Four times as many citizens (20%) believe there could be a war within one to five years as believed it in 1965—5%. This pessimism runs through all age groups. Two years ago nearly six in ten (58%) of those in their 30s said war was unlikely; now less than four in ten (39%) feel this way.

The question: "How long do you think it will be before there is another world war—or do you think it's unlikely that we will have another world war?"

	1965	Today
Within a year	1%	6%

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

President Johnson came under increasing pressure at home and abroad this week to order a halt on U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

The main forum of opposition to U.S. policy was the General Assembly of the United Nations where a parade of speakers argued that a bombing pause holds the only hope for Vietnam peace negotiations.

The U.S. has maintained that the Hanoi government must first give assurance that such a move would lead to the bargaining table, but the UN speakers say Johnson can and should take the chance without prior conditions.

Significance of the new appeals lies in the fact that they are coming not just from the Soviet and non-aligned blocs but from U.S. allies in the NATO alliance — including Canada, Denmark, Norway and France.

The only outright support for continued bombing that the U.S. could muster at the UN was from Thailand and Nationalist China.

At home a growing number of senators pressed Johnson to stop the raids and take other steps that could lead to peace. The switch from "hawk" to "dove" by some senators and congressmen coincided with publication of opinion polls which show Johnson's popularity slipping as disfavor with the war mounts.

One important spokesman, Sen. Stuart Symington, a member of the armed services committee and former air force secretary, said the U.S. should stop all fighting in North and South Vietnam at a fixed date and offer to talk peace.

The Saigon government should indicate its willingness to negotiate with anyone, Symington said, and offer amnesty to the Viet Cong.

At the same time Symington warned that if such steps did not result in a similar laying down of arms by the other side then the U.S. should be free to "pursue this war in any manner of its own choosing."

●

Meanwhile the military rulers of South Vietnam took a firmer grip on the reins of power as the National Assembly ruled that last month's presidential elections were valid despite claims by defeated civilian candidates that the vote was rigged.

Confirmation of the result touched off a wave of Buddhist protests and the threat of more suicides by fire, but the regime stepped in quickly to curb the opposition.

The Assembly's decision by a 58-43 vote came as a relief to the U.S. which feared chaos would result if the election was thrown out. With the promise of greater stability in Saigon in the near future there was speculation that Johnson may act soon and yield to the pressure on him for a greater peace effort.

●

There was little doubt that he would be urged privately to do so by his principal ally, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson who suffered a stinging defeat at the hands of his own party on the government's Vietnam policy.

At the Labor Party's annual conference in Scarborough, a left-wing resolution calling on the government to dissociate itself from U.S. policy in Vietnam was approved by a slim majority.

The resolution also urged the government to ask Johnson to stop bombing North Vietnam "immediately, permanently and unconditionally."

Foreign Secretary George Brown was jeered when he blamed Hanoi for not responding to peace overtures during previous suspensions of bombing.

Wilson was more successful in defending his other policies at the convention although the going was often rough.

The generally unpopular deflationary economic policy of the government was approved in a narrow vote after Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan warned that any easing up now would lead to greater unemployment.

The party also endorsed the government's efforts to get Britain admitted to the European Common Market.

●

It was a tough week too for President Charles de Gaulle.

In the second round runoff ballot in the French local elections Sunday the Communist Party emerged as the biggest winners.

The Communists had won a surprising number of council seats in the first round a week earlier and the Gaullists had mounted an all-out attack in the final week's campaigning against the "red peril."

Nevertheless the Communists chalked up still more gains in the runoff.

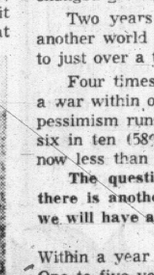

To add to his woes De Gaulle was forced to deal during the week with rioting and angry protests by thousands of farmers against the government's price control policies.

And he faces a determined effort by opposition parties in the National Assembly to topple his government in a censure vote next week. The Gaullists have been hanging on with a one-seat margin in the 487-member Assembly.

An Engaging Shuffle For the Old Soft Shoe

By ART STOTT

My self-improving spouse is taking her second night school course in shoe-making and progressing favorably. Last year she built a nifty pair of pumps, finished in tweed to go with a dress. Already they are showing signs of wear from being brought out of the cupboard to display to friends and admirers.

Stott

This year's model is a neat little navy blue job, also cloth-finished, to match a suit, a dress, or, sitting on the cupboard shelf, to go with the navy blue kids she has there.

I verily believe the course is doing her untold good. She is learning a handicraft. The lesson takes her out at night, relieving an inclination to cabin fever. She is gaining manual dexterity and producing an article that could be useful — even comfortable.

My delight in her application is compounded of many elements. She enjoys it. That pleases me. Among her supplies is a tin of the stickiest glue I've ever come across — wonderful for patching together my cheap plastic fishing reels when they break, or reuniting any number of things that come apart in my hands. It's true that she has yet to progress to the point where she can mend my gardening boots, but give her time.

★ ★ ★

Beyond all this, her activity provides for me the perfect response when the lady is inclined to challenge some of the earth-shaking announcements I make around the house. Let her raise an objection to any of my pronouncements and I have merely to draw myself up to full height — not a very big draw — fix her with a cold eye and say: "Cobbler, stick to your last." That should be the crusher when we have a small, academic difference of opinion. I don't know why it doesn't work.

We have no lengthy tradition of shoemaking in our family. The lady tells me her father used to nail on soles for the children during the depression years, and my father once devised a unique method of giving boots a gripping surface for work around shore rocks.

He had found that hard, leather soles were too unyielding, would not take to the contours of the uneven glacially — scored shore. Rubber soles, on the other hand, were treacherous wherever seaweed or slime had grown. So he cut the uppers from old boots and padded the bottoms of the ones he wished to wear. Theoretically the idea was good. In practical use the soft sole left something to be desired, but it pleased my father.

At night he worked over an old last in the basement, tap-tapping in deep concentration after he had cut and shaped the uppers from old footwear to a form roughly following the outlines of a sole.

A small error occurred in the first experiment with his theory. Before him on the bench he placed two pairs of old boots. With infinite care he cut the uppers from two and nailed them to the soles of the other two. So engrossed was he in his task that he did not notice, until the job was completed, that he had cut uppers from the two right boots and fastened them to the two left. Since he had no other old boots to covert, he tried the finished product. The left shoe on the right foot was a bit uncomfortable, he conceded, but the principle of the soft sole, he assured us, was sound.

A little diffidently we pointed out to him that when he walked on the wet sand at low tide, his prints would send the most skilful Indian tracker mental, wondering what manner of man had two left feet.

Father smiled indulgently. He hadn't met any skilled Indian trackers lately, he said. And at all events, among those who knew him in this community, his reputation as a leftist was well established.

The lady who is taking the night school shoemaking course has not contributed anything nearly so sprightly to our anthology of family lore yet. But give her time. She's young at the business. Her work, to my untutored eyes, looks professional. And from experience so far, I'd say few subjects provide a better conversation piece than shoes made at night school by a lady.

Misery Means War Inevitable

The Book Page

Edited by Joan Coldwell

PATHS TO WORLD ORDER, edited by Andrew W. Cordier and Kenneth Maxwell; Columbia University Press; paperback, $1.75.

Reviewed by Velma Gooch

This fascinating book is based on seven Dag Hammarskjold Memorial Lectures presented as part of the Sixth World Order Study Conference in St. Louis on October 20-23, 1965.

In co-operation with the U.S. Committee of the Dag Hammerskjold Foundation, the International Affairs Commission of the National Council of Churches chose lecturers from six continents to develop the theme "Man Amid World Change: Christian Imperatives."

The pervading image of Paths to World Order is the "Spaceship Earth," or Lucianic Sky man, in which we as readers view the earth and the problems of Earth-men from afar off in space.

The problems that increasingly threaten world peace loom large.

Did you know that 18-20 per cent of the population account for 70 per cent of the income, that America's per capita income is almost eight times that of Latin America and 2½ times that of Europe?

With the greater population growth in underdeveloped countries the gap between the West and underdeveloped nations is widening at an alarming rate. Misery and gross poverty are causing such anger, grief, indignation that violence and war are inevitable.

●

"Peace through justice" is the key struck by the series of speakers of six nationalities. Justice was the goal of the humanitarian, Dag Hammarskjold. This is the urgent demand today, a co-ordinated program of economical and social development of the world family.

Specific suggestions include a setting of 1 per cent per annum of national income for economic assistance to underdeveloped nations as long as necessary, better organization of world trade, stabilizing of prices of primary materials and raised technical and intellectual skills, so as to increase the purchasing power of 70 per cent of the world population.

Why should not the governments of world powers accept some of the responsibility for the unbalanced world economy? So much would be at least elemental justice.

Long-range suggestions for justice include the strengthening of the UN by participation of all the nations, and also by permanently stationing in every part of the world an effective and authoritative presence of the UN. Another suggestion is the establishment of an independent centre for basic, comprehensive research and preparing of long-term policies.

Privileged nations are called on to avoid all forms of neo-colonialism and racism. They must allow non-alignment policies, the right of each state and its peoples to live their own lives free from external pressures.

Several lectures indicate the strong position that the Church must take in the world-wide policy of "Peace through justice." The Church need not be enmeshed in the ideological struggle, nor encumbered with a narrow social and religious outlook. It can cut across national barriers and acquire a universal perspective.

●

First of all, it was suggested, the church must attack the problem of the Negro and civil rights, as it is closely related to the problems of understanding underdeveloped nations. The sincerity of Christianity is at stake in this issue.

The underprivileged peoples are awaiting the outcome before they make their final evaluation of the basic doctrines and tenets bequeathed to them by the Western Church.

Now the Church has an opportunity to "redeem the time," to act as prophet, pastor, servant, in co-operation with governments. Man is the object of the love of God and of the Church. Social justice, it was suggested, might well be a responsibility of the ecumenical movement.

One of the speakers views the gap between world poverty and world wealth as a problem "more imperative" than that of the atomic bomb. He believes that profusion of wealth can be a means of redemption, an opportunity to "recreate the face of the earth."

A strong note of urgency sounds throughout the lectures — an appeal for justice, charity, love of one's brethren, so that the world family may live in harmony and equity.

Can the blase, materialistic nations of today yield to such paths to world order? Dag Hammarskjold's optimism, his zeal, his dedication indicate that such a world society is no utopian dream but an imperative necessity.

BLACK COMEDY IN THREE BOOKS

Ivan Embarks Looking for Love

GOING TO JERUSALEM: Jerome Charyn. Macmillan Co. 180 pages. TO THE END OF THE WORLD: Blaise Cendrars, trans. from the French by Alan Brown. Ambassador Books. 253 pages. $8.50.

GOG: Andrew Sinclair. Ryerson Press. 436 pages. 6.95.

Reviewed by Anthony Jenkins

Imagine America as a zany circus-world of freaks and extortioners, and you have very much the focus of Going to Jerusalem.

In this mordant little comedy, Ivan, the epileptic son of an Admiral whose hammertoes have kept him from ever going to sea, embarks on a pilgrimage in search of love, the American way of life, and himself. The purpose of his journey is ostensibly to accompany one of his father's star pupils, cadet Van Buren, a six-year old chess genius, and to follow the route of Baldur Kortzfleisch, a former world chess-champion whom the admiral suspects of having been a Nazi.

Along the way, Ivan accumulates a collection of assorted oddities including a turtle named Marat and Van's nymphomaniac mother. The journey also offers some hilarious views of contemporary America, turned inside out.

On one occasion, Ivan defends the rights of a group of demonstrators in a Southern town; having repelled the attack of the bullying poor whites, he is told by the demonstrating students that "We don't believe in violence. None uh-tall!"

Inventive and witty, the book perhaps deliberately lacks a firm centre. At the end of the novel one is left searching for something positive to hold on to amidst the chaotic mad-house.

To the End of the World, on the other hand, offers a precisely realized picture of Parisian society at the end of the Second World War.

Written in the mid-'50s (before the emergence of Gaullist glory), the book reflects a listless world, hungry for excitement and ready to come to life, albeit vicariously, by identifying itself with the career of a public figure. It finds its excitement in the personality of Therese Epinosa, a much married actress in her late seventies, who turns her battered and tawdry body into a comic triumph by flaunting her bawdy and sadistic nature.

This book is certainly not for all tastes, but beneath its scornful and cruelly beautiful surface is a telling portrayal of the pursuit of pleasure that is both an indictment and a vindication of la vie boheme.

●

The view points of these two books are in a sense combined in Andrew Sinclair's latest novel, GOG.

A surrealistic exploration of England past and present, it includes a long dream sequence presided over by the twin deities of the modern spirit of dark comedy, Marat and Sade. The book's plot is probably the most ingenious of the year. A naked, seven foot, giant of a man is washed ashore in Scotland after being in a ship torpedoed by the Germans.

Regaining consciousness, he has no other clues to his identity than the names Gog and Magog (representing the common people and the powerful establishment) tattooed on the back of his hands. The giant treks towards London and is hunted by characters from his own past who are either real or the figments of his confused and wounded brain.

●

This is an extraordinarily ambitious book since it attempts to discover not only the mind of the hero but to recreate the patterns of the continuing struggle for power between the commoners and the authorities in English history.

Unfortunately, the novel falls far short of its aims because of its frequently pedestrian style and its patches of schoolboy humor.

Attempts at satire become a pastiche of rather crudely worked imitations of well-known literary styles. But worse still is the way that the comic scenes build up to a forced and decidedly un-funny punch line. One wishes that a novelist of Mr. Sinclair's potentiality could create a comic style that passes beyond that of the undergraduate review sketch.

It Was Also Very Splendid To Have Been Victorian Duke

VICTORIAN DUKE, by Gervais Huxley. Oxford University Press, $5.25.

Reviewed by S. W. Jackman

It may have been very agreeable to have been a member of one noblesse under the ancien regime in France but to have been a duke in Victorian England was very splendid also.

The Grosvenor family, tracing their origins back to the conquest, had followed the traditional pattern of the British aristocracy. By the seventeenth century they were baronets, in the eighteenth in the peerage and in the nineteenth they reached the apogee with the Dukedom of Westminster.

●

The first duke was Hugh Lupus Grosvenor (1825-1899). He was a member of the Whig cousinhood and, hence, had an assured position in society. He was educated at Eton and Balliol, made the grand tour, was an MP; he was a member for Chester and his holding the seat was further proof that despite the Reform Bill of 1832 the aristocratic control on the Commons was not much diminished. Upon his father's death he took his seat in the Lord's and in 1874 he became a duke ("wealth and high standing rather than any outstanding services was the criteria") — a dissolution honor or as Gladstone put it "with my dying breath," and one much approved by Queen Victoria. Earlier he had been created a Knight of the Garter.

●

Westminster had an active political life first as a Whig, then a Gladstonean and finally a Unionist. His chief significance as a politician was his part in the crisis over the Second Reform Bill. However, he was also active as a supporter of many social reforms.

Westminster married twice. His first wife was his cousin Constance Leveson-Gower. They had 11 children. The Duchess died at the age of 45; she was a victim of Bright's disease and dropsy. With almost Victorian rectitude the author gives a tantalizing summary, "Pleasure loving Constance had not been his ideal mate and in temperament he and she were very different. Nor, in the later years of their marriage can he have been unaware of her infidelities."

Obviously the regency Whig traditions continued in the later age. His second marriage to Katherine Cavendish, despite a great disparity in their ages, was more successful. There were four children of this union and the present duke is a descendant of the second marriage. (It is interesting to note that although there were eight sons in all, there is, aside from the present duke, only one male descendant living.)

●

Westminster was well known in his own day as the owner of one of the great studs in England. His Bend 'Or won the Derby in 1880 and the next year the Epsom Gold Cup; his Orme won the Eclipse Stakes in 1892 — this was very extraordinary since someone had tried to poison the horse prior to the race and while it was sick the papers carried daily bulletins. Both Ormonde and Flying Fox won the Triple Crown, in 1886 and 1899 respectivlely.

In sum, Westminster was the beau-ideal nineteenth century figure. He was a popular individual, favored by the Court and the public. However, his mother, the difficult and spirited Marchioness of Westminster, summed him up as "pinched and dry" and "Mr. Poker". He was almost too good, too much the plaster figure and too typical — Home Sweet Home was apparently his favorite tune.

●

Mr. Huxley has rescued from limbo the epitome of the Victorian gentleman. It must be recognized that Westminster's biography is not as good as Huxley's earlier work Lady Elizabeth and The Grosvenors, a study of the Duke's mother. But then, Hugh Lupus was not the person that Elizabeth Leverson-Gower was either. The Duke does not emerge as an individual and while Belloc's portrait of Lord Heygate

Lord Heygate had a troubled face

His furniture was commonplace,

The sort of Peer who well might pass

For someone of the middle class, does not apply to this Victorian cynosure, perhaps two further lines might well do so:

I do not think you want to hear

About this unimportant Peer.

PEACE through justice is theme of seven lectures in honor of late UN secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold. Collection of views of visiting speakers is reviewed at left.

NATURE

It may indeed be fantasy, when I
Essay to draw from all created things
Deep, heartfelt, inward joy that closely clings;
And trace in leaves and flowers that round me lie
Lessons of love and earnest piety.
So let it be; and if the wide world rings
In mock of this belief, it brings
Nor fear, nor grief, nor vain perplexity.
So will I build my altar in the fields,
And the blue sky my fretted dome shall be,
And the sweet fragrance that the wild flower yields
Shall be the only incense I will yield to Thee,
Thee only God! and thou shalt not despise
Even me, the priest of this poor sacrifice.

LOOKING AT JUVENILE FICTION

Curse You, Red Baron, Don't Cut Exciting Part

WINDIGO WINGS, by Edmund C. Cosgrove; Burns and MacEachern; $3.95.

MONTREAL ADVENTURE, by Clarke Wallace; Burns and MacEachern; $3.95.

Reviewed by Karen Smith

Great as the need is for compelling fiction with a contemporary and Canadian setting for older Canadian children, they can find far better reading than Windigo Wings, set primarily in Ontario, or Montreal Adventure.

The Cree Indian, French Canadian and British-stock Canadian central characters in Windigo Wings are as crudely caricatured as in any comic book, as are the super-villains — cruel eyes, jagged scars and all; the three Canadian flyers solve the brutal murders and help the RCMP undercover agents wrap up the uranium smugglers in the same manufactured, predictable way.

●

The antique First World War airplane dogfight could have been a unique contribution, but Mr. Cosgrove didn't credit his readers with the ability to handle any really interesting details. The illustrations by the author also live up to his comic book standard.

The children in Montreal Adventure fare somewhat better, emerging as living individuals, speaking French occasionally, and blundering into a Picasso painting theft because of their natural curiosity.

Intercepting strange messages on their ham radio sets, Michel, David and his sister find a mysterious ship and the Nun's Island hideout, witness the Museum theft and climb into the getaway truck, and get halfway out to sea before being rescued.

Despite the lack of originality in the plot, Mr. Wallace has at least captured the cadence of the children's speech and injected a bit of local color.

By comparison, Madeleine L'Engle's The Arm of the Starfish, written a few years ago, offers a far more interesting problem to junior high schoolers.

The scientists who discover the means by which starfish can replace an arm have been able to transfer the process to other animals and humans, and an American high school boy working in the lab for the summer is chosen to carry this revolutionary secret back to responsible authorities.

The power struggle provides tremendous suspense, and the alternatives open to the boy provide the psychological depth necessary for absorbing reading.

●

Another good choice for early teens would be Amerman's Guns in the Heather series about the son of an American secret agent who unwillingly becomes involved in his father's cases. Set in various parts of the world, the stories have the cryptic lightness needed for dealing with potentially melodramatic situations.

After Fang Comes Wolf

Readers interested in acquiring well printed, inexpensive hard-cover copies of the works of Jack London will find these requirements satisfied by the Fitzroy Edition, currently being prepared by Arco Publications of London. (Ambassador Books, Canada.) Eight volumes have already appeared, including The Call of the Wild and White Fang. To these eight has now been added The Sea-Wolf.

It Is Finished

The New Statesman invited readers to submit original specimens of found poems. So many entries were received that double the normal amount of space was given to printing the results.

The Victoria Daily Times invited readers to submit original specimens of found poems. So few entries were received that it was not thought worthwhile to give any space at all to publishing the results.

Series of Recitals Planned for Soloists

By AUDREY JOHNSON

There's a certain commercial that has haunted television screens for a season or so, based on the idea that someone has a better idea.

It is a theme that Victoria Symphony Society could very aptly borrow for itself this season.

The Symphony's better idea — with acknowledgements to music director Laszlo Gati who originated it — is the series of recitals to be given by symphony soloists.

For the first time the city's real music-lovers will be able to obtain "a better idea" of the artistic stature of the guest soloists appearing with the orchestra this winter.

Audrey

Six of the eight international recording artists in the week immediately prior to the orchestra concerts will give recitals in McPherson Playhouse.

How often in the past season I have wished for just such an opportunity; of being able to explore a wider field of music with an artist who impressed me within the limitations of a single concerto performance.

It is an inevitable reaction from a musical listener.

After an arresting performance for instance of a Tschaikowsky or Brahms concerto one is eager to experience the same artists' handling of Mozart, Bach, Beethoven, Debussy or Chopin.

The character of a recital performance being so entirely different from a concerto performance, one cannot go very far in imagining the one from hearing the other.

As a matter of fact for sheer enjoyment of the musician as an artist there can be no argument: the solo recital is far superior to the concerto performance.

●

The concerto is a great, colorful canvas but what art-lover would be satisfied to know an artist only by one painting, no matter if it had the scope of a mural.

But if it is desirable from the adult concert-goer's viewpoint to enjoy different phases of an artist's work, it is essential to the student.

That the Symphony Society is aware of this is manifested in the special student ticket prices advertised for the series.

Right now about the best advance Christmas gift available in town for the music student would be a series subscription for the recitals.

Marina Mdivani, Soviet pianist who is the next symphony soloist and the first artist to appear in the recital series, will be playing the highly romantic Tschaikowsky Concerto in the Oct. 22-23 concerts.

On the Wednesday preceding the concerts Miss Mdivani will offer a fascinating recital which will include, beside the delightful Pictures From an Exhibition, Mozart's Fantasy in B minor, a Haydn Sonata, Chopin's Ballade in G minor and Four Etudes by Prokofieff.

Cellist Paul Olefsky who plays Haydn and Brahms with the orchestra, includes Locatelli, Kodaly and Ravel in his recital program.

The great French violinist, Christian Ferras plays the Brahms Concerto in his January appearance with the Symphony, preceding it with a recital program that includes Bach, the Beethoven "Spring" Sonata, Ravel's Tzigane, Debussy and Saint-Saens.

Other recitalists in the series are Nicanor Zabaleta, world's foremost master of the harp, and pianists Elvira Lobe and Witold Malcuzynski.

High costs and uneconomical auditoriums in the sense of the capacity have squeezed Victoria out of the concert circuit for the time being.

Which makes the Symphony Society's service to the musical interest of the community all the more significant.

●

Interest outside Victoria in the Symphony Orchestra is growing. This season there is plenty of evidence that the orchestra is filling a need and commanding attention.

Following a visit by the concert orchestra to Salt Spring Island sponsored by the B.C. Centennial Committee earlier in the year, the Symphony Society had urgent requests for a repeat visit.

The second concert, which will see the Amity Singers and Robin Wood and Winifred Scott and duo pianists accompany the orchestra, will take place Oct. 27.

In Duncan a new symphony committee has been formed and several of the concerts will be repeated in that city while buses will regularly bring more than 100 season subscribers down from Nanaimo. On Oct. 29, the orchestra goes to Campbell River to give another Centennial concert.

And at least one (probably more) music-lovers from Vancouver will be coming across to Victoria for concerts this winter.

Anyone going to Langham Court Theatre for performances of the perennially popular comedy Charley's Aunt later this month, will be met with a new elegance in the entrance foyer.

The refurbishment and the attractive brown and gold decor is the work of Victoria Theatre Guild board member John Britt and helpers.

The Guild plans to extend the color motif and refurbishing to the auditorium in the course of time.

Pandora's Box Gallery on Wharf Street there is a display of recent works by University of Victoria's Donald Harvey.

The paintings, prints and drawings will show some of the results of the past year which he spent in England and Greece on a Canada Council Senior Arts Fellowship.

Mr. Harvey recently became a member of the Canadian Group of Painters. He was a contributor to an exhibition of Canadian abstract art organized by the Commonwealth Institute of London, England, to celebrate Canada's Centennial.

FIRST Canadian appearance for Tessa Birnie, a New Zealand pianist who has become noted as an authority on the keyboard music of Schubert, will take place at University of Victoria, under the auspices of the School of Fine Arts. Miss Birnie will give three evening lecture recitals in the Education-Arts Building, Oct. 17, 19 and 24. Currently Miss Birnie is recording all the Schubert Piano Sonatas for world wide distribution, a project that is receiving high praise.

Quebec Dancers Coming for Fiesta

Among groups coming to Victoria to take part in the Folk Arts Fiesta at McPherson Playhouse Oct. 20 and 21 is a company of dancers from Quebec.

Les Danseurs du Saint-Laurent specialize in dances of the Valley of the St. Lawrence River, from whence comes their name.

At the present time they are appearing at Expo where every night they organize dances for visitors in Le Village Canadien.

They have also participated in festivals over a wide area, bringing the dances of Quebec to audiences in Toronto, Sudbury, Ottawa, Washington, D.C., New York and Tours, France.

Their director is Guy Thomas, the expert who taught, choreographed, researched and produced the French Canadian dances performed by Les Feux-Follets.

A typical three man orchestra directed by Philippe Bruneau, accordionist, travels with the troupe.

The Folk Arts Fiesta will include solo and ensemble dances, choral, vocal solo and instrumental music of 15 countries, including the orient as well as the western world.

Emphasis has been placed by the directors on those countries whose people helped to pioneer and build Canada.

Greater Victoria Centennial Society and the Canadian Folk Arts Council are co-sponsors of this major centennial event.

There will be three performances including a matinee on Saturday, Oct. 21.

Tickets are on sale now at McPherson Playhouse box office.

"A buzz bomb? You caught fish with a buzz bomb?"

The man seated near the two James Bay fishing partners in our lounge couldn't resist the conversation.

"Two 12-pound cohos at Campbell River. You let the boat drift and you cast this thing. Zap! More fun than bucktailing. Can't wait to try it at Cowichan."

"If the fish ever get into the bay," said the kibitzer. "I was skunked there Sunday. Got hit by a live one at Bowser and he waltzed off with my leader and a two-buck grey ghost."

They merged into one party as fishermen do and went into our poolside dining room together. Then they ordered steak.

Tyrrell to Play Scrooge

Playing the famous character of Scrooge in The Stingiest Man in Town, a musical version of Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol, will be well known Victoria actor and singer Norman Tyrrell.

The show is the fall-winter production of Victoria Operatic Society. It will be staged at McPherson Playhouse, Nov. 28 to Dec. 2.

Others in the large cast are William Broadhead as Marley's Ghost, Barry Grimshaw, Doug Eriksen, Barbara Desprez, Phyllis Gaskell, Ian MacIntyre, Ray Middleton, Bernice Irwin and Ann Bailey.

The children are played by Bill Dyson, Linda Massam, Sarah White, Matthew Webster and Wyck Porteous as Tiny Tim.

Directors are Stuart Baker and Howard Denike with June Elsdon doing chorus choreography and Wynne Shaw providing special dance numbers.

ARTIST Heidi Vetheer paints a seascape in her Toronto apartment. The 21-year-old University of Toronto student sells her paintings door-to-door to earn her tuition fees. Mrs. Vetheer says she sells at least one canvas on her two-to-three hour weekly selling stint, earning from $30 to $70. (CP)

'Lights' To Start The Action

During October Bastion Theatre will be on stage at the McPherson Playhouse, "in-the-round" at the Studio Theatre, and at schools throughout Vancouver Island.

The eventful month will see four Bastion productions (three-quarters of it original material) playing to audiences of greatly differing ages and theatrical tastes.

Wednesday through Saturday, Bastion's touring company premieres a musical revue, Lights Up Again!, combining the humor of B.C.'s own Eric Nicol and the music and songs of multi-talented Marge Adelberg, with the professional performing versatility of Marge Bridgeman, Margaret Martin, Don McManus, Bill Hosie, Nancy Watt and Glenn MacDonald.

Lights Up Again! plays at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday and Friday and at 6 and 9 p.m. on Saturday.

FIFTH TOUR

After premiering at the McPherson Playhouse the show will go on the road as part of Bastion's fifth annual tour, which will see this adult musical revue, the Marge Adelberg children's musical The Three Bears, and the Moderns II program featuring Lister Sinclair's play Socrates, travelling as a unit to communities throughout Vancouver Island, and to Olympia, Washington.

Director is Peter Mannering.

OPENER

Fourth Bastion production in October is the season opener for the Studio Theatre at 1840 Blanshard Street.

For three nights, Oct. 27, 28 and 29, Vivienne Chadwick, Anthony Jenkins, Peter Mannering and John Martin will be featured in a reading of Shaw's Don Juan In Hell, together with a special program of dramatized excerpts from Mozart's Don Giovanni, sung by Peggy Walton Packard, Norman Tyrrell and John Bray, accompanied by Donna Denike.

He Loved Every Leaf, The Caressing Light

By A. B. MONTROSE

The rediscovery of ancient worthies in a centenary year is apt to be more a sport or an act of piety than an exercise in esthetics.

Yet anyone who imagines that the Willistead Gallery's resurrection of William Hind falls into the piety class is in for a cheerful surprise on seeing the current show of 60 paintings at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Here, obviously, is a man who should never have been forgotten.

Hind explored Labrador in 1861 and in the following year joined the notorious Overlanders trek to the West, sketching all the way.

THREE YEARS HERE

After a session in the boisterous mining camps of the Cariboo and the Fraser River, he came to the coast and seems to have lingered some three years in Victoria before going back to spend the last third of his life in Nova Scotia.

When he died it was clear from his obituary that his small circle of friends regarded him as merely a pleasant if somewhat eccentric bachelor, a good talker with an interest in sports and "a tendency to artistic matters."

Largely self taught, Hind had his occasional weaknesses as a draughtsman.

His painting technique varied from excellent to shaky, while his composition ranged from the inspired to the almost non-existent.

Yet his faults are almost part of his virtues. There is a slight touch of naivety of vision here that in its honesty goes well with a certain awkwardness of technique. Perhaps it was really a matter of the amount of time he could spend on his art, for at the top of his form he could be very good indeed.

But what sets Hind apart from, and above, such better-known and more highly trained contemporaries as Otto Jacobi and Mower Martin, is the quality of his vision and its intensity.

CONTRADICTION

There is a curious contradiction here. At first Hind looks like the most detached of observers. Yet if you examine the care he devoted to each small detail of the scene before him it dawns on you that he is certainly not just summing things up factually like a prosaic reporter.

He dwells on minutiae with such intensity that you realize he loves every stone, every fence post and every leaf on every tree, and that he loves especially the quality of light that falls on them. His best paintings become imaginative experiences.

Look, for example, at Village Street (a page from his 1876 diary) or at Wood Interior With Tree Stump with its infinitude of detail and its sense of the mystery of light in a forest clearing.

Again there is the extraordinary View From Sunnyside, a window-edged vista looking past barns to the distant bush country. Dry realism, one thinks at first. But take a second look and see if "magic realism" isn't an apter phrase.

SUPER-STAR of Hollywood joining ranks of those who dictate their own terms and earn near one million dollars per film is Audrey Hepburn.

PITFALLS OF CARTER PROPOSALS OUTLINED

Protest to Your MP, Experts Advise

By AB KENT
Times Business Editor

The deadline for submissions on Carter taxation proposals draws near.

And still there are few people who realize how drastic the changes would be if the royal commission is adopted.

This was the message of two tax specialists who spoke as a panel to 130 Victoria Chamber of Commerce members at an Imperial Inn luncheon Friday.

The men were Jacques Barbeau, partner of the Vancouver firm of lawyers Barbeau, McKercher and Collingwood, and Derek Parkinson, chartered accountant of Price, Waterhouse and Co. They are on a Vancouver Board of Trade mission to seven major B.C. centres trying to encourage response to the Carter plan.

Guests were urged to write to their members of Parliament and Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp before the government white paper on taxation comes down this fall.

Mr. Sharp extended the deadline for submissions to the end of October. He has heard from many representative groups and organizations in industry, the Chambers of Commerce, financial institutions and business.

But individuals count, too, Mr. Barbeau said, urging personal letters. "They are looking for this type of consensus," he said.

Ex-chamber president Courtney Haddock said the local chamber should draw up a submission quickly. He noted the possibility of "enormous new employment" by the government if Carter proposals are adopted.

Mr. Parkinson said that despite the "millions of words written about Carter report in the past few months there are still many people, perhaps most, who don't understand the basic or underlying details."

The Vancouver Board of Trade effort is an attempt to get people to evaluate the report for themselves, he said.

"There seems little doubt the government intention is to reform in some way the income tax structure, and there is no use crying after the event, one way or the other."

The panelists said personal submissions should be sent whether approving or critical of Carter.

Carter proposals about the taxation of family wealth "may be the hardest to swallow," Mr. Barbeau said.

A primary objective of this was to eliminate distinction between capital and income Anything that increased spending power would be taxable, he stressed.

This could draw "burdensome consequences to a farm or small business" he felt.

Although gift and death taxes as we know them would be abolished, there would still be areas of application where all income or gain is deemed taxable.

Even though a young man could be included with his parents, brothers and sisters as part of a family taxed as a single unit, he might opt out of the unit and be taxed as an individual, Mr. Barbeau said.

If he then succeeded his father as head of the family business or farm, he would be eligible to pay income tax on the gain.

•

It could be seen that where the business had little cash flow or the farm was making little income, it might be necessary to sell it in order to pay the taxes, the chamber was told.

There might be a provision for averaging of income, the report suggested, and this could be employed to mitigate a heavy tax commitment in any one year.

There also might be an "income adjustment account" into which a large gain could be put — at no interest — and withdrawn gradually as taxable income over a period of years. The government would be custodian of the money.

Mr. Parkinson and Mr. Barbeau agreed there would be an immense volume of record-keeping, more lengthy and complicated tax declaration forms involved in Carter-style taxation.

•

All capital gains would be taxed; personal deductions would decrease or disappear, replaced by an allowance of 3 per cent of salary or $500, whichever was smaller; the same medical or charitable expenses would be allowed, and pension plan deductions would be permitted without ceiling except that $12,000 at 65 would be the limit on benefits; a $100 tax credit would be allowed for the first child of a family unit, $60 for the second, $80 for a working mother or $100 if the child is under seven years.

The maximum rate of taxation would be 50 per cent of income, compared with 80 per cent today.

Evaluation of assest represents a staggering problem, even when dealing with marketable securities.

Mr. Parkinson said in Britain it had been found that quoted value was acceptable. However, there could still be three options open to holders of marketable securities: hammer out an evaluation with the tax assessor, let the courts decide value (probably impractical), or do nothing until the shares or bonds are sold, then subtract the cost price and pro-rate the gain over a period of years.

•

Dealing with capital losses, the report is interpreted as allowing for no deduction on the sale of a residence. An individual would not be permitted to deduct loss on the sale of an item of "personal use" unless he sold a similar item at a profit.

Loss on the sale of securities may be used to offset income in that year or in other years, Mr. Parkinson said.

Mr. Barbeau said it was calculated that persons in the $15,000 - $35,000 income category would benefit most under the Carter plan. But later he said that if all factors are considered in income — such as the discount an employee may be granted by his employer, or the value of free parking space he enjoys through his employer — it was difficult to see who would not be taxed at a higher rate than today.

The mission started Thursday night in Nanaimo, and through the addition of chartered accountant David Helliwell, vice-president of Steel Bros., will visit Prince George, Kamloops, Vernon, Nelson, and Kelowna within the next few days.

GOV'T WON'T ACCEPT ALL

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The Carter commission tax proposals are definitely not going to receive blanket approval by the federal government, informed sources said here today.

The cabinet will present a white paper soon to Parliament setting out its response to the controversial recommendations in the commission's report.

The government has extended the deadline for the receipt of briefs from the public, business and industry until the end of this month.

Provincial governments have until the end of November to submit their findings.

Higher Interest Rate News Dampens 'Buy' Enthusiasm

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A late rally by blue chips lifted investors' hopes on Canada's major stock exchanges this week after almost two weeks of listless activity.

However, the rally wasn't enough to pull the key indexes to the plus side of the ledger.

Early in the week, enthusiasm was dampened by news of higher interest rates in the bond and mortgage markets, threatened tax increases and a slowdown in the construction industry.

As a result, Toronto's industrial index dipped .40 to 168.32.

Trading figures also reflected the market's inability to break through to higher levels as only 17,941,000 shares changed hands compared with 18,626,000 last week.

Inco provided one of the bright spots as it moved up 4⅞ to 119⅝. It had touched a high of 119⅞. The company recently increaseed its nickel prices.

Falconbridge, which also has increased nickel prices, gained 1½ to 92¼.

CPR climbed 3⅛ to 66. The directors of Canadian Pacific Investments, a wholly owned subsidiary of CPR, announced CPI will offer $100,000,000 of 4¾ per cent cumulative redeemable convertible voting preferred shares, carrying the right to receive share purchase warrants.

Oshawa A, which split its shares on a two-for-one basis, gained 2 to 26½.

Other big gains went to Levy up 2¾ to 30¾, Bacm Industries 1⅜ to 17⅝ and Canadian Breweries ½ to 8⅛.

Weakened bank issues contributed to the market's decline. Brokers say part of their drop is reflected in the increased interest rates in bonds and mortgages.

They say banks tend to sell on their dividends and that any increase in interest rates hurts this type of issue.

Imperial-Commerce dropped 1¼ to 12, Montreal ⅞ to 12¼, Royal ⅝ to 15½, Nova Scotia ⅜ to 13⅝ and Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 13¼.

Alberta Gas Trunk declined 3½ to 32, General Motors 2⅞ to 92⅛, Fraser 1¼ to 22¼ and Bell Telephone ¼ to 45¾ after touching a low of 45½.

Uranium issues continued to move up as investors pin their hopes on further large sales of the metal in the near future.

Denison gained 2¼ to 85¾ and Rio Algom ⅛ to 37¼.

Among other base metals, Lake Dufault added ⅝ at 11⅜ while Cominco backed down 1⅝ to 28.

Western oils were mixed with Dome up 1¾ to 60½, Canadian Superior 1⅝ to 45, Banff ⅝ to 16½ and Central-Del Rio ⅜ to 21⅛.

Scurry-Rainbow was off 2⅝ to 35⅝ and Hudson's Bay 1½ to 36⅞.

PCE Explorations, which had been delayed 15 minutes at the opening Friday to match buy and sell orders, jumped 18 cents to 1.63.

The company has been actively engaged in the Coppermine River area of the Northwest Territories, however, it has not said whether it will work the property during the winter.

Conigo was the most active speculative, up 14 cents to 1.03 on 1,569,000 shares. D'Eldona fell 20 cents to 1.22.

On index, golds were ahead 1.69 to 169.44 and base metals 2.02 to 111.20. Western oils dipped .07 to 205.32.

At Montreal, industrials were ahead .62 to 173.62 while utilities fell .96 to 141.96, banks 6.90 to 120.83 and papers 1.93 to 102.67. Volume was 8,615,000 shares compared with 6,938,000 last week.

Rapid Transit System

SEATTLE (AP) — A 45-mile rapid transit rail system costing $1,150,000,000 was proposed for the Seattle area Thursday in a preliminary report by consultants.

It envisions a system of surface, underground and elevated trains to carry traffic to and from suburban areas.

BUY NOW ...PAY MORE

OAKVILLE (CP) — Canadians who buy a 1968 Ford now will pay more than those who wait until the United Auto Workers of America strike against the Ford company is over.

Leo C. Beebe, vice-president of marketing at Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd. here, says that dealers are being instructed to "keep selling" and to try to convince customers that Ford cars are worth waiting for.

But those who want one now will have to pay more, Mr. Beebe says.

He said a check of dealers in several United States cities showed that although the price of the new cars had not increased, the amount of money given for trade-ins had been reduced considerably.

OBLIGING FRAZIER WINS TWO . . . . . AT SANDOWN PARK

Fans Appreciate Basil's Likes

By HAL MALONE

As rain poured off the grandstand roof, cars became stuck in parking lot goo and the wind and rain were at their pneumonia-producing best, punters at Splashdown Park Friday asked themselves "What am I doing here?"

The obvious answer: trying to impersonate a drowned squid.

But Basil Frasier knew what he was doing. He has since the meet began in sunshine (remember that stuff?) on Sept. 16.

What Basil is doing is demonstrating the kind of horsebacking that makes him leading rider (21 wins). And evokes a leading question: What is Basil Frazier doing, riding at Sandown?

Hear him: "I was supposed to ride here last year. But some people urged me to go to Spokane and I did. But this year I felt I had an obligation, a year-old-obligation, to come."

Frazier rides for the No. 1 Frank McMahon stable, now conditioning at Santa Anita under Johnny Longden. Presumably he could also ride at Bay Meadows or Del Mar.

"Yes, I could have gone south to those meets," he admitted. "But they had started before Exhibition Park finished and when you get to a track late it's hard to get good stock. Or much of it."

"The money's better down south. But money isn't everything. I like to ride."

That's fine with Frazier's fans. They like to bet what Basil rides.

Friday he had four mounts, opened and closed in the winner's circle.

He looks good on any kind of horse, front runner, or charger.

With Coquahalla in the first he allowed the pace-setting Ready Freddy and Rosalito to put themselves into a state of deep fatigue. When he was ready Coquahalla got the message and bounced home easily.

On Sienna Fire, Frazier played the waiting game. He turned his mount loose at the three-eighths pole, caught Who's Haydn by a good head at the tape.

The victory was typical of his finishing ability. He is, you might say, a graduate of a finishing school. Strictly summa cum laude.

MUTUEL MURMURS . . . Sandy Shields, the pied piper of the prairies, and Jack Phillips also scored twice . . . Shields reined in Parisienne Pixie and Jayleen . . . Last-Hole Bird Gets Gay Even

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Gay Brewer and Billy Casper started the third round of the World Golf Tournament today with a wary eye out for a third U.S. golfer, Gardner Dickinson.

Brewer, the Masters champion, got a birdie on the last hole Friday for a 71 to tie Casper, the former U.S. Open champ, at 139 after 36 holes of the 72-hole tourney for first prize of $55,000.

Just two strokes back was Dickinson in a challenging position at 141.

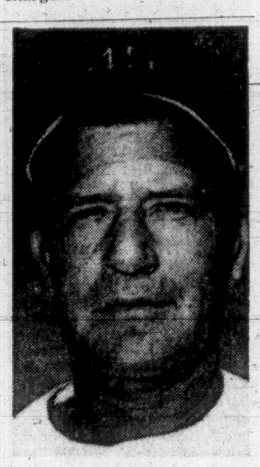

Dickinson thinks he has a good chance of winning because of his caddy.

"I've got one of the greatest caddies I've ever known," Dickinson said. "I would not even be a contender without him. He knows this course so well that it frightens you to think about it."

Dickinson's caddy is John Philp, a 29-year-old native of St. Andrews who has known the course "since I was able to walk."

Dickinson is tied with Brian Barnes, George Archer and Peter Allis, with Mason Rudolph another stroke back at 142, going into the last two rounds of the tourney which ends Sunday.

NOT FENWAY TAILORED

Red Sox Rated Good on Road

(Times News Services)

ST. LOUIS — Boston Red Sox, who were all even with St. Louis at a game apiece going into today's World Series game, feel they are at no disadvantage in meeting the Cardinals for three straight games at Busch Stadium.

"This team wasn't tailored for Fenway Park in Boston," Dick Williams, the Red Sox' rookie manager, said today before the start of the third game in the 64th fall classic.

"We've played well on the road all season," Williams said. "And we've played winning ball with every move in the book — walks, bunts, a steal, a double steal — everything all year long. The park doesn't make any difference with our style of play."

In former years, the Red Sox tried to pack their lineup with right-handed power to capitalize on Boston's chummy left field wall. As a result, collapses in more spacious parks on the road became a way of life.

"The only park we had trouble in this year was at Anaheim, where the California Angels beat us seven times. Most of the games were close, though. In one series we lost 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 in successive games. They were great slugfeasts.

"We played over .500 on the road — four games over," he said.

Jose Santiago, the loser in the Cardinals' 2-1 victory in the opener, was named to start the fourth game for Boston with Jim Lonborg due to come back in the fifth game, scheduled for Monday.

Either Bob Gibson or Steve Carlton will start for the Cardinals on Sunday, said St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst. Carlton, 14-9 during the season, is the only southpaw among the Cardinal series' starters.

Schoendienst indicated that Carlton might start the Sunday game if the Cardinals captured today's game. But, if the Cardinals lost, Gibson would probably start Sunday and Carlton Monday.

That would leave Gibson available to pitch in the seventh game of the Series — if there is one.

One major concern to Schoendienst and the Cards is the unexplainable ineptness of slugger Orlando Cepeda against American League pitching. In 10 seasons as a National Leaguer, Cepeda boasts a .309 average but in 16 games against A.L. pitching, his average is a puny .075.

Cepeda, whose .325 average and 111 runs-batted-in have made him the leading candidate for the NL's Most-Valuable-Player award, has failed to get a hit in seven times at bat in the first two games of the Series. In fact, he's hit only one ball out of the infield.

"I don't know what it is, but I'm not concerned," the Cardinals' first baseman said Friday after a rain-punctuated round of batting practice on the Series' day off.

Someone asked if maybe the Red Sox had a good scouting report on him.

"They haven't pitched me any different than anyone else," the 30-year-old slugger replied. "We have some better pitching in the National League. I've been playing in the National League 10 years. They should know how to pitch to me."

★ ★ ★

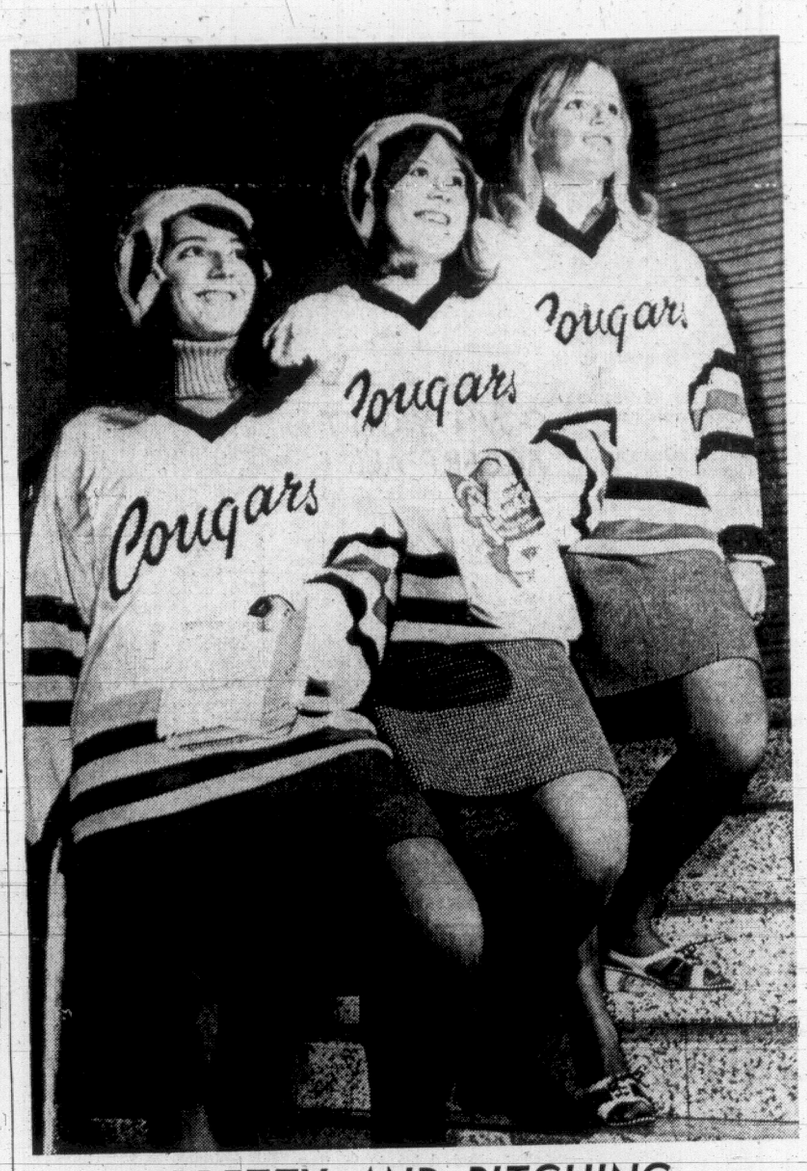

Tim McCarver was another Cardinal who didn't get a hit in the first two games. Curt Flood and Roger Maris had only one each.

The Cardinals, however, feel they'll return to their more normal hitting ways now that they're back home.

"Our hitters have an advantage playing in our own park," coach Dick Sisler said.

"Our guys like to hit to all fields. The Red Sox have a different kind of ball park, and they're used to hitting in their park.

"I feel Cepeda is coming along at the plate. He was overanxious in the first game, and McCarver seemed to be overanxious in both games."

PRETTY AND PITCHING

Sales pitch from eye-appealling section could prove to be a big financial boost for Victoria Cougars' Junior Hockey Club. Entire proceeds from program sales will be turned over to junior team. (Gordon Jolly photo)

Docherty's Suspension Comes As No Surprise

By ERNIE FEDORUK

It has no bearing on their Sunday match against Vancouver Columbus, but one suspects Victoria O'Keefe's have that "I-told-you-so" feeling today.

That's because tempestuous Tommy Docherty is in trouble.

Docherty was manager and chief order-barker for Chelsea when the English League side visited Victoria in May.

BAD MANNERS

Chelsea defeated the Kennedy Cup champion O'Keefes 3-2. The game served as the official opening function in the new Royal Athletic Park. It also brought on some bad manners on the part of Chelsea, particularly manager Docherty.

He refused to co-operate with local photographers and snubbed O'Keefe players and executives at an informal function following their match here.

Docherty's temperament was not displayed for Victorians' only. On Friday, the English Football Association suspended him for "misconduct during a tour of Bermuda."

The 39-year-old former Scottish international resigned as Chelsea's manager a few hours later. Today, it was reported from London, Docherty flew to West German "on business."

It is speculated, but not confirmed, that Docherty might be in line for a job with a German team.

That being the case, good luck to the Germans.

Chelsea directors insisted he was not pressed to resign.

Docherty, one of the most colorful figures in British soccer, drank champagne with the Chelsea directors before leaving Stamford Bridge Stadium. Reports said he is being given a 10,000 pound ($30,000) settlement by the club.

O'Keefes, to a man, feel that whatever "action taken by the English league was probably warranted."

In the meantime, of prime concern to the Victorians is their Pacific Coast League date with Columbus.

That match, at Royal Athletic Park, starts at 2 p.m. Sunday.

TICATS PLAY TWICE

Football Feast For Thanksgiving

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Thanksgiving weekend football feast will highlight the holiday sports menu as all five teams in the Western Conference and the four in the Eastern Conference see action.

In three games to be played in the West, Hamilton visits Calgary Saturday, Edmonton meets the B.C. Lions in Vancouver Sunday, and Saskatchewan will be at home to Hamilton in Regina Monday. Winnipeg plays at Toronto in one of two games in the East.

Montreal will be at Ottawa Monday.

Good weather is promised for tonight's game in Calgary where the Stampeders host the Tiger-Cats, but the outlook is for possible snow or rain when the Ticats go to Regina Monday.

Rain has been forecast for the Sunday contest between the Eskimos and Lions at Empire Stadium.

Tonight's game between Hamilton and Calgary will be seen nationally on the CBC network. The Winnipeg-Toronto and Hamilton-Saskatchewan contests, both day games, will be screened by CTV.

Hamilton coach Ralph Sazio isn't looking forward to the tough weekend with much enthusiasm.

CAN IMPROVE LOT

But a pair of wins would vault his club into a commanding lead in the Eastern Conference if Ottawa loses Monday to Montreal. Hamilton has 12 points at present, Ottawa 10.

Calgary and Saskatchewan virtually have playoff spots assured in the WFC. Saskatchewan leads the league with 18 points, two more than Calgary. Winnipeg, Edmonton and B.C. are fighting for the third playoff spot.

An Edmonton win over the last-place Lions would all but eliminate B.C. who trail third-place Edmonton by four points, but have a game in hand.

Calgary coach Jerry Williams plans to use two of his injured line stars. Don Luzzi still has a sore knee and Herm Harrison an injured left leg. Hamilton will dress new import fullback Clen Turner in place of injured Dick Cohee.

Lions coach Jim Champion said his club will throw the ball regardless of weather conditions Sunday.

WHO'LL GET CALL?

But Champion isn't sure who will do the throwing. He said he will use new quarterback Hank Schichtle but has not made up his mind whether to start him or regular signal caller Bernie Faloney. Ted Gerela, the Lions' soccer-style placement kicker, might see action in the offensive backfield.

Raiders Risk Victory Skein Against Jets

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland Raiders put their American Football League winning streak on the line tonight against New York Jets while Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers tangle in a key National Football League test.

Oakland, 3-0 after a 23-21 triumph over Kansas City's defending champs last weekend, sends the league's top defence against a powerful attack that has carried the Jets to two victories in three starts.

The Steelers and Browns figure to draw 80,600 for their annual Saturday night meeting at Cleveland.

Sunday in the AFL, Miami is at Kansas City, Buffalo at Denver, and Boston at San Diego.

In the NFL Sunday, San Francisco visits Los Angeles, Baltimore is at Chicago, Green Bay at Detroit, Dallas at Washington, St. Louis at Minnesota, Philadelphia at Atlanta, and New Orleans at New York.

HELD TO TIE

Hornets Slip Behind Tyees

Mount View Hornets are still unbeaten but they have skidded a step behind the Victoria High Tyees in the Inter-High School Soccer League race.

Playing their third game of the young season Friday, the defending-champion Tyees charged ahead of the Hornets by blasting Esquimalt 3-0 on the Vic High pitch.

Hornets were involved in their second draw, finishing in a 1-1 deadlock with Claremont at Mount View.

In Friday's other match, Oak Bay remained in a third-place tie with Claremont after struggling to a 2-2 draw with Mount Douglas at the Oak Bay field.

Controlling play in the first half and dominating exchanges after the intermission, Tyees permitted Esquimalt only two long shots on goal in the second half.

OPENED SCORING

Keith Humphries opened the scoring for the Vics, taking a pass from Ken Piatrowski for the only first-half goal.

Piatrowski, set up by Doug Puritch, made it 2-0 and Dan Kulai earned credit for the third Tyee tally when his header was deflected into the Esquimalt net by a defender.

Lorne Bunyan scored on a breakaway to give Mount Douglas a first-half lead at Oak Bay. Peter Mason pulled the Oaks even early in the second session but Darryl Hooker snagged a loose ball and booted it home to get the mountain crew on top again.

PENALTY GOAL

Bob Fish saved the Oaks from defeat, knotting the count with a fine drive from about 40 yards out.

Hornets, after several close misses, salvaged their draw against Claremont on a penalty goal by Dennis Somner with about five minutes remaining.

Speed Model Hustles In Kentucky Futurity

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—This year's Kentucky Futurity might have been over a little sooner if winner Speed Model hadn't been trapped in the field during the first heat.

As it was, the bay filly missed in the first heat of Friday's $58,642 harness third jewel in trotting's Triple Crown.

She then came on with times of 2:01 2-5 and 2:02 3-5 to win the next two heats and the Futurity.

"Her eighth post position hurt her," driver Art Hult said of the first heat when Rocket Speed won. "But I feel we still would have won if a horse (Halifax Hanover) hadn't broken stride in front of us."

The odds-on favorite, Speed Model took her time in the second heat, coming from behind with nearly a half mile to go, but still leaving the field at the wire.

Rocket Speed, second finisher in the standings, presented a slight problem for Hult in the third and final heat when the colt made the first charge and blocked Speed Model from the outside. But the winner moved out for a 1¼ length victory.

Third in the final standings was Halifax Hanover, piloted by John O'Brien.

Back in the rest of the nine-member field, Pomp, winner of this year's Yonkers Futurity, had uninspiring finishes of seventh, seventh and sixth.

CORDOVA BAY . . . . . CUTS COST

Shuttlers Buck Trend

They were swatting more than shuttlecocks this week at the Cordova Bay Badminton Club.

After new officers Lorne Mclean (president), Joe Bryant (vice-president) and Bob Currie (secretary-treasurer) taken over the reins, the club slapped down membership fee.

Believing that such action would be in the best interest of the club, the new officers were able to beat the modern trend and reduce club dues — to $25 for men and $20 for ladies.

The new officers hope the action will help the club maintain its membership strength and help in the bid to retain the top two places in league play.

Sundays, Tuesday and Thursdays are again the playing days for the club with junior players swinging Thursday evenings under the coaching of city champion Bob Hunt and Doug Boniface.

The Cordova Bay will continue to host the Vancouver Island open tournament, staging the 11th annual meet under the direction of Bob Macmurchie in February.

KNUDSON'S world of GOLF

People have often asked me if I'm nervous before playing in a big tournament.

My answer is that if I don't feel that way, I have no business playing in it.

I can usually tell days before a tournament if I'm going to be in the proper frame of mind to play. I get extremely touchy. It's easy to aggravate me and there are times when I actually become nauseous.

I can feel it coming on. I can sleep at night, but it becomes a restless sleep—tossing, turning and sometimes talking.

Breakfast is impossible on the day of a tournament. Liquids only because I can't get food down.

★ ★ ★

If I have these symptoms, I know I'm ready to play. If I don't, I might as well pack it up and head for home. Or, if I'm not ready physically, I know I won't be feeling the way I usually do before a tournament. I know I don't stand a chance so I don't worry about anything.

I become rather indifferent.

Fellows like Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, with tremendous stores of energy—although it may only be nervous energy at times—can keep a peak for weeks on end.

One hard week takes so much out of me there's almost no use in my going on to the next tournament, which is why I spend so much time at home.

It takes me longer, because I haven't the physical abilities of Palmer and Nicklaus, to restore myself after a tough tournament.

★ ★ ★

The mental strain, believe it or not, is as great as the physical strain. You need to be absolutely right both ways and the right mental frame of mind is that feeling of nervousness before you begin.

It happens at every level of golf.

I remember a fellow at Toronto Oakdale who was to play a match one day for the club championship.

He was supposed to tee off at 1 p.m. but he was there at nine in the morning, practising. After practising, he took a steam bath and headed back for another practice round.

His attitude was perfect.

"Let me know if you feel sick," I kidded him. "If you do I think I'll place a little wager on you."

GEORGE'S TIP

CROSSWIND

One thing to remember is to use the wind, don't fight it. If the wind is blowing from right to left, hit your ball to the right and let the wind carry it back. Many average golfers complain about the wind affecting their ball. But unless it is terribly strong wind, it won't, affect a well-hit ball. The reason it seems to affect it is that the average golfer uses a full swing and loses balance, which results in a hook or slice. Hit for accuracy, not distance, and use the wind to your advantage.

Hawks Edge Bucks; Play Here Tonight

TERRY HARPER
. . . shoulder injury

Chicago Black Hawks will try again tonight to get their heavy artillery on target against Western Hockey League opposition.

Bobby Hull and the rest of the National League Hawks will unlimber their shooting irons at 7:30 before a sell-out crowd at Memorial Arena, taking dead aim at Portland Buckaroos after barely managing to get home in front of the Bucks Friday night at Portland.

Humbled 5-4 Thursday night by Seattle Totems, the Hawks threw a strong defence in front of the Bucks and made a pair of early goals stand up for a 2-1 triumph.

Fleet Dick Meissner opened the scoring for Portland but Doug Jarrett evened the count for Chicago before the first period ended. Pit Martin drilled the winner for the Hawks early in the second session and the clubs waged a defensive battle the rest of the way.

Portland goalie Dave Kelly finished up with 23 saves against the big-leaguers while Dave Dryden was called to block only 12 drives at the Chicago nets.

HARPER INJURED

Scoring aces also had their troubles in a pair of other NHL exhibitions Friday while Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens were apparently playing for keeps in their pre-season battle at Boston.

Bruins edged the Canadiens 2-1 in a rugged contest that left both teams with injuries.

Montreal defenceman Terry Harper was escorted into the boards and emerged with a concussion and either a fractured or separated shoulder. Boston forward Ross Lonsberry suffered an 11-stitch cut on a finger and defenceman Bobby Orr injured his hand.

Toronto Maple Leafs won their ninth game in 12 outings by defeating New York Rangers 1-0 in Kitchener.

The game between Boston and Montreal featured a fight between Orr and Montreal's Ted Harris. A second brawl involved several players from each team, including Orr and Harris.

BRUIN SNIPERS

Ken Hodge and Phil Esposito, obtained by Boston in an off-season trade with Chicago, scored for the Bruins. Yvon Cournoyer picked up Montreal's only goal.

Officials called 34 penalties in the Bruins-Canadiens game. There were nine majors for fighting, two misconducts and one game misconduct.

Jim Pappin scored at 2:31 of the first period to complete a passing play with rookie Wayne Carlton and veteran defenceman Allan Stanley to give Toronto its victory.

All-Stars Sparked By Meyers, Rudyk

The All-Stars have humbled the league champions and now the four Vancouver Island Hockey League teams are ready to launch another season of league play.

Playing at the Sports Centre Friday night in the sixth annual all-star tussle of the former Esquimalt Hockey League, the league champion Tudor Monarchs were crushed 7-2 by a team selected from the rest of the circuit.

Bill Rudyk and Larry Meyers each scored two goals to pace the stars, who forged into a 5-0 lead before Orv Coulter fired the first Tudor tally.

Steve Merriman also counted for the Monarchs while Dave Parkes, Red Horner and Len Desjardins completed the scoring for the winners.

All-Stars were tagged with the only two penalties of the fast-moving game but Monarchs were unable to take advantage of the extra-man situations.

Monarchs will start defence of their title next Friday when they open league play against University Vikings at 7:45. Queen's Own Rifles and Stockers will tangle at 9:15 in the other half of the twin bill.

Friday's summary:

FIRST PERIOD
1. All Stars, Larry Meyers (Nick Nicoletti) 8:19.
2. All Stars, Bill Rudyk (Ted Sarkissian) 16:56.
No penalties.

SECOND PERIOD
3. All Stars, Len Desjardins (Sarkissian) 1:57.
4. All Stars, Rudyk (Brian Whitten) 7:19.
5. All Stars, Dave Parkins (Desjardins) 9:35.
6. Monarchs, Orv Coulter (Doug Couch, George Dunstan) 17:08.
Penalty — Tom Mullins (AS) 4:34.

THIRD PERIOD
7. All Stars, Red Horner (Desjardins) 1:00.
8. All Stars, Meyers (Don Lancaster, Nicoletti) 4:25.
9. Monarchs, Steve Merriman (Don Robinson) 12:27.
Penalty — John Merrifield (AS) 16:33.

Chinese Brothers Form Soccer Act

VANCOUVER — During recent days, there has been much celebration in Vancouver's Chinatown for the 56th anniversary of the Republic of China.

The 19,000 Chinese citizens of Vancouver now have another reason for celebrating.

The same can be said of coach Bobby Robson of the Vancouver Royal Canadians' soccer team. During the past week, Robson has been negotiating with Cheung Chi Doy. Cheung, known as the "King of Chinese Football," has been in Vancouver as the guest of the Royals and to finalize contract negotiations which started last May.

When Robson was appointed to the Vancouper position, he remembered that he had played against Cheung Chi Doy when touring the Far East, with Fulham last year. The Hong Kong national impressed Robson with his goal-scoring abilities and Robson offered him a lucrative contract in North American professional Soccer.

TOP SCORER

Cheung, who is 5'9" and weights 160 pounds, was the leading goal scorer in the Crown colony during the past soccer season. He was awarded a trophy as the outstanding forward in Asian soccer.

This engagement for Cheung will not be his first contact with professional soccer. He spent one season with Blackpool of the English First Division and would have stayed in England but decided to return to Hong Kong owing to personal reasons.

Included in this signing by Robson will be Cheung Chi Doy's brother, Cheung Chi Wai, who was runner-up goal-scorer in Hong Kong last season.

Stars Suspend Holdout Goegan

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (CP) —Defenceman Pete Geogan has been suspended by Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League.

Manager-coach Wren Blair said the action was taken because the 32-year-old Geogan, drafted from Detroit Red Wings, has not signed a 1967-68 contract.

Blair said Geogan will be fined $50 a day and $500 a game starting next Wednesday

BACKERS BACK DOWN

Deep Freeze Thaws Frazier

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Frazier's "family" has had a change of heart about the elimination tournament to determine a new heavyweight champion.

When promoter Mike Malitz first proposed the tournament, Frazier's backers, the 200-plus Cloverlay Corp., said in effect "not us. We have the hottest property in the heavyweight field. Go fry your fish."

Apparently, Cloverlay and the unbeaten Frazier's trainer, Yancey Durham, have sensed the deep freeze which may envelop them if they don't get into the tourney, recognized by the World Boxing Association as the vehicle to determine a successor to deposed champ Cassius Clay.

Frazier has been tendered another invitation to join the elimination fun on an "if" basis, and his people appear ready to jump at the opportunity. They saw what could happen to a hot property when the WBA dropped their boy from No. 1 to 9 in the ratings after the tourney was given a cold shoulder.

OSCAR INJURES BACK

A back injury to Oscar Bonavena, the Argentine heavyweight who slaughtered Karl Mildenberger of Germany in a first-round tourney fight, has re-opened the door to Frazier, unbeaten winner of 17 straight bouts.

However, it was reported from Buenos Aires that Bonavena resumed training Wednesday after a four-day layoff because of his back. Dr. Roberts Paladine, the Argentine's physician who first suggested a cast, now says one will not be needed.

Durham said his group will consider joining the tournament "if we can select two opponents from the remaining three survivors, the second bout being for the title; select the time and place, and if the money is right . . ."

By money, Durham wants more than the $75,000 originally offered for each of the semifinal bouts, probably $125,000. If Quarry beats Patterson, Durham said he wants Thad Spencer and Quarry in that order with Jimmy Ellis the first title challenger. Should Patterson win, he wants Ellis and Patterson, then Spencer as the first challenger for the title.

Frazier meets Tony Doyle (18-4-1) of Salt Lake City here in a scheduled 10-rounder Oct. 17.

Curlers Seek New Sponsor For Cup Event

CALGARY (CP) — Two Canadian curling officials said Friday they have been told the Scotch Whisky Association has dropped sponshorship of the Scotch Cup world curling championship.

Bill Lumsden of Winnipeg, president of the Dominion Curling Association, indicated attempts are being made to secure Canadian sponsorship.

Charlie Scott of Calgary, secretary of the Southern Alberta Curling Association, said the Royal Caledonian Curling Club of Scotland is investigating new sponsorship.

The annual competition began in 1959. Canadian rinks won the first six titles. A U.S. rink won in 1965, a Canadian entry in 1966 and a Scottish rink the 1967 cup in Scotland in March.

DISTAFF DIVOTS

Todd, Lawson Top City Club Contests

Margaret Todd and Joan Lawson collected individual honors in women's competitions this week at city golf courses.

Mrs. Lawson won "A" division laurels in a medal round at Uplands, where other division winners were Thelma Perks and Doris Drummond.

Mrs. Todd was the leading "A" division swinger in a turkey contest at Victoria Golf Club. Leaders in other divisions in the turkey event were Frances McColl and E. MacPherson.

Distaff divoters at Glen Meadows staged a foursome event with Emma Silverberg and Mabel Wood combining for a net 85 and beating out Marg Sutton and Barbara Glassford for first place.

In button competition at the Meadows, Mary Robertson and Kay Criddle retained the jewelry by defeating Marg Sutton and Marjorie Bowerman.

First round of the Benning Cup event will be played Tuesday at Oak Bay with players starting at the following times:

100-1 PAYOFF

Big Reward For Faith In Red Sox

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Archibald Henderson, 55 Newport Beach, Calif., has collected $10,000 in a payoff on a 100 to 1 shot-Boston Red Sox to win the American League baseball pennant.

Henderson placed the bet — legal in Nevada — last March at the time Boston was figured by the bookmakers to place ninth, with 100 to 1 odds that it would take the pennant.

Henderson and his wife returned to Las Vegas to pick up the check from Sammy Cohen, owner of Santa Anita Race Book.

The Hendersons told Cohen the money will be placed in trust for their infant son, Archibald Jr.

Cohen said a 100 to 1 payoff in a case like this "is very rare — it may not happen again in 20 years."

Carlow, Watkins Top Senior Event

Cy Watkins of the Glen Meadows club and Gorge Vale's John Carlow captured top honors Thursday at Uplands in the final tournament of the year for members of the Vancouver Island Seniors' Golf Association.

Watkins earned the Bob Mayhew Trophy as he topped the handicap section with a net 68 while Carlow fired the day's best gross, a 76.

Winners of other awards were Jim Douglas, Pete McIntyre, Larry McCooey, Ed Williams, Bill Cole, Jim Castle and George Goodwin.

BACK ON THE SCENE

CRANBROOK (CP) — Jack Pratt, who first coached in the Western International Hockey League in the 1930s, has been named the new coach of Cranbrook Royals.

Claremont Aces Score Race Sweep

Claremont High School runners opened their cross-country season in fancy fashion Friday, galloping to easy triumphs in both girls' and boys' divisions.

Rob Irving covered the three-mile route in a record 15 minutes to pace Claremont to a sweep of the first five places in the boys' event.

With Jim Barker, Steve Parkes, Dale Stewart and Doug Yearwood following Irving across the line, Claremont finished with a perfect 15 points in the reverse-order scoring. Esquimalt's five-runner team was second.

The girls covered a 1.8-mile course and Chris Pearson ran away from her rivals, finishing 41 seconds ahead of another Claremont contestant, Elizabeth Lax.

Mona McMillan and Nadine Simpson gave Claremont the third and sixth places while Oak Bay teammates Leslie Kirkham and Jill Trelawney finished fourth and fifth, respectively.

Yanks Report Gate Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees reported an increase in attendance of 17,066 for the 1967 baseball season over that of 1966.

The Yankees drew 1,141,714 for home games in Yankee Stadium this year compared with 1,124,648 a year ago.

In an Associated Press survey earlier this season an error in addition gave the Yankees a 1967 attendance of 1,027,466.

The corrected figures increase the American League attendance to 10,930,839 for 1967 and the major league total to 23,874,800, compared to 25,182,209 a year ago.

Boycott by Negroes 'Would Be a Mistake'

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP)—The U.S. Olympic committee has not been approached about discrimination against Negro athletes, one of its officials says.

Miguel de Capriles, chief of the U.S. Olympic Committee Mission, said during a news conference at New Mexico State University Friday it would be a great mistake for Negro athletes to boycott the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City.

"Our history, certainly in the Olympics, on participation of all our people in regard to race and creed is so clearly self-evident, it's ridiculous to pay any credence upon any discriminatory situation," he said.

"It would be a great mistake if they did, and I don't think they would," he said. "It would be perfectly stupid to take a position of that kind. We've always had Negro participants."

Some west coast athletes say there might be a Negro boycott because of alleged discrimination.

THE TWO FACES OF ELECTRIC HEAT

They tell you:
- Electric heat offers just the kind of heat you want, where you want it.
- Next time someone promises lowest heating costs, ask him to put it in writing.
- Electric water heaters are as efficient as oil-fired water heaters.

We tell you:
- Any qualified heating contractor will verify that electricity adds hot air but doesn't remove stale air. That's why electric heated homes are often so stuffy.
- Any oil heat dealer would be pleased to give you a written estimate of the operating costs of an oil heat system. Electric heat costs up to 100% more than oil heat.
- It is a proven fact that oil heats water six times faster than electricity, and much more economically.

Robarts Shuns Debate In Ontario Vote Race

TORONTO (CP)—While television has been used more extensively in campaigning for the Oct. 17 Ontario election than at any time in history, one big factor still is missing.

Not once has Premier John Robarts faced either Liberal or New Democratic Party leaders. Liberal Robert Nixon and Donald MacDonald of the NDP have not met in public confrontation either, but it's the premier they really want to meet in live television debate.

Both Mr. Nixon and Mr. MacDonald have repeatedly challenged Mr. Robarts, but have backed away again when his acceptance is accompanied by a set of ground rules they don't find acceptable.

Despite this, all three are wooing television - viewing voters feverishly as well as criss-crossing the province continuously after more intimate contact.

LAVISH PROGRAMMING

As well as making full use of the extensive free-time broadcasting available to each of them, the parties are spending lavishly on special programs and spot advertisements.

Knowledgeable informants suggest the Conservatives are pouring upwards of $200,000 into television while the Liberals are expected to spend about $150,000. The NDP acknowledges a $3,000 television budget, but their central campaign headquarters handles only about 20 per cent of funds contributed to the party from all sources.

The premier—suave and solid—is using television to present this image to the viewing public.

The image is equally important to the Liberals and Mr. Nixon.

But, while also aiming at portraying responsibility, the Liberals are leaning heavily on his young, slender, handsome, aggressive personality as the image of the party.

The NDP is trying to stick with issues—housing, taxation, cost of living, education—with Mr. MacDonald emphasizing depth and detail while shying away from placing himself as the epitome of the party.

MOST ISSUES LOCAL

Most speeches by the leaders have dealt with local issues.

Mr. Robarts has tried—with little success—to make Confederation and Ontario's place in it a major issue, but both Mr. Nixon and Mr. MacDonald have ignored the gambit, maintaining that in a provincial election, provincial issues should be debated.

One Conservative campaign official last week was quoted as remarking that the Tories have aimed at a quiet campaign, banking in large part on not upsetting the quiescence of the electorate.

Three Parties Seek Jasper-Edson Seat

EDSON, Alta. (CP) — Candidates from the Progressive Conservative, New Democratic and Liberal parties have been nominated to contest the Jasper-Edson constituency west of Edmonton in a Nov. 6 federal byelection.

The candidates are Alan Sulatycky for the Liberals, Bob Christenson for the New Democrats and Douglas Caston for the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Caston, publisher of a weekly newspaper in Edson, won the Conservative nomination Friday night at a party meeting attended by about 200 persons here.

Mr. Christensen, 30-year-old Seba Beach, Alta., school teacher, ran unsuccessfully in the last Alberta election in Wetaskiwin constituency.

Mr. Sulatycky, a 29-year-old Whitecourt, Alta., layer, is a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan.

The byelection was made necessary by the resignation from the Commons of Conservative MP Hugh Horner earlier this year. Mr. Horner resigned to enter provincial politics and was elected to the Alberta Legislature.

CAMPNEY

Ex-Cabinet Minister Ralph Campney Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ralph Osborne Campney, 73, former Liberal defence minister in the St. Laurent government, died here Friday.

Campney had returned to his law firm after he lost his Vancouver Centre seat to the Conservatives in the 1957 federal election.

He was first elected to the Commons in 1949 and served as solicitor-general before being named defence minister in 1954.

After his defeat in 1957, he continued to take some part in Liberal affairs and corresponded with some of his former colleagues, including Prime Minister Pearson.

But he was careful not to become too deeply involved in politics.

"Politics is a jealous mistress," he once remarked. "If you are not careful, it will take up more of your time than you bargained for."

He is survived by his wife, Mary, and a son, Alan F. Campney. His first wife, Vera, died in 1961.

Relations Eyed

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) —Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman said today Russia might establish an embassy here soon. Malaysia is anxious to sell more rubber to the Soviet Union and also is considering establishing relations with other Eastern European nations.

Anti-Sub Device To Aid Fishermen

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence research board, in trying to improve the navy's submarine detection system, has developed a device which may immeasurably enlarge the catches of fishing fleets.

Scientists under 36-year-old Michael C. Eames at the board's Halifax establishment have built an underwater glider which can be towed deep under the ocean surface at 60 miles an hour by a ship or helicopter.

The capsule, called Moby—for model body or Moby Dick—is designed to carry the submarine detection gear which will be towed behind the naval hydrofoil boat now nearing the end of construction at Sorel, Que.

Mr. Eames said in an interview here Friday that a fast ship or helicopter could tow a sonar-equipped Moby ahead of the fishing fleet to detect schools of fish. Sonar, in effect, is underwater radar.

The fisheries department is already working on such a plan. Other agencies which have shown a keen interest, excluding the military of other countries, include the resources department's polar continental shelf project, the British and American institutes of oceanography, the University of Wisconsin centre for Great Lakes studies and the Scottish marine biological association.

Canada is ahead of the rest of the world in this field, officials say.

When development of the 60-knot, 200-ton hydrofoil began, a need arose for a sonar-carrying capsule which could be towed at high speed without the capsule breaking up or the towing cable snapping.

Several models were built. Moby IV is a 4,500-pound, full-scale model now being built for operation with the hydrofoil.

Mr. Eames, a native of Birmingham who came to Canada in 1952, said Moby IV is big enough to carry a man.

But the capsule could steer itself and there would be no point in putting a man 30 fathoms down to drive it.

However, other Moby types might someday be used for man's personal exploration of ocean floors.

'68 Pontiac Parisienne Sport Sedan

Get that built-to-the-road feeling that only Wide-Track Pontiac gives you.

Set the wheels further apart and you put more of the car between the wheels. Pontiac has done just that to give you a more cradled, Wide-Track ride. You sit steadier, straighter on curves and corners, enjoy a more comfortable, more controlled ride. Pontiac's built-to-the-road feeling is the most confident feeling you've known in any car.

Pontiac is in great shape for '68 with flowline styling that's excitingly new. Nineteen models from limousine luxury to sports car fun. And, because Pontiac is Pontiac, you can count on plenty of "extras" at no extra cost. Like the mighty new 327 cu. in., 210 hp engine now standard with all Pontiac V8s. Standard Six is 250 cu. ins. with 155 hp. Optional features? More of them and more satisfying than ever. Maybe you'll want to mate that standard 327 V8 with optional floor-mounted Hydra-Matic transmission that lets you shift manually or automatically just as you wish.

Discover the difference between just plain ordinary driving and Wide-Tracking. Pontiac for 1968 is more than a beautiful new car, it's a beautiful new experience.

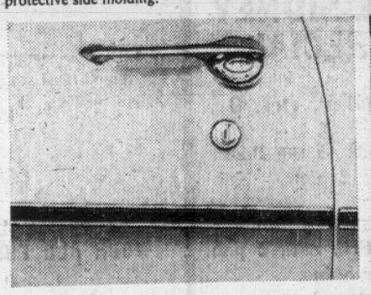

Pontiac's wider track means a better balanced ride with new, road-hugging stability.

'68 Wide-Track Pontiac

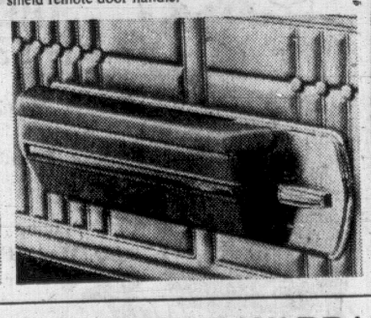

Pontiac builds in extras-at no extra cost!

Every Pontiac has to make it before we mark it GM

Parisienne series features vinyl-filled protective side molding.

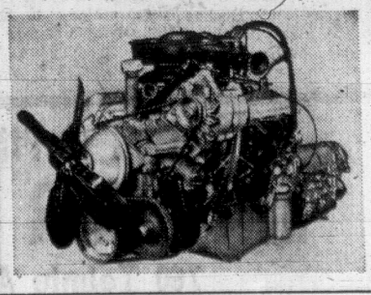

Elegant new safety arm-rests are foam-padded, shield remote door handle.

Concealed windshield wipers are standard with all full-size '68 Pontiacs.

Standard equipment V8 is 327 cubic inches, 210 hp; uses regular gas.

This Land Features Ucluelet Fisherman And His Rugged Life

Axel Tomren, a fisherman from Ucluelet, on the west coast, has a lonely, often dangerous job. He trolls for salmon on the high seas — beyond the "surfline".

The story of Axel, his family and his rugged life in one of the most picturesque parts of Canada, will be told in Beyond The Surfline on This Land of Ours series, tonight at 6 on Channel 2.

Axel went to sea at 15 and worked as a deckhand for other fishermen, running their boats and pulling their lines for a share of the catch. Today he is master of his own vessel, a $40,000 craft called Loricia, and when fishing is good Axel's skill, knowledge and experience earn him more than $20,000 during a seven-month season.

From July to September, when salmon return in the millions from the North Pacific, Loricia trails more than 70 hooks from her lines.

One hook, one fish. The equation makes it impossible for trollers to compete with net fishermen who scoop up hundreds of salmon at a time. To avoid nets, trollers fish beyond the surfline, the seaward boundary which net boats are not permitted to pass.

The troller fisherman is tough and fiercely competitive. For tinkering and experimenting he has no equal among fishermen. He relies on sophisticated electronics, blind hunches and a bewildering array of spoons, flashers, wobblers and plugs to fool the fish.

Axel's wife, Pat, begins her day twice. First at 3 a.m. when her husband goes to sea, and again at 8 a.m. when her children get up. The town of Ucluelet lives on the same schedule. More than 500 trollers make the town their summer headquarters.

Beyond The Surfline also visits with people like Lawrence Ives, a professional fisherman who these days prefers to work as a deckhand and let the young men handle the boats; and Jack Thomson, a keeper at the Amphitrite Point Light at the entrance to Ucluelet Harbor, who has stood by helplessly as ships driven in during winter storms were pounded to pieces and men drowned.

Looking for Nine

The National Football League game between the Los Angeles Rams and San Francisco 49ers at Los Angeles Coliseum Sunday, at 1:00 p.m. will be broadcast on Channels 7, 12 live and in color, starting with a 30-minute pre-game program at 12:30 p.m.

Both the Rams and 49ers won their first two regular-season games. The Rams also won their six pre-season games, giving them an eight-game victory streak going into this Sunday's Dallas game. In regular-season play the Rams defeated New Orleans and Minnesota and the 49ers beat Minnesota and Atlanta.

'They Know Me'

Jean-Paul Vignon will be the special guest of In Person tonight when host Al Hamel also introduces Edmonton singer and jazz pianist Tommy Banks; 16-year-old pop singer Barbara Gryfe; limbo dancer King Ricardo; and the 'In' Singers. Telecast time is 10:30 on Channel 2.

Vignon, a transplanted Frenchman who has made his home in New York for the past four years, appeared on In Person last winter, has been seen many times on the Ed Sullivan Show, and was host of the last Miss Universe Pageant telecast.

This summer, he completed a major role in the film The Devil's Brigade, starring William Holden, Cliff Robertson and Vince Edwards. Vignon plays a French-Canadian soldier-medic in this true story of wartime commandos in Italy.

Vignon, who is 28, decided to settle in North America because, he claims, "it's the only way you can make it internationally. In France, you can be a big star, but they don't know you anywhere else. Now, they know me in France because I'm successful in America. Entertainment is more professional over here, everyone is more businesslike."

'Merry-Go-Round'

"Road Signs on the Merry-Go-Round," a tri-faith one-hour special in color focusing on the writings of three of the world's major philosophers, will be presented by CBS News Sunday at 8:00 a.m. on Channel 7.

The program will offer an experimental use of visual imagery to interpret the writings of Martin Buber, Dietrich Bonhoeffer and Pierre Teilhard de Chardin.

There philosophers, who are also theologians, are considered in some quarters to have done more than any others to change the root understanding of religion and its relationship to the contemporary world.

Presented as a dramatic documentary, the broadcast features actors Bill Shust and Fern Sloane as Everyman and Everywoman in their search for the meaning of life.

Meet The Press

Betty Furness, special assistant to President Johnson for consumer affairs, will be the guest on "Meet the Press" Sunday at 5:00 p.m. on Channel 5 from Washington.

Interviewing Miss Furness will be Bonnie Angelo, of Time Magazine, Vera R. Glaser of North American Newspaper Alliance, NBC News correspondent Paul Duke, and Lawrence E. Spivak, producer and permanent panel member.

NBC News correspondent Neil Boggs will be the moderator.

AFL Football

The Kansas City Chiefs, 1966 champions of the American Football League, and the Miami Dolphins, the league's exciting, young second-year team, will clash in a national game to be colorcast over Channel 5 Sunday at 1:30.

Charlie Jones and Paul Christman will report the action from Kansas City's Municipal Stadium.

The powerful Kansas City team was upset last Sunday by the Oakland Raiders, 32-21. This was the first loss sustained by the AFL champions in regular-season play in almost a year when the same team, the Raiders, beat them. The Chiefs record this season now stands at two wins and one loss.

Their opponents, the Miami Dolphins lost last Sunday to the New York Jets, 29-7, and now hold a record of one win and two losses.

ADMIRAL Harriman Nelson (Richard Basehart), designer of the mammoth atomic submarine, Seaview, watches a series of computer panels to avoid "crush depth"—the point of no return—on ABC-TV's "Voyage to the Bottom of the sea", in color, at 7 p.m., on Channel 4, Sunday.

Barbara Not Always In Trouble

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Moore knew she was in trouble when she applied for the role.

"I looked like the all-American cheerleader," she said, "I stopped in the middle of the interview and said I can look as sexy and sultry as the next one."

Barbara did not wait to be called back by the producer.

"The next day I returned unannounced," she said. "I looked like Mata Hari. I didn't know what the reaction would be. I told the producer I just stopped by to say, 'Hello.' He asked, 'Where are you going? To the races?' I said, 'Yes.' He laughed."

Barbara was one of 600 girls who auditioned for the role of Lisa Rogers, secretary to Mr. Waverly on "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." series over the NBC Television Network Mondays.

"That weekend was the worst I ever spent in anticipation," said Barbara. "By Sunday night I was exhausted. I put everything in God's hand. I was supposed to know by 2 p.m. Monday if I got the role. The deadline passed, but I did not let myself believe that I had lost the part."

SOBER MOMENT

The phone rang at 6:30 p.m.

"I was told I had the part," she said. "I felt no disbelief. It was a sober moment, a warm, satisfied feeling. I was determined to prove myself worthy of this opportunity."

Barbara had not consulted her agent when she dropped in on the producer unannounced.

"Something told me to do that," she said. "I probably would have been advised not to. But I knew, if I didn't get the part, at least I had done all I could. The producer said, 'So few actresses have guts. When you meet such a one, it's earthshaking.'"

Though basically gentle, Barbara has guts.

"My father was killed in an auto crash when I was 14," she said. "I promised him I'd get an education. I decided right then and there to prepare for adulthood. I've been a fighter since I can remember. Defeat is just a momentary resting place in a long race. I've kept my eyes straight ahead rather than look sideways to see what anyone else is doing."

Thanks to this attitude and a bright mind, Barbara has done well so far.

She received almost straight A's in high school and a scholarship to UCLA. The green-eyed beauty also has won more than 18 beauty contests.

Hour-Long Special Recalls the Heyday Of Vaudeville

Barbra Streisand, who holds a unique and unchallenged place in the annals of today's television variety specials, stars in her latest vehicle, "Belle of 14th Street", a colorcast to be seen on CBC-TV, Tuesday, beginning at 9 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6. The CBS will carry the program on Channels 7 and 12. Wednesday, at 10 p.m., on

The hour special recalls the heyday of vaudeville in America, the glamor and the humor of that turn-of-the-century era, with Miss Streisand re-creating some classic acts and headlining the bill, singing famouse and lesser-known songs that typify the period.

Jason Robards, the noted Broadway and screen actor, makes his musical debut as guest star of the show, and veteran song-and-dance man John W. Bubbles is featured guest. Bubbles, a name in American showbusiness since the days of vaudeville, is in his 57th year as an entertainer.

Belle of 14th Street is produced in New York by Joe Layton, co-producer and choreographer of the earlier Streisand specials. He has also staged the musical numbers for this one. Mort Lindsey is arranger-conductor.

Rocket Robin

Rocket Robin Hood, the first major color animation series to be produced in Canada and featuring the voices of several well known Canadian actors, makes its debut on the CBC-TV network, Monday, at 5 p.m. on Channel 2.

The 52-week, half-hour episodes, produced by Al and Claire Guest, will be televised on both the CBC English and French television networks.

The series has also been sold to TV stations in the U.S., Latin America, Australia and Britain.

All character voices in the series are done by Canadian actors. The lead voice is Len Birman's. Others in regular roles are Paul Kligman, Gillie Fenwick, Carl Banas, John Scott, Ed McNamara, Chris Wiggins and Bernard Cowan (also dialogue director).

Rocket Robin Hood is devoted to the direct descendent of the original Robin Hood . . . in the year 3000. Besides Robin there are his Merry Men . . . Friar Tuek, Little John, Will Scarlett . . . Maid Marion and their principal adversary, the wicked Sheriff of N.O.T.T.

Of course, old Sherwood Forest is gone. Robin's new hiding place is a powered astroid called New Sherwood Forest, which moves through space and takes him beyond the 30th century.

Although Robin and his men look exactly as they did in the 12th century, their weapons are of the future. The Merry Men are archers, but their arrows can lasso people. In addition, they use a whole flock of dangerous-looking weapons . . . ray guns, laser beams, electrically charged rods and instead of relying on horses, roam around New Sherwood Forest in one-man space ships, eluding the Sheriff of N.O.O.T. (National Outerplanetary Terrestrial Territory) in his huge space battle cruiser.

Barry's Arizona

"Barry Goldwater's Arizona," picture story of a beautiful state and a well-known American's enthusiasm for it, will be presented as a CBS News Special Tuesday, at 10 p.m. on Channel 7.

CBS News Correspondent Harry Reasoner is the reporter. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate and former United States senator from Arizona, is the broadcast's guide. He knows his state well and recites its past and outstanding attractions articulately and knowledgeably.

The broadcast unveils the breathtaking beauty of modern Arizona, from its yawning and proud Grand Canyon to its sprawling, parched deserts, with Goldwater as a non-political civic booster. It also examines the slums and air pollution of Phoenix, the state's major urban centre, as well as the Navajo villages in the red cliffs of the northeast drylands.

Mostly the special focuses on the overwhelming beauty of a state rich in natural resources. Most people think of Arizona as a place of sunshine, sand and cactus. The broadcast shows its mountains, its deep canyons and its snow and water, the last a precious commodity, since less rain falls in Arizona than in any other state.

It also takes a close look at Arizona's economy, based mostly on tourism, farming, lumber and copper mining, and at the extreme architecture characteristic of its churches, public buildings and private homes.

'Fan's Eye View'

A look at the world of car racing, through the eyes of a racing buff, is offered on the weekly documentary series, "Spectrum," Thursday, at 10 p.m. in color over Channel 4.

Cameras accompany Seattle pianist Paul West to Pacific Raceway in Kent, Wn., and the Trans-American Championship race, for more than a "fan's-eye-view" of automobile racing.

West and his friends show their involvement in the spectacular sport when they talk with drivers and pit crews. "Spectrum" surveys other racing fans, some who have camped overnight to ensure good viewing spots and others armed with huge batteries of food and portable barbeques.

The final competition in a series of races for the Trans-Am tophies for manufacturers and drivers, the "Kent .500" entrants are "sedan" models. Similar to ordinary street cars, the high-powered engines are examined by West to show how they differ from street models.

In addition, West and his combo set a drive around the course to jazz music, to illustrate a musician's concept of racing.

SPY SHOWDOWN Henpecked George Appleby (Red) Skelton is recruited by master spy Harry Sneak (Fernando Lamas), firing the tennis-racquet "gun", in a comical spy chase ending in a Chinese restaurant on "The Red Skelton Hour" Tuesday, at 8 p.m., in color, on Channels 2 and 6. Among the distractions, flanking Sneak from left, are "harem girls" Beverly Hills and Kaye Farrington.

Jerry Van Dyke wasn't smiling while on location recently for NBC-TV's "Accidental Family." Scenes called for him to be trapped in a rock slide, dumped fully clothed in a mountain stream, and hanging upside down by one leg from a tree. "I thought this was a comedy," he wailed.

Tijuana: Vacation Variety Amid a Swinger's Paradise

LAST DAYS of the summer corrida season are enjoyed by tourists in Tijuana, Mexico, during October. Matador enters ring to meet first bull at 4 p.m. each Sunday.

The desire to visit Mexico, to eat a Mexican meal, to watch a bullfight or a jai alai game, is shared by many.

As a consequence, Tijuana, less than a half hour's drive from downtown San Diego with scarcely a pause at the border, is visited by more Americans than any other foreign city in the world.

Once across the border line the visitor is immediately exposed to a different country with different customs, different foods and a different language.

As a border town, this is a world all its own. To many first impressions are of shabby huts in the Tijuana River bed, the colorful but oft time garish appearance of Tijuana's main street, Avenida Revolucion, where visitors are exposed to some of the Southland's best import shops along with flashing neon lights announcing "marriages and divorces" and the billings of local burlesque shows.

With a little hunting and exploring, this area can become one of your favorite locations for vacationing pastimes, as there is endless opportunity to enjoy Mexico.

The ancient pageantry and drama of the bull ring, the thrill of thoroughbred racing and jai alai, the fun of bazaar shopping, Latin music and entertainment, gourmet dining and the mystery of a little known land of fishing, hunting and exploring combine to provide the visitor a complete world of vacation variety.

American's are often surprised with their purchasing power in this foreign city. Tijuana is a free port where the Mexican tariff is not imposed on imports and person re-entering the United States may bring back $100 in merchandise duty free, providing they have not claimed a similar exemption within 31 days.

BROWSERS' DELIGHT

Tijuana's colorful shops invite hours of browsing.

Everything from Mexican pottery, willow baskets and handmade jewelry to Swiss watches, exotic perfumes, Italian knits and other luxurious European imports are found in the shops along Avenida Revolucion. Side street shops are more native and fun to wander through.

Tourists are the main object of merchandising techniques along the main street. It is an overpowering scene of multiple choices.

A stranger's best guide is to visit first many of the shops surrounding the Foreign Club Building and Plaza on Avenida Revolucion between 3rd and 4th Streets.

An excellent Tourist Information Centre housed in a circular glass structure marks this location. Here import shops and art galleries of fine quality are clustered in a small area to provide you with a guide to merchandise found in shops further along Revolucion.

But don't miss the vivid and wonderful arcades where bargaining is half the fun of shopping. Adjacent to the Foreign Club is an unending selection in arcade shopping.

Wrought iron, leather goods, pinatas, Mexican glass and endless products are arrayed in over-lapping rows and stacks.

It takes a good eye to make a selection here, but browsing first and returning for a purchase may help you adjust to the conglomeration before making a final decision. Another arcade area that shouldn't be missed is directly across the street, down a flight of stairs almost hidden from sight.

Exploring is the key to good shopping in Tijuana and certainly half the fun. You are sure to find many other excellent shops along Avenida Revolucion.

OLD WORLD CAFES

Food ... don't pass up an opportunity to dine in this area of Mexico where you may find, perhaps unexpectedly, some of the most charming old world cafes and dining elegance of the entire area.

Visitors should also try some of the quality goods found in Mexico's bakeries. Pastry goodies, rolls and buns line racks in abundant variety in shops where the baker and brick ovens are in full view.

Sport, both spectator and participant, is a magnetic attraction to the Tijuana area. From horse racing and bullfights to fishing and golf, sporting activities are abundant, easy to reach and inexpensive.

One of the greatest drawing cards is Agua Caliente, a peaceful Mexican valley 2½ miles below the border. In the late twenties a hotel, gambling casino, race track and spa were developed here that rivaled Monte Carlo until 1935 when casino gambling was outlawed in Mexico.

Today the Caliente Country Club operates the championship golf course, and the race track has been developed into a unique and popular thoroughbred and greyhound race course.

Going to the races at beautiful Caliente is a favorite with many American visitors. Some 30,000 persons a week watch the horses run every Saturday and Sunday of the year. This is the only track in North America which offers racing the year around.

'MENTAL PUSHUPS'

Japanese Discover Breakfast Meetings

TOKYO — For the busy executive, there is no greater luxury than a leisurely breakfast.

Perhaps that is why businessmen's breakfast meetings, long popular in North America and Europe, have been adopted enthusiastically by the Japanese.

Introduced recently by the Hotel New Otani, these early-morning affairs are esteemed as a morale booster — a sort of "mental pushups for management."

Every morning between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. the 16th floor conference rooms of the posh hotel teem with business breakfasters — usually from middle management to top executives of Tokyo corporations — taking a fresh look at yesterday's and tomorrow's problems before those of today monopolize their thinking.

Setting the mood is the sound of singing birds piped into the public areas of the hotel and the intimate groups can enjoy real birdsongs if they care to take a stroll in the hotel's spacious gardens before or after breakfast.

There are several reasons for holding business meetings early in the morning. For one thing, traffic is lighter and it's easy to get around. The air is fresher, too, encouraging clear thinking.

Some people are slow in getting down to work, especially on "the morning after," as one office manager put it. "Instead of sharpening pencils for the first hour, why not sharpen our wits?"

Of course, early morning meetings on business premises are common but holding them in a hotel lends distinction and also assures a satisfying breakfast efficiently served.

Furthermore, the executive always finds a dozen matters clamoring for attention as soon as he arrives at the office, and even if he is in conference he will probably be interrupted by messages and phone calls.

That is why some companies, even those with ample facilities of their own, prefer to hold important gatherings away from the office, where they can concentrate on the subject at hand.

In the summer it is not unusual for management groups to take a dip in the hotel pool after a breakfast meeting.

Overseas Tourist Spending More On Canada Visits

TORONTO—While Americans are naturally Canada's biggest tourist customers, their ratio of spending has now been surpassed by visitors from overseas.

This was revealed in a study by the travel research branch of the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information which showed expenditures of travellers from abroad, mainly from Western Europe, had grown from $45 million in 1960 to $110 million last year.

It represents a whopping 244.4 gain in the six-year period. By comparison U.S. spending rose from $375,100,000 in 1960 to $730 million in 1966 for a percentage gain of 194.4 or less than double.

The study also showed that of the 410,763 overseas arrivals in 1966—261,261 of these via the U.S.—Ontario received 228,033 or 55.51 per cent of the total who spent $61,100,000 on holiday pleasures.

Open House Sunday At Bastion Theatre

Bastion Theatre is holding Open House at the new premises, 1840 Blanshard Street from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday.

The public is invited to tour the ground-floor building.

Visitors may also find they have arrived in time to look in on a rehearsal of Lights Up Again, the musical revue which opens Wednesday at McPherson Playhouse and stars Marge Bridgeman, Margaret Martin, Don McManus, Bill Hosie, Nancy Watt and Glenn MacDonald.

AND WATCH OUT FOR CATS

Sign Language Known Only to Natives on Our Gulf Island Maze

Signs play a large part in the way of life on the Gulf Islands. They lead the way to everyting but the public beaches.

An exasperated tourist on Pender Island complained he had spent two fruitless days looking for a public beach. There were signs along the way, he admitted, but they led nowhere.

●

This problem is not peculiar to Pender. The Gulf Islanders know where the public beaches are, but they ain't tellin' no strangers. Beaches yes. Public no.

An example is the public beach near Beddis subdivision, probably Salt Spring's finest. Signs point out the way but tend to disappear at the beach itself. We looked for several days, always ending up at the end of a road, a rocky pinnacle 400 feet above sea level.

●

We had the choice then of contemplating the setting sun (it was too late to swim anyway) or observing bird life in the tops of the Douglas firs below.

We finally found it. (You reach it through a gate cleverly disguised as the entrance to a cow pasture). In answer to a question, a resident nearby said

"How would you like having a bunch of unwashed kids shouting and drowning next to your house?"

We took our child home and washed him in rain water.

There are other signs of the ridiculous times on the Gulf Islands

by Ed Gould

On Bob Evan's dog farm near Ganges there is a sign proclaiming the training of sheep dogs. On the very same sign post is another sign warning of the dire penalties that will be inflicted on any woollen-picking dog caught molesting Evans' own sheep!

Sprinkled through miles of bush near Beaver Point are hand-lettered signs prohibiting shooting or hunting because of "grazing horses."

The horseman involved complains that more than one hunter has grazed his horses while hunting deer.

Cat lovers are prevalent as the cats themselves on Old Scott Road. A sign warns: Watch For Cats. One driver, a feline hater, said "I always watch for them. But they're too darned fast for me!"

●

Meanwhile, a St. Mary Laker selects his uninvited callers with care. His lawn sign reads Trespassing by appointment only!

A "private" war has ended in a truce among residents of high-faluting Sunset Drive near Vesuvius.

Seems every other resident was a retired wing commander, general or captain. And each of these worthies had duly noted his status on his rurla mail box.

●

One low caste Sunset Driver de-escalated this military poopery by prefacing his rank before his name as, Private Joe Blow (ret.)!

But for sheer dogged ingenuity, the prize for signing must go to the Salt Springer who has scared trespassing yachtsmen off his pier for years with sing lettered, R.C.M.P.

It stands for Reserved — Charles Mouat Property!

March Deadline Set For Indian Builders

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indians have to meet a March 31 deadline in the building of 20 new houses or lose the department grant.

In order to meet the challenge the band council has hired a professional builder from Vancouver.

Bill Boychuk's job will be to act as project supervisor.

Abner Thorne and his housing committee are hoping all the construction work can be done by Indian labor.

The houses are to be built on the Boys Road sub-division and this week gangs have been busy setting lines for the installation of city sewer service.

Boys Road sub-division will also get city water.

Already there has been a six-month delay in getting the project off the ground but Mr. Thorne said Friday: "Ordering and purchasing of materials will be the only possible holdup now and it is hoped there will be no more stumbling blocks."

In April at the time of mass protests by Cowichan Indians about their poor housing conditions protest committee chairman Abraham Joe estimated 80 new houses were needed immediately to meet the shortage.

Federal authorities have now pledged financial support to build these houses over a four-year period — if the band can mee the March deadline.

Reserve land north and east of Boys Road has in past years been subject to flooding but band manager Ross Modeste says the new sub-division will not face this problem.

S. W. Simpson of the department of labor has approved one four-month pre-apprenticeship carpentry training program for the Cowichan band.

Chairman of the Cowichan's community planning committee Abel Joe said Friday the course, to be held on the reserve, must have an enrolment of 10 to 12 students.

Mr. Joe said he is confident he can get at least the minimum enrolment.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

District Hospital Gets Ottawa Grant

CAMPBELL RIVER—The federal government has approved a $54,853 grant for this district's hospital.

The announcement was made in Ottawa by Health Minister Allan MacEachen.

The grant will assist in constructing an extension to the existing hospital, which will provide an enlarged emergency department and an additional 25 hospital beds.

The new construction is expected to be completed by March, 1968.

★ ★ ★

PORT ALBERNI—The provincial government will pick up part of the cost of land for hospital parking lots but not for nurses' residences.

This emerged when the regional hospital board here discussed financing for a new nurses' residence. The present residence is outmoded and would cost more to update than it is worth.

Alberni-Clayoquot hospital board now plans to purchase a building used by the sisters teaching at Smith Memorial School and adapt it as a residence.

★ ★ ★

CAMPBELL RIVER—Options on land for the proposed new arena here have been obtained.

But they can be cancelled if electors do not approve the arena referendum.

That is the word from R. C. Rathie, director of the district's recreation commission.

Site for the new complex is Second Avenue and Dogwood. It would include a hockey and skating rink.

★ ★ ★

LAKE COWICHAN— More than 200 applications have been made for night courses here with the most popular program being one to help women lose weight.

Other popular courses are English for New Canadians and a music program.

Course organizers hope that anyone knowing New Canadians will tell them the language program is available.

Vocational courses centre on the logging industry and later this year it is intended to start a heavy duty mechanics course.

Also planned for later is a seminar-type course involving adults on adolescence and problems of maturity.

Academic subjects for persons wishing to complete their high school study is also available and the correspondence courses are being continued.

One course that proved popular in previous years is not offered this year — Chinese cooking. No instructor has been found who can teach the subject.

Educationists Watching School

NANAIMO — A school with a radical precast design is going up here.

It is Wellington junior secondary school — a pentagon-shaped building with arms extending from each of its faces.

The department of education is carefully studying the construction because it could set a trend that will be followed elsewhere in the province in future.

The walls are of pre-stressed, pre-fabricated concrete made in North Vancouver and put in place by a 65-ton mobile crane, the biggest on the Island.

Toronto uses similar techniques and 11 schools have been built this way in California. The process is called Standard Construction Systems Development.

Two arms of the building, costing $672,000, are being erected.

Waterway Tunnel To Be Lined

Work will start in mid-November on concreting the walls of the water district's five-mile tunnel to Sooke Lake.

Hardrock miners will discontinue boring at the Sooke Lake end of the tunnel to allow the concreting to be done. However work from the Goldstream end will continue.

Water commissioner Ron Upward said Friday the mining of the tunnel is expected to be completed by spring of next year when the remaining 3,250 feet of rock should be bored through.

The new tunnel is being made to tap the water supply in Sooke Lake and other reservoir lakes in the watershed. The present outmoded delivery system makes it possible to tap only one-quarter of the water supply.

The concreting of the entire tunnel will be done over three years and then a pipeline of creosoted wooden staves will be connected through the tunnel. It is expected to be done during 1970.

Man Named Smith Getting Nod In Government House Derby

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes retires at the end of his month but federal Labor Minister Nicholson no longer is the leading candidate to succeed him.

Mika

He's way, way back as a very dark horse fourth choice.

Ottawa has not yet made a final selection but the leading contender is James Bruce Smith, and if you haven't heard of him then you're in very large company.

Because Mr. Smith is one of those publicity-shy individuals who can attain a number of fairly prominent positions without anyone being very much aware of him. However, he's known by the right people in Ottawa and Premier Bennett is understood to be favorably inclined to visiting him in Government House.

So, socialites, here's a few notes:

NAVY MAN

Mr. Smith was born in Vancouver 54 years ago, served as a commander in the Second World War, married Ann Critchley, daughter of a brigadier-general, and they have three daughters.

Although a member of the Vancouver Stock Exchange and the B.C. Bond Dealers Association, Kelowna is his stamping grounds where he's the president of Okanagan Investments and some other firms.

He was an honorary aide-de-camp to Frank Ross when he was lieutenant-governor and his very posh 11-room lakefront home at Okanagan Mission was designated a temporary government house in 1958 when Princess Margaret stayed there for three days' rest during her centennial year tour (one of the many B.C. centennials that is.)

A yachtsman and golfer, he also is a member of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, an Anglican and includes among his numerous membersip cards one from a famous London, Eng., club (Bath).

And he currently is president of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce in which capacity he's made news twice this summer — opposing the Carter royal commission report on taxation and the shorter work week.

If he gets the keys to Government House, he'll be the first man from the Okanagan area to hold the post and only the third from the interior throughout the province's history.

NEWSPAPERMAN

Some distance behind him, there's a newspaperman in the running as a second possibility. Gordon Hamilton Southam, three years younger, also an Anglican, yachtsman and London club member (Reform) who served as an artillery captain in Europe and has striped-pants experience too as a former ambassador to Poland.

Mr. Southam, who lives in Vancouver and is the member of a family which owns a chain of Canadian newspapers that generally support the Conservative party, is considered to be a Liberal-leaning maverick.

Apparently third on the list is John Valentine Clyne, also of Vancouver, the 65-year-old chairman of the MacMillan Bloedel empire and director of numerous corporations since his resignation in 1957 as a judge of the B.C. Supreme Court.

Very far behind now, but not entirely out of sight, is Mr. Nicholson who was the front runner for almost a year.

He's been pushed back by the political situation. Representing the toss-up riding of Vancouver Centre, he can't be spared for a byelection. Also, it is said, he's so angry over the poor reaction to his recent NHA mortgate interest increase that he wouldn't take the job at the moment because some smart alec would be bound to interpret it as a kick upstairs to get him out of the way.

J. B. SMITH
. . . publicity shy

PM'S CHOICE

However, a fairly wealthy businessman in his own right and with all the dignified appearance that flowing white hair can give a man, it's believed that Prime Minister Pearson would like most of all to give him the honor — if he only could.

So, if you're in a betting mood, it looks like the odds are that mail next month to the vice-regal address should be sent in the name of a man by the name of Smith.

Poor chap. Fainted dead away when his electrical contractor told him how little it would cost to do something about the outdoor lighting. So much for so little! Why don't you talk to your contractor about outdoor lighting. It makes the yard a safer, more pleasant place to be after dark.

STOP INJUNCTIONS NOW!

Injunctions are a legitimate and practical recourse provided by the law to prevent irreparable damage being done by one party to another. They were never intended for use in a labour dispute.

EX PARTE INJUNCTIONS ARE A GROSS ABUSE!

Imagine climbing into the ring with a heavyweight . . . with both hands tied behind your back. That's what an "ex parte" injunction tossed into the middle of a labour dispute does to organized labour in British Columbia. It effectively emasculates labour's right to bargain with the employers . . . and the trade union act permits it.

MUST WE PUT UP WITH THIS INJUSTICE?

Clearly the law must be changed to prevent the perversion of a legitimate, democratic process. For the sake of all our prosperity, the normal, healthy dialogue between labour and management must not continue to be poisoned by an unjust application of injunctions. We cannot allow labour-management relations to become enmeshed in legal procedures and technicalities. Last year, 17 trade unionists in British Columbia were jailed. How many more honest, dedicated citizens like these will suffer the same indignity before this abuse of the law is corrected?

We urge you to put an end to the abuse of injunctions in labour disputes. Sign our petition and let's put JUSTICE back into our labour laws.

TAKE THE SHACKLES OFF LABOUR!

BITTER HOUSE ATTACK

Sharp Called 'Mouse in a Den of Lions'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs portrayed Finance Minister Sharp Friday as a man who preaches restraint in public and submits to spend-thrift colleagues in the privacy of cabinet.

"A mouse in a den of lions," offered Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) amid a shower of uncomplimentary remarks aimed at the finance minister.

"A passenger in a runaway hearse . . . rapidly proceeding to the edge of the precipice."

The fourth day of the Commons debate on the June 1 budget was a day for Mr. Sharp to sit and take it.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings) said Mr. Sharp "spoke with a forked tongue" when he asked Canadians to contain their demands on the economy, while refusing any details of government spending cuts, if indeed any had been made.

The opposition has come back with stinging retorts about government spending since Mr. Sharp entered the debate Wednesday to ask for a major voluntary attack on inflation.

In his speech, Mr. Sharp promised a deficit in 1967-68 much lower than the projected $740,000,000 deficit estimated for 1966-67.

On a television program Wednesday night he said details on spending cuts of $650,000,000 already made by treasury board for 1967-68 would not be revealed.

Heward Grafftey (PC—Brome-Missisquoi), referring to a travelling "political poll" he conducted across Canada during the summer, said there is a general feeling "that as a result of its ill-timed and ill-considered fiscal, monetary and spending policies, this government has destroyed the options open to it and in fact is mismanaging the economy."

Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan-Revelstoke) said government spending programs have left out deserving projects in British Columbia.

The province had failed to get aid for the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and hydro developments, although Ottawa had helped build Saskatchewan's Gardiner dam, the St. Lawrence Seaway and was paying the shot for the proposed Prince Edward Island causeway.

Another independent poll, this one by independent J. A. Mongrain (Trois-Rivieres) came into the debate. Mr. Mongrain said that seven per cent of his 23,000 constituents who replied to a questionnaire were 6-to-1 against Quebec separatism.

They were equally opposed to new welfare measures and in favor of retaining capital punishment in certain cases.

Two Liberal MPs entered pleas with their government.

Grant Deachman (Vancouver Quadra) asked sweeping assurances that the mining industry will not lose special tax treatment in any reforms based on the report of the Carter royal commission on taxation.

And Robert Stanbury, whose urban York-Scarborough riding has more votes than any other in Canada, renewed his plea for a federal department of housing and urban affairs.

ANTI-RED EDITOR MURDERED

SAIGON (Reuters) — A gunman on a speeding motorcycle today shot to death the editor of an anti-Communist Chinese-language newspaper in Saigon's Chinese sector of Cholon.

Police said the killer shot 47-year-old Phong Chung Kak in the back with a pistol.

The editor slumped to the ground in a street only 200 yards from the office of his paper, A-chau (Asia).

A spokesman for the newspaper—the biggest in Cholon with a circulation of 12,000—said that three days ago it received a letter from the Viet Cong vowing "revenge" for an article it published condemning a terrorist bombing of the Nationalist Chinese Embassy here Sept. 19.

Earlier this week the head of a Cholon Chinese school was murdered.

Newsman Changes Networks

A newsman who began his career on Vancouver Island will head CTV's national news Ottawa bureau.

Tom Gould, 36, resigned recently from the CBC to protest the reporting of an off-the-record dinner speech by former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker. He joins the other Canadian network Oct. 16.

Mr. Gould's first job was as a reporter with the Nanaimo Free Press. He worked for the Victoria Daily Times, the Vancouver Sun and west coast radio stations before the Sun assigned him to the press gallery in Ottawa in 1958.

Gould served as syndicated reporter for FP Publications before joining the CBC in 1962. He has travelled most of the world on news assignments.

Indian PM Seeks Closer Ties In East Europe

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Indian Prime Minister Gandhi will seek closer economic co-operation between India and East Europe during a two-week tour starting Sunday.

Mrs. Gandhi, slated to arrive in Warsaw, Poland, Sunday night, will make goodwill visits to Poland, Bulgaria and Romania. She will also make brief stops in Belgarde, Yugoslavia, Cairo, Egypt, where she is expected to discuss the prospects for Middle East peace.

On the way to Warsaw she was due to meet Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin during a short stopover at Moscow Airport. Indo-Pakistani relations were likely to figure prominently in the planned discussions in view of the fact that Pakastani President Mohammed Ayab Khan recently visited Russia.

Economic Lag

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's Communist party chief, Walter Ulbricht, strongly accused his country's economic and technical enterprises of foot-dragging. In a speech reported Friday by the party newspaper Neues Deutschland, Ulbricht said some enterprises have gained profits without meeting production quotas and automation of key metal industries is being carried out by only one per cent annually.

Arthur Mayse

Unless we have among us those who know more than they care to reveal, there is not one shred of tangible, scientific proof to indicate that a race of giant ape-like creatures from earth's remote past has somehow survived in remote fastnesses of the Pacific Northwest. Yet from his mountain of non-evidence, Rene Dahinden has defined Sasquatch habits and, within wide limits, worked out a population estimate.

Between Alaska and northern California, he suggests, from 250 to an extreme of 1,000 Sasquatch may rove, feed and mate in small separate bands. He favors the lower figure.

Legend and reports of sightings have helped him fill in his map.

Native accounts hint at two Sasquatch types, the most frequently reported, a hair-covered biped that stands six or eight feet tall. The other and rarer is said to attain a fearsome 16 feet. Sasquatch-hunter Dahinden asks, could these be child and parent?

Rene does not often hear of a sighting from those concerned. Usually, first word comes to him from a relative or friend to whom the principal has confided his incredible tale.

That, he says, while the second of his chubby little cigars expires in the ashtray, is how he learned about the hunter who caught a flicker of movement behind a brush clump in a mountain meadow above the North Thompson.

★

A bear, perhaps. He slipped his rifle safety and began a half-circle that would bring him to the far side of the thicket.

What he saw was no bear.

He raised the rifle; and with finger on trigger, was stayed by a doubt that others claim to have encountered. It wasn't a woman . . . couldn't possibly be . . . and yet . . .

The creature had been feasting on berries. Presently it shambled off; and except for a later screaming in the woods below, that was the end of an experience he remembers as a waking nightmare.

Strange droppings have been reported, but never brought in. Neither has a photograph that sheds any light on the mystery.

"But," Rene points out, "people who travel in that kind of country don't often take cameras along. If there does happen to be a camera, it's usually down in the bottom of a man's pack."

There are, however, those outlandish tracks. They have been reported from as far north as Alaska, and Rene feels they offer the best hope of proving or disproving the existence of the Sasquatch.

Last spring, he arranged with a logger who lives by a Humboldt County access road of uneasy reputation to pass the word when next a heavy-footed chimera locally dubbed 'Mr. Bigfoot' left his spoor.

★

Between dark and dawn, three sets of great, flatfooted tracks had been printed deep in the dirt road. They emerged from a rocky draw, ambled along the road, abandoned it for open, low brush, then came back along the road to stop by a box of tractor treads and another of bolts cached beside it.

This ironware had been tossed about in rage or play, presumably by 'Mr. Bigfoot' with his 52-inch stride, and two lesser creatures of his breed that could be mate and child.

Explain it? In this matter, I maintain a state of suspended disbelief. But I think a serious, determined and sustained attempt should be made to come at the truth. Further, if an expedition is ever launched (the only one to date was a quicky California venture financed by two Texas oilmen in 1959) I hope Sasquatch-hunter Rene Dahinden will be included the party.

According to him, this hoax, myth or astounding fact has so far cost him his wife, two sons, and something over $10,000.

He lights another cigar, and produces a final statement. This one is attributed to a Boris Porshnev, in 1958 director of modern history at the USSR Academy of Sciences, and deals with the apemen reputed to haunt the Pamir Mountains:

"It is not a question of belief — we know there are such creatures!"

LUCKY SHOT? Not really. Dale Marcy (right) of Portland, Ore., one of North America's top archers, could have hit a worm in that apple in the eye if he wanted. Fred Usher, president of Victoria Bowmen, is smiling because he knows it. Mr. Marcy is in Victoria this weekend to present a film lecture on bow hunting in Africa tonight and a clinic for local bowmen Sunday. His bow is the latest in the field, $175 worth of precision-engineered wood and glass. (Irving Strickland Photo)

If You're Seeking Fun Just Follow the Arrows

By DON VIPOND

Labour Day three years ago was a special day with an appropriate title for Dale Marcy.

For eight hours that day he crawled through the gullies of the Little Delta River in Alaska stalking a giant cariboo.

I was worth it. After a two-mile game of hide-and-seek he bagged what was then a world's record animal, a moment of triumph for any hunter.

For Dale it was even more because he hunts with a bow. One of the top archers in North America, he bagged the cariboo with a shot covering just 17 yards.

The 44-year-old, from Portland, Ore., is in Victoria to present a free film lecture tonight at the Dockyard Recreation Hall.

CLINIC SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon he will conduct a private clinic for the local archers who are members of the Victoria Bowmen.

It was 22 years ago when Dale was a Nevada State trooper that he was assigned the job policing a hunging area restricted to bowmen.

They asked him to join and "I had so much fun I've been at it ever since."

Both a hunting and a target archer, Dale has bagged deer — three different species — moose, cariboo, bear, mountain goat, cougar and a host of small game.

His score includes birds too. He has taken pheasants, ducks and geese on the wing.

BLEND OF SKILLS

Bow hunting is a blend of skills, he explains. First the stalk and then the question of accuracy.

"I like to get inside 30 yards or even 20 before shooting."

Archery isn't for the pot hunters. On average a bowman gets a deer for every six years he hunts.

"Those are full-time professional deer and you're a part-time amateur hunter. That's why it's a real sport. If you're going out for meat, you better buy it."

Marcy can hit a dime flipped in the air when demonstrating trick shooting. It's not just a gift. It comes from three hours a day at practice.

BOW CHANGED

The days of Robin Hood and the yew long bow are long gone.

Today's bows are a composite of wood and glass, recurved at the ends for added power. Arrows can be glass, wood or aluminum.

Dale's film tonight deals with bow hunting in Africa. It starts at 8 p.m. at the Dockyard Recreation Hall, on Admirals Road opposite Naden.

The public is welcome but those interested are asked to call Fred Usher, president of the Victoria Bowmen, at 384-4289, and let him know they are coming so he can plan accommodation.

MERGER POSTPONING ELECTIONS?

If Sidney and North Saanich vote in favor of amalgamation on Nov. 7, there probably won't be any December elections for the two municipalities.

An official of the department of municipal affairs said today the elections could be postponed until mid-March when the letters patent are made out for the new municipality.

The two councils asked the department for a ruling on the matter, with a view to requesting a postponement of elections if amalgamation is supported.

In March ratepayers would elect members to one council.

Walkout Ended At BCFP

One walkout is over in Victoria but another remains unsettled.

Employees of B.C. Forest Products plywood mill decided Friday afternoon to return to work Tuesday after hearing from officials of the International Woodworkers of America who met management earlier.

The 400 men stopped work Wednesday protesting working conditions.

"The company agreed to certain propositions but refused final agreement until the men returned to work," said union president Murray Drew.

MUST BE THE SALT AIR

Late Boozers More Decorous In Victoria Than Vancouver

How would you like a job where you have to tell drunken clients, some of them rowdy, they can't buy what they want most — more booze?

This is the dicey task of the liquor store clerk.

The law prohibits him selling anything to people who he believes to be intoxicated.

It's a decision he has to make and a tough one too because drunks, or near drunks, show all the behavior patterns other people do.

Liquor store managers in Greater Victoria report the problem is not so serious.

But nine out of 10 after-midnight patrons of Vancouver's late closing liquor stores are drunk, a Liquor Control Board delegate told the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention in Penticton Friday.

"And the other 10 per cent are bootleggers or taxi drivers calling for people who can't make it," said James Dunn, an employee in a late-closing store in the heart of Vancouver's skid-road district.

His is one of three Vancouver liquor stores open to 2 a.m. five nights a week.

"Often it's a matter of judging degree of impairment — these guys are all drunk," Mr. Dunn said in commenting how store employees decide whether or not to sell liquor to customers.

"The majority of these customers after midnight are difficult to handle and are to some degree impaired."

He was speaking during debate on a resolution urging the government to set midnight as closing time at all liquor stores.

The convention's resolution noted that after midnight service "puts great strain and responsibility on employees as they must make quick decisions" on matters involving impairment.

Locally most liquor stores close at 6 p.m. with some 9 and 11 p.m. closings.

But trouble with customers? Very little, report district store managers today.

In relation to the thousands served, it's negligible.

"Let's face it, we have a little different clientele," said one manager.

"Now and again," said another, "we have to tell someone to go and take a walk around the block and come back next week."

MARIJUANA CHARGES

Two youths today were charged with possession of marijuana.

Brian Hobbs, 20, of 530 Craigflower, and Garry Nieman, 19, of 131 Sims, were arrested by RCMP officers Friday night in separate incidents.

They were remanded to Tuesday for plea in magistrate's court.

Hobbs, represented by lawyer Alan Bigelow, was released on his own recognizance. Bail was set at $1,000 for Nieman.

Yvan de Montigny, 26, of Abbotsford, was sentenced to one year for obtaining goods by false pretenses.

Court was told de Montigny purchased a $31.95 coat from Tip Top Tailors, 1412 Douglas St., with a worthless cheque Sept. 30.

He asked the court for help, saying "I'm not really a bad guy, there's just something wrong. I need help to find what it is."

Francis Grills, 17, of 508 Ellis was charged with robery with violence. The charge arose out of a purse-snatching incident Sept. 30.

The case, which was transfered from juvenile court, was remanded to Tuesday.

AA Meeting Here Today

More than 200 delegates from Vancouver, New Westminster, Seattle and Victoria are attending a weekend conference of Alcoholics Anonymous which opened today at the Ingraham Hotel.

There will be a pubiic meeting in the hotel from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday at which ex-alcoholics will tell of their experiences.

Fun Centre Bid Call Next Year

Saanich hopes to call tenders for a $100,000 senior citizens' centre early next year, Coun. Edith Gunning said today.

She is chairman of a special projects committee handling details of the centre, which will be built in Hampton Park. It is part of the $1.25 million recreation program.

Plans should be complete this year, she said.

Earlier this week, architect John Di Castri said a centre as planned with auditorium, lounge, reading room, activity rooms and service areas would cost between $245,430 and $284,130 depending on plan and construction.

Coun. Gunning said the high figures were not "surprising" because the committee started from the ideal and will cut down.

ELASTIC PLAN

The architect had plans under way to cut the project approximately in half and will bring in two separate plans — one to see if an auditorium can be excluded but other items left in and the second include an auditorium but adapt it for other uses.

The referendum approved by ratepayers earlier this year specified $100,000 for this project.

The first stage of the recreation program, the Tillicum Arena near the drive-in theatre, is expected to go to tender by the end of December and, if construction starts early in the new year, should be ready for use this time next year.

The estimated cost of the arena has exceeded the allocation by $54,000. The bylaw set $420,000 but the estimate is $474,000.

Last two stages of the program are a $470,000 swimming pool and community centre at Gordon Head and a $260,000 community centre on the McRae Estate — which Saanich has expropriated but not yet purchased.

Firemen's Flame

Miss Fire Prevention, Darlene Andruff, 20, a dockyard typist, is naval firemen's choice of girl they'd most like to slide down poles with. She's publicizing Fire Prevention Week which ends Oct. 14. Almost 600 Canadians were burned to death in 1966. All district fire departments are devoting week to promotion of fire prevention.

FALLING SHORT OF TARGET

'Embarrassing Response' Seen To Burns Unit Fund Campaign

The fund drive for a special hospital unit to treat severe burns is falling well short of its target.

Almost $80,000 is needed before federal and provincial money is available, but the campaign which began earlier this year has raised only a fraction over a quarter of this sum.

The Victoria Labour Council endorsed the burns unit at St. Joseph's Hospital as its Centennial project last year and local contractors also expressed interest.

But local unions have given less than $1,000 since they were asked to contribute last March.

"It's an embarrassing response," admitted labor council secretary Larry Ryan.

BINGO PLANNED

"But our program is not complete. The program is continuing and every opportunity we get we are stressing the need to back this project. A big bingo is planned in November."

The city of Victoria is the major contributor, agreeing earlier to give a total of $20,000 — $5,000 this year, $5,000 next year and $10,000 in 1969.

A spokesman for local general contractors said nothing has been contributed to date but the project will be "reactivated in a couple of weeks and we will be working with the unions."

Another general contractor said he hasn't been approached for money but intended to donate.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said a meeting is planned for Oct. 18 with the Victoria Labour Council He said "contributions have been coming in slowly" but didn't say how much has arrived.

TO HONOR TOONE

The burns unit is to be named after the late A. W. Toone, former secretary-treasureer of the Victoria Labour Council and mayor of Victoria.

The five-bed unit would provide treatment not available here for severe burns. Elaborate ventilation and other equipment would keep it germ-free.

The first proposal, for a unit within the hospital, would have cost $90,000 with $40,000 needed in local contributions.

This was changed later to an extension of the hospital with the cost increasing to $156,000 with $79,000 needed locally.

Last July plans were changed again, to house the unit within an extended emergency area. The costs remained the same as the second proposal.

The labor council has made it clear in the past that it never intended to raise all the local amount, simply as much as it could.

WATER SHORTAGE PLAGUES SCHOOL

Durrance School on West Saanich Road has 97 pupils and a water shortage.

The school is served by a well which has never produced sufficient water. On one occasion there was no water and the children were sent home.

The well was dug four years ago to a depth of 100 feet. But there is no water, so the drilling went down 235 feet—about the height of a 21-storey building.

So far it has cost School District 63 about $15,000 for drilling and installing pumps and storage tanks. But it's a shaky system yet.

When the school opened last month a hose was left on and the storage tank was emptied. Teachers are constantly required to see that pupils don't waste water.

The problem is so acute the board has delayed a necessary school expansion until more water is available.

School board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay says board officials are spending sleepless nights pondering other water sources. All she could report is that the board is investigating.

Q. How did the Victoria lacrosse team get the name Shamrocks and in what year? D.J.S.

A. The name was chosen at a meeting attended by team members in 1950. According to Det.-Insp. Bill Andrews, the team's first goal tender, "we just thought it would be a good name."

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Willow Fork May Be Scientific Instrument

By PETE LOUDON

How does a school board find an underground supply of water in the atomic age?

It calls in a water diviner.

That's what happened in School District 63 (rural Saanich) when the decision was made to build Durrance School, according to board chairman Mrs. N. G. Lindsay.

●

She said two diviners, a geologist and an engineer, were consulted four years ago before the school's inadequate well was dug.

And the city of Victoria this week hired a diviner to find a well in Beacon Hill Park.

Does this mean tax monies are being paid out for witchcraft — and with the provincial government approving it?

●

Not in the opinion of some technical experts. They say water divining, despite its name, appears to be a scientific procedure.

Until some university makes water divining a subject of extensive research, they don't associate themselves with it professionally however . . . nor can they explain it.

Almost every rural area has its water witches, water dowsers or diviners. The name changes with the locale. They have various methods for finding hidden water.

●

One of the most commonly seen is the chopped off fork of a willow. With the bark peeled away and the fork held with the branches toward the body, one branch in each hand, they walk back and forth across the land parcel.

They swear that when they cross the proper spot to dig a well, the tip of the willow wand tugs downward.

●

And laugh as you may, it works in a surprising number of cases.

There's an anonymous engineer in the provincial service who uses a willow wand to locate underground water pipes and mains. He's never missed yet.

His theory is that static electricity is involved. Some people carry different charges than others. Some people can witch a well and others can't.

He says it's a purely physical thing unrelated to witchcraft and one day science will explain it and put the strange reaction to use.

●

Geologists often use strange instruments and arrive at their decisions after studies of terrain and ground strata. But the willow wand results are just as certain.

Vice-chairman of the Saanich school board J. M. Kinnaird goes along with this. He recalls his father using two diviners, one after another, to find a well.

●

The second arrived at the exact point where the first had recommended the digging begin.

After all, if 50 years ago, someone had said you would soon be able to see what's going on in New York by looking into a box in your front room, you'd have considered him to be daft too.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

The raising of interest rates for new housing has raised a furore equalled only by that created when General de Gaulle unleashed his separatist propaganda. Taking a somewhat backhanded pleasure in the national alarm is a group of 22,000 Canadians, a third of them men.

These are the members of the Consumers' Association of Canada who act as 'watchdogs' for those of us who, for one reason or another, are unable to take such an active role in the guarding of our rights as consumers.

They've long been aware of the critical housing shortage that plagues Canada and have formed special committees to investigate the situation and make recommendations on the solving of the problem. As Mrs. W. E. Rolls, provincial president and past president of the Victoria branch says, "The situation has been reaching disaster proportions for a long time now. You have to have a yearly income of $9,000 in order to be able to buy a home. This prevents a large part of our population from having a place of their own.

Realism Needed to Solve Problem

"The government must face this problem realistically. Even the removal of the tax on building supplies would do a great deal to help."

Mrs. Rolls has been an active CAC Member for 12 years and is tired with the drive that makes hers an effective organization.

One of CAC's proudest achievements is the federal department of corporate and consumer affairs, which is now being organized under the leadership of register-general John Turner. CAC has long fought for such a department in briefs and representations, made with the regularity of a ticking clock.

Provincially, the CAC recently tasted triumph when the government announced that the new Consumer Protection Act will become effective on New Year's Day. The CAC was the hardest fighter for this reform and presented a well-planned brief to the government last November. Two of the act's main purposes are to provide a "cooling" off period for customers of house-to-house salesmen and full disclosure of interest rates by money lenders and instalment-goods retailers.

In the case of instalment-goods retailers, Mrs. Rolls would like to see the act go another step further.

Reforms Sought in Contracts

"Separate contracts for each item bought should be made mandatory. Too often, a customer will buy one item from a store and have it almost paid for. Then he buys another and the cost goes up on the original contract. This means he runs the risk of having both items confiscated if he fails to pay the balance owing, in spite of the fact that he may have paid the complete price of the first article by the time this happens."

Very much concerned with the numbers of high school graduates who face life and early marriage responsibilities with little or no consumer education, the CAC has set up another of its many national committees to deal with this problem.

Local action, by a committee which is headed by Mrs. J. L. Andrews, has already brought results.

At the branch's last meeting, six students of Esquimalt Senior Secondary School sat as observers. Their teacher, Howard Thornton, intends to send other groups of Grade X students, the trips forming part of their commercial course's curriculum.

All Greater Victoria schools include consumer education training in their commercial courses but Mrs. Rolls is emphatic that there's still much to be done.

"I hope that we'll eventually follow the example of Edmonton where every grade 10 student must take eight weeks of such training."

Other projects that demand many hours of volunteer work by CAC members stem from their concern about the threat of pollution, sale of inferior drugs and the difficulty mothers face when they shop for children's clothes.

Solving the pollution problem provides difficulties almost as monumental as those linked with the housing shortage. But, the others are gradually being solved through CAC pressure.

Publish List of Offenders

The federal food and drug directorate is now publishing names of drug houses that become "offenders," a procedure which is bound to result in more care being taken in drug preparation.

An updating in the sizing of children's clothing is well underway, given enthusiastic support by Eaton's and Simpson-Sears. Readjustment in the sizing of adults' clothing will come later.

No problem is too insignificant for CAC action. One of the group's many committees is working to get the amount of fat in sausages clearly specified so that shoppers will know exactly what they're getting.

Any Canadian is always sure of a hearing when he or she brings a legitimate complaint to one of the complaints committee chairmen that are part of the CAC organization at every level.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, chairman for the local branch, is probably one of the busiest women in Victoria, checking the many cases that come to her attention. Those that can't be dealt with at the local level are referred for further action to the provincial and national bodies.

At the recent national meeting in Ottawa, reports showed 400 complaints had been dealt with at the national level and 600 by provincial executives; overwhelming proof that dedication like Mrs. Mills' is no isolated phenomenon.

This is good news for the average Canadian consumer. Without the CAC's "watchdog" service, crises, such as that caused by the housing shortage, would be an everyday affair in all our lives.

Mr. and Mrs. David Griffiths, 125 Maddock East, will mark their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday by being at home to their friends from 2 to 5 p.m. They were married at Llandudno Junction in North Wales and have two daughters, Mrs. A. G. (Gwyneth) Earl and Mrs. E. G. (Ceinwen) Streeter, both of Victoria. There are eight grandchildren. They lived in South Burnaby and Summerland before coming to Victoria eight years ago. Mr. Griffiths came to Canada in 1906, enlisted in the Field Ambulance Unit at Vernon Camp in 1915 and served overseas in France, Belgium and Germany.

Coffee Party at The Bay

Plates of Swedish dainties, orange softies, home-made breads and jars of preserves helped make the home-cooking stall a sell-out when the Women's Auxiliary to the Navy League held a coffee party in the Douglas Room of the Bay on Friday.

Mrs. Alec Reid was the convener and Mrs. L. Carrington and Mrs. H. L. Elliot greeted the guests.

Mrs. Tom Dalzell was in charge of the cooking and white elephant stalls.

Small arrangements of brightly-colored begonias in moss centred the guests' tables. Mrs. L. Kennedy, Mrs. D. Braden, Mrs. Frank Shore and Mrs. Frank Findlay prepared the sandwiches and cakes.

Serviteurs were Mrs. W. Burnett, Mrs. W. Long, Mrs. C. Downing and Mrs. J. Jamieson.

Mrs. H. L. Elliott was in charge of decorations and publicity. The sum of $130 was realized.

Children Lead Way to Joy of Thanksgiving

Times' photographer Bill Halkett entered into the spirit of Thanksgiving early this weekend and made his own interpretation of Murillo's "Melon Eaters" which, in its study of uninhibited boyhood, captures the joy of this yearly festival. His models for this Thanksgiving picture are two of the sons of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Di Castri of Oliver Street, 11-year-old Simon and 10-year-old Matthew.

By PAT DUFOUR,
Women's Editor

The zeal with which a little boy
Rushes out to savor joy,
The swift and ravenous delight
With which he kills his appetite;
The fullness of his speeding days
Leave little time for thankful praise.
His mumbled prayers are spoken fast
In order that he may, at last,
Close his eyes and fall asleep,
With boyish dreams, a tryst to keep.

But little boys and God are friends
That need no formal recommends.
God sees the thanks that lie within
The sunshine of an impish grin.
Thanks ring in every lusty yell;
God comes to recognize them well.
Thanks usher in each boyish day
From rising time to final play,
'Till under sheets he snuggles deep,
Safe in the innocence of sleep.

We older ones have lost the glow
That only little boys can know.
We need reminders now and then,
That life did not begin with men.
And, once a year, we set a day
In which to let our hearts give way
To thoughts that prompt unstinted praise,
Enough to cover all the days
When we were blind to all the joy
Embodied in each little boy.

—P.D.

The Spanish painter, Bartolome Esteban Murillo, who founded the Academy of Seville and died in 1682, worked with a naturalism that is eloquently evident in his painting "Melon Eaters." It now hangs in the Pinakothek Museum in Munich.

Three outstanding Canadian books . . .

The ink had scarcely dried on the three new Canadian books we were shown with great pride at the Book Nook the other day . . . All three were published within the past two weeks . . . and any one of them would make a marvellous Christmas gift for friends at home or abroad (books are wonderfully easy to send away) . . . There's the new Karsh Portfolio . . . a magnificently printed and bound book . . . containing 49 reproductions of photo studies by one of the world's greatest photographers . . . accompanied in each case by Karsh's own description of the circumstances surrounding the photographing . . . A A real treasure of a book, whose beauty will take your breath away! . . . Next is "The Newspapering Murrays" . . . all about the famous "Ma" Murray of the Lillooet News and her family . . . written by her daughter Georgina Keddell . . . a lively, lusty gem of a story you'll thoroughly enjoy . . . And last . . . but far from least . . . "Burns and His Bonnie Jean" by Victoria author Yvonne Helen Stevenson . . . great-great-grandniece of the poet's bonnie Jean Armour . . . to whom he was thrice married . . . and has immortalized in 16 poems . . . This is a thoroughly researched book in which the author pulls no punches! . . . We personally enjoyed it greatly . . . All three of these new books are now on sale at . . . The Book Nook, 10 Centennial Square, 386-0813.

The shining face with a polished look is the coming fashion in makeup.

Comfort with style and elegance . . .

We've often thought Caressa shoes are aptly named . . . because they do, literally, caress the feet . . . looking elegantly stylish all the while . . . Caressas are exclusive to Munday's in Victoria . . . and we believe we told you about some of the new fall models a few weeks ago . . . Three more styles have now arrived to round out the collection . . . First and foremost, in our estimation, is a genuine cobra shoe, in filly brown, called "Millicent" . . . trimmed with a flat buckle and having the straight, lowish heel which is so very new-looking . . . There's a smart cobra bag to match . . . $27.95 each for shoes and bag . . . and worn together, the handsomest set of accessories you could ever hope to own . . . Another nice Caressa model is "Emil" . . . a low heeled pump with high vamp, squarish toe . . . Navy kid with red piping around the flat leather buckle . . . same in brown with pale beige trim and black with black suede trim . . . "Prima," in black patent, has a real square toe and low heel, and flat grosgrain bow high on the instep . . . Also comes in dark brown patent, which is THE patent for fall . . . These two latter styles . . . as well as all the other Caressa shoes . . . are priced at $25.95, and obtainable only at . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

Belts settle anywhere . . . from high under the bosom to low down on the hips.

Suits and coats from England . . .

Some mighty attractive suits and coats by Harella of England are newly-arrived at the Madam and Eve Shop . . . dashingly styled, and tailored with the perfection the English are noted for . . . What's more, there is only one style in each size and color, so this tends to make them pretty exclusive . . . We love the electric blue tweed suit with its long, mandarin-like jacket with three-frog front closing . . . youthful, A-line skirt . . . This one is a size 7 . . . and there's also a vibrant hot pink in size 10 . . . A check tweed suit has olive background with pink and orange threads making up the check . . . Slight A-line skirt and box jacket with braided leather buttons in olive tones, giving a double-breasted effect . . . Size 11 . . . while a size 15 has a blue background with turquoise and mustard threads forming the check . . . a subtle blending flattering to a larger figure . . . The Harella topcoats, in a wide size range, are eminently wearable by any woman from 16 to 60 . . . They're beautifully fitting . . . come in assorted colors . . . sizes 7 to 13 . . . but quite big fitting . . . Do go and see them for yourself . . . And girls . . . watch for M & E's forthcoming clearance sale in dresses! . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

Balenciaga has a white mink suit with white satin bow-tied belt, and a cocoa chiffon blouse.

It's leather week at Wilson's . .

At long last Wilson's have received those suede jackets they've been expecting from England . . . and what beauties they are! . . . Soft, sleek, top quality suede . . . beautifully cut and styled . . . with a welt seam yoke and smooth leather binding around collar and pockets . . . Colors are cinnamon, forest green and cedar . . . Sizes range from 12 to 18 . . . with just a few jackets in each of the three colors . . . $82.50 . . . and worth every penny of it! . . . So if you've been wanting a really good suede jacket . . . hurry down to Wilson's before they're all gone . . . This seems to be leather week at Wilson's . . . because they've got some handsome new handbags in too . . . mostly in small, chunky shapes which are so right, fashion-wise, this season . . . yet despite their small size, manage to hold an incredible amount of whatever it is you normally carry in your handbag . . . There are nappa leather and smooth calf bags from Spain . . . and you know what the Spanish can do with leather! . . . Tailored English bags with their under-stated good looks . . . soft kid bags from Italy . . . one of the latter a putty colored bag with stitched detailing and an unusual leather handle twisted like a rope . . . You'll find versatile neutral colors like black, brown, cognac, navy . . . Some over-the-shoulder bags . . . all of these, needless to say, fully leather lined . . . J & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

False eyelashes are not only ubiquitous . . . but getting longer and longer.

Biggest travel bargains under the sun . . .

Featured in the August issue of Holiday magazine was a glowing article about the Club Mediterranee . . . with the lion's share devoted to the Club's vacation spot in southern Morocco . . . Perhaps it excited you as it did us . . . So when Paulin's told us they are now taking bookings for three departures to this sun-drenched, exotic vacationland . . . we thought we'd better pass the word along fast! Here's the outline: Two weeks at the Club Mediterranee in Agadir, Morocco . . . flying direct from Vancouver . . . with a night in Paris each way . . . for a total price of $632 . . . which includes absolutely everything! Air fare . . . a delightful bungalow in the Club's "village" . . . three meals a day (with wine, yet!) . . . entertainment, sports facilities . . . even riding on camels! . . . hotel room and breakfast in Paris . . . Departures are on Jan. 12 and Feb. 16 . . . And if you'd like to stretch your holiday to three weeks, there's a departure on Jan. 28 . . . Total cost for this is $760 (including the Paris jaunt) . . . Mind you, early applications for these holiday packages are essential . . . The ultimate in elastic hosiery . . .

You may recall our telling you a few weeks ago about the big range of elastic and support stockings carried by McGill & Orme's Surgical Supplies Ltd. . . . Well, just last week they got in another line of elastic stockings which is brand new on the market . . . Called Ultreer, these stockings, made by Bauer & Black, are so sheer and natural-looking that no one will ever dream you're wearing elastic stockings . . . yet they give the full, proper support so essential for relieving pain and discomfort, and help prevent further development of leg problems . . . They're featherlight, cool and comfortable . . . for both day and evening wear . . . give the full, even support you need for the treatment of varicose veins, or for prevention of enlarged veins due to pregnancy . . . Really the ultimate in elastic hosiery! . . . You buy Ultreer in your regular hosiery size . . . 9 to 11 . . . medium length . . . and from size 10 up you can get extra long length if support is needed further up the leg . . . A nice natural shade of beige . . . Price is $10.95 . . . and Surgical Supplies will let you try a pair on before buying just to make sure they're right for your legs and your particular needs . . . Surgical Supplies Limited, 1012 Broad St., 384-8433.

Extra long girdles without seams are now made for wear under pants.

Fine dry cleaning preserves your clothes . . .

We keep hearing sad little stories about "what the cleaners did to my good Italian knit" . . . or "my camel-hair coat" . . . or "my husband's dress suit" . . . And good clothes being the price they are, it's enough to scare a person half to death contemplating what might be the fate of her own garments when she relinquishes them to a cleaner . . . As far as we're concerned, we never give our clothes a second thought when we send them to Paisley Cleaners . . . because we know they'll come back to us not only spotlessly clean and fresh . . . but properly pressed and blocked and shaped . . . No sagging or droopy knits . . . no shrinking or stretching . . . no broken buttons or limp trimmings . . . Mr. and Mrs. Bruce who own and operate Paisley . . . take the utmost pride in their work . . . they're professionals from the word go . . . and give individual and meticulous care to every garment entrusted to them . . . Your wardrobe will always be in tip-top condition . . . and incidentally, your clothes will last longer . . . if you have them cleaned regularly by Paisley . . . Paisley Cleaners pick up and deliver . . . and their charges are no more . . . in fact, in some cases less . . . than other cleaners we know of . . . So call . . . Paisley Cleaners, 522 Gore St., 384-3724.

"Male Elegance" . . . Angelo Litrico has earned a name in Italy as the "Tailor for Top Men." The Edwardian Era is his inspiration for this longer, double-breasted jacket in unobtrusive shades of green and grey. Wider, slightly-padded shoulders emphasize the narrowed waist and slightly-flared hipline.

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's John's Move To Make Peace

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I went with John (fake name) for four years and my mother hated him. In fact she told me she would rather see me dead than married to John. Well, when I became of age I married John against my mother's wishes and you should have heard the terrible things she said about him. I couldn't even put them in this letter. She did her best to ruin his reputation.

Now that we are going to have a baby my mother is trying to make-up with John. John says he will never set foot in her house and if she wants to see me or the baby she will have to come here during the day time while he is not at home. My mother even wanted to have a birthday party for me, and John said I could go if I wanted to, but he wasn't going. What can I do, Abby? I can't blame John for feeling the way he does, but she is still my mother and this is making it awfully hard on me.

JOHN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If in time John makes peace with your mother—and I hope he does, fine. But until he does, continue to see your mother while John's at work.

DEAR ABBY: I feel so silly—a grown woman with three children asking for help with this problem, but here goes. I have a sister who brings her friends to my home to give them what she laughingly calls "The 50-Cent Tour."

I wouldn't mind so much if only she would give me a little notice, but she has brought people over here as early as 9 in the morning when my beds are unmade and I'm looking a wreck, sorting laundry.

I do have a nice home, Abby, but it's not always in condition for inspection. Don't you think my sister should give me a chance to fix it up before showing it off? How can I get this across to her without getting her angry with me?

DROPPED IN ON

DEAR DROPPED: You sound like the type who would greet unwelcome guests at the door with a big smile and open arms, and then wonder why they continue to drop in on you. If you haven't told your sister to please call in advance so you can set a mutually convenient time for her "50-cent tour," I suggest that you put in your two cents.

DEAR ABBY: My son is 11 years. He is a very shy and protected child. He sleeps in the same room with his 10-year-old sister, and I tuck them both into bed every night.

The boy knows nothing of the facts of like and I think it is time he was told. Shouldn't his father be the one to tell him? I will be glad to tell the girl when the times comes, but I think a father should tell his son. His father says the boy is much too young to have his head filled with things like that and to give him time yet. How much time should I give him?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: First, about your sleeping arrangements. Your son should have his privacy and your daughter hers. Even if one of them has to sleep in the kitchen or the hall—or on the floor.

It doesn't matter who tells a boy (or girl) the facts of life as long as they are told as soon as they become curious. Try to cultivate a relaxed family atmosphere so that if either of your children has a question he will not hesitate to ask. (P.S. And tell your husband to hurry with his "facts" or it will be like giving a fish a bath.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO WONDERING IN WORTHINGTON: "Age" doesn't mean much with some fellows. They'll take anything from two to toothless.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

ITALIAN SHOW DELIGHTS VANCOUVER

"The Male Look" will be the next big explosion in the clothing industry . . . a new image for the masculine population. The "Youthquake" boosted fashion excitement to new heights but it is now time for a new story.

Damaske

Italian designers have recognized man's tendency to unbend his rigid pattern of conservatism. The young man, who so recently went to extremes with the Mod Look is now beginning to have a feeling for a more sophisticated elegant appearance.

On Monday evening, the black-tie audience in the Bayshore Inn's ballroom was most enthusiastic as male models in age brackets from "teen" to "mature" displayed the collection of Angelo Litrico, Italy's leading designer of men's clothes. The Italian "Alta Moda" (high fashion) showing was one of the most exciting ever seen in Canada.

The leading Italian designers accompanied their collections, which will be shown in San Francisco, Los Angeles and finally in Montreal during the final days of Expo.

Angelo Litrico dips deep into the past and brings back the elegance of the longer Edwardian jacket. Nipped slightly at the waistline and flared gently over the hips, the style is shown in many fabrics.

Men's trousers will remain narrow until just below the knee when they will flare slightly. Rich tones of copper, curry, putty, brandy and muted green will add interest to male wardrobes. The styles and colors were far from avant garde but still new in fit and line to our conservative western eyes.

Princess Giovanna Caracciole, owner and designer of the high fashion house of Carosa, dropped the hemline of her daytime suits to well below the knee. Her late-day dinner dresses terminated at mid-calf. Speaking with the Princess at the wine tasting party which followed the fashion show, I asked her if she felt this to be a serious trend.

She said she thinks women want to return to the age of elegance and will begin by wearing longer skirts. I also spoke to many of the guests who had viewed the show and not one is ready to accept skirts any longer than knee-cap covered.

Renato Balestra, a graduate engineer, who switched from the rigid drawing of the draftsman to the subtle, soft creation of feminine clothes, designed a wedding gown in a medieval concept which was the high point of the entire show. Made entirely by hand, the gown was covered with minute white beads and tiny patent leather flowers. An ethereal twist of tulle sat high on the model's head and she carried a small white muff.

Livio De Simone, one of Italy's brilliant designers of boutique fashions featured most imaginative hemlines in his gay and colorful collection. Asymmetrical in feeling, the unexpected ups and downs added exciting stimulus to lounge, patio and evening clothes.

The famed knits of Italy were beautifully designed by Pierluigi Trico. He sees the flowing fluidity of capes as a great part of the coming season's fashion excitement. His beautifully executed knit costumes seemed designed with the west coast woman in mind.

"The Sweater Look" of Pino Lancetti carried through from daytime suits to elegant turtle-necked evening tops of wool and sparkling beads. Most appealing was a long-sleeved sweater in green wool, flecked with silver and worn over a short deep green chiffon skirt that was a mass of fine pleats.

Germana Marucelli, is the pioneer woman of Italian fashion. Her "Africa Mask" designs for day and gala evening wear reminded me of our Indian totem designs. There is a feeling of wildness and freedom in her designs . . . one feels there should be the beat of primative drums in the background.

The Alta Moda show, with a standing room admittance after the many seats were filled, was an exciting and stimulating message from Italy.

Instant Paper Mache For Family Projects

By Penny Saver

Fall is always my favorite time of the year. In the Saver household the surest sign of coming winter is the projects . . . we can always manage to have several going at once. Junior's first art project in school this year was a paper mache figure. Eager to try out his new found skill at home he asked if he could have a work-space in the basement in which to make his figures. His first one was a lively cartoon of the family cat and his next idea was to make some kittens for it. I remembered what paper mache was like when I went to school and protested that this project would be entirely too much of a mess, even for the basement. Junior insisted paper mache was not like that anymore. It could be done in the basement without paste being all over everything. You know, he's right!

For the family sculptor the new instant paper mache Junior uses is perfect. It can be moulded like clay or shaped on wire, depending on the project, and for what it is being used. When finished and smoothed down, it looks like china. For making a Hallowe'en mask or original Christmas ornaments it would be just the thing. A bag of instant mache looks like a cross between powdered soap and confetti and costs a very reasonable 95 cents.

For a while I have had a yen to try making some of the new big tissue paper flowers but I have never been able to find out how it was done. I've now located a book telling me everything I needed to know. There is a book for almost every project. I saw books on shell craft, liquid plastic, Swiss straw and even styrofoam. I bought the last with the thought that it could be useful at Christmas. These books cost from 60 cents to 90 cents.

If you're not the most enthusiastic of embroiderers but occasionally feel the urge to decorate pillows, tablecloths and doilies you will like another item I found. It's a tube of paint about the size of a small package of toothpaste with a ballpoint for writing. There is a variety of colors and it will work on almost every surface including glass, leather and metal, as well as fabric. The cost is 98 cents.

If you would like to know where I found these items give me a call at 382-3131.

Several of the horses that have become winners in this season's racing at Sandown were bred locally by members of the Vancouver Island Division of the B.C. Thoroughbred Breeders Society, who held their first social event in Brenta Lodge, Friday evening. Several of the guests met again this morning at the annual Derby Day Breakfast which preceded the day's racing at the track. Seen here, left to right (back row) are Mrs. Robert Hall, Mr. Jack Short, Mrs. Bill Collins, Mr. Merv Peters, Mr. Bill Crawford, Mrs. Crawford, Mr. Bill Randall, Mr. Frank Mannix, division president; Mrs. Harry Filion, Dr. Ronald Gruger and Mr. Jack Cliff. Seated in front, left to right, are Mrs. Gruger, Mrs. Mannix and Mrs. Bob Anderson. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Youthful Beauty

From the early twenties, bedtime massage with a vitalizing night cream is ideal for softening traces of surface skin dryness and tiny lines. Apply Olay vitalizing night cream to cheeks, forehead, and throat and coax it into the skin with light, upward moulding strokes, then remove with a tissue. Such care will encourage complexion loveliness.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"The story I'm about to tell why I'm late is true—only the names have been changed so I can retell it some other time."

Wed at Prince Rupert

A wedding of interest in Victoria took place in Prince Rupert United Church this afternoon when Mina Phyllis Fraser became the bride of Douglas Morrison Carr.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fraser, 364 Sparton Road. The groom is the son of Mrs. H. Carr, also of Victoria, and Mr. Joseph Carr, 118 Menzies Street. Mr. Fraser gave his daughter in marriage. Dr. R. W. Elliott officiated at the service.

The bride wore a street-length coat-dress of double-weave navy blue linen fashioned with yoke detailing. She complemented her costume with black accessories and pink roses en corsage.

Vern Movold acted as best man.

A reception followed in the Crest Motor Hotel.

Travelling from Victoria for the wedding were the groom's father, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Fraser.

Following a honeymoon at Skoglund Hot Springs Resort, the newlyweds will make their home in Prince Rupert.

Join the crusade against ugly.

Our Pledge: We will root out every weedy, seedy, ugly spot we spot on the face of the earth and let dazzling Dutch tulips take root. We will plant tulips outside our homes; tulips inside our homes. Tulips on our front lawns; tulips on our back patios. Tulips, tulips everywhere (except where there are hyacinths or daffodils).

The straight and narrow but not very beautiful path. This is the ugliness (Fig. 1) that greeted Mrs. Rita Nord whenever she walked into her house. How sad it made her. Six months ago a neighbour told her about the Crusade against Ugly. She joined and planted Dutch tulip bulbs along her path.

Today, this (Fig. 2) is the beautiful sight Mrs. Nord sees when she walks into her house. No wonder neighbours now refer to her as "Mrs. Sunshine!"

Warm beautiful Story. "I was a 298 pound bully, I used to stand in my yard surrounded by dandelions and ragweed and kick sand in people's faces Nobody liked me. Then, I joined the Crusade against Ugly. I got rid of the sand, the dandelions and the ragweed and planted Dutch tulip bulbs. Now, six months later, people come from all around to say, 'Hi, there, nice guy. Beautiful place, you've got.'"

How to plant a Dutch tulip bulb. 1. Dig a hole. 2. Drop a bulb. 3. Six months later:

World's most beautiful button. Only 10¢! Perfectly round, perfectly smooth, perfectly beautiful expression of your sentiments. Appropriate for formal and sports attire. Send 10¢ in stamps, coin or money order to: Crusade Against Ugly, Suite 123(A), 1253 McGill College Ave., Montreal 2, Que.

Hundreds Attend Rally

More than 300 men and women from many parts fo British Columbia are attending the 37th Anglican Youth Conference in Victoria this weekend.

Theme of the conference is The Christian Man and His World and Rev. Gavin Rumsey from Rossland, B.C., is the theme speaker.

The program includes a sing-in, a folk mass, a panel discussion and a banquet and dance tonight in the church hall of First United Church.

Most of the sessions are being held in the Memorial Hall of Christ Church Anglican Cathedral and the parish hall at St. John's Anglican Church.

Delegates will attend the harvest Thanksgiving service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 a.m. Sunday.

BRING GOSPEL

Rev. Gavin Rumsey will give three addresses during the conference The Realities of the World We Live In, How Can the Church Bring the Gospel to the World? and What Kind of Christian Persons Are Needed to Minister to Our World?

"We hope these talks will provoke a stimulating and provocative discussion," says Rev. Leonard Jenner, newly-appointed assistant priest at St. John's Anglican Church.

Rev. Mr. Rumsey was raised in B.C.'s Creston Valley interior. After graduating from high school in 1948, he spent four years working at the Canadian Bank of Commerce before attending the University of British Columbia and the Anglican Theological College.

He started as an assistant priest at Vernon, then went to the Columbia Valley. Last winter he led a course in Christian ethics at the Sorrento Lay Training Centre.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

And, Behold, They Gave Thanks

A procession of Victoria's racial groups, led by Helen and Henry Hunt, will open the mass service of thanksgiving in the Memorial Arena Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Most city churches have cancelled their evening services in order to participate.

It will be the climax to a weekend of thanksgiving for Canada's Centenary, proclaimed in a B.C. government order and signed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches, will preside at the mass service in the Arena. The address will be given by Rev. A. G. Faraday, command chaplain, Maritime Pacific.

A mass choir conducted by Rodney Webster, with Richard Proudman at the organ, will sing The Centennial Anthem and The Heavens Are Telling (from Hadyn's Creation.)

The lesson will be read by L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Society, and the Salvation Army Citadel Band will lead the singing.

All Victoria clergy, civic officials and representatives of the B.C. government, the B.C. Law Society and the University of Victoria will participate.

There will be a rehearsal of the mass choir in Metropolitan United Church at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Survivor Here For Assembly

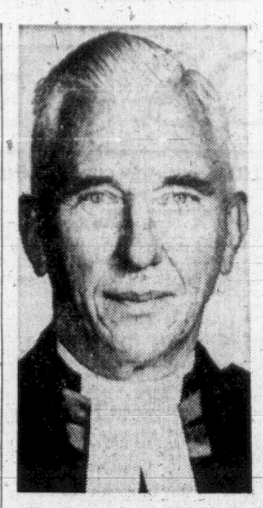

Mrs. Marion Parkinson, director of the National Women's Missionary Council of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, will speak in Glad Tidings Tabernacle, Victoria, on Sunday, Oct. 15 at 7 p.m.

She is one of the few survivors of the S.S. Lady Hawkins, which was torpedoed in the Atlantic on Jan. 19, 1942.

Mrs. Parkinson will speak at the 11 a.m. service in North Douglas Pentecostal Church Sunday, Oct. 15.

Play Reading Starts

Oak Bay Recreation Commission will open its winter play reading sessions Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Lower Municipal Hall under the direction of Mrs. Kay Howard.

BACK IN VICTORIA today after three months in New Zealand and Australia, Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, will speak at the 11 a.m. Sunday service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. After a guest ministry at Wellington, he attended a conference of the Presbyterian Church in Australia at Melbourne.

Is Death Real?

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real? is the subject of the Lesson Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. The Responsive Reading includes a verse from Romans: "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

HIJACKING, ECUADOR STLYE

The Pirates Paddle Their Own Canoes!

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife, Pat, are currently on a 12,000-mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the 44th in a series on their adventures.

There are still pirates roaming the high seas. They are on the increase. The port of Manta, Ecuador, a dusty, sunlit town lying just south of the equator, breeds them.

The Manta pirates operate from dugout canoes, without engines and specialize in ambushing tuna boats. They are skilled enough to board a boat moving 10 knots, fill their canoes with tuna and be away before the authorities on shore are any the wiser.

The pirates are in league with fishermen who work for the local cannery. By allowing the 'pirates' to board their boats and take a certain amount of their catch they can earn more money than by selling them directly to the cannery. The pirates paddle their canoes ashore and sell the hijacked fish to the local townspeople.

When the tuna are running the people of Manta eat tuna like Irishmen eat potatoes. Depending upon one's bargaining power a five to 10-pound tuna costs between 10 and 20 cents and can be prepared in innumerable ways. A fresh baked tuna tastes little different than roast chicken.

Recently, however, the activities of the Manta pirates grew so bold that they were taking up to one third of the fishermen's catch.

His Word Law

The cannery officials complained to the Port Captain. In Ecuador such a personage is always a naval officer; he acts as a combination police officer, smuggler catcher and judiciary. His word is law. Beyond him the people have little recourse, that is, unless they have influence in high places. The majority of Ecuadorian Port Captains have one hobby in common; compiling a personal pension fund for old age.

This fund is contributed to by foreign ships wishing clearance into the country, or egress from it; by yachts, no matter what the nationality or size; and by the local Ecuadorian fishermen who, in most ports, must pay a sum of money and account for their movements every time they leave the harbor.

Following the lodging of the cannery's complaint the Port Captain ordered the pirates brought before him.

Julius Caesar could not have issued the edict with greater authority. A sailor, armed with a .303 calibre rifle, carried out the order and within one hour had corralled the offending pirates, some 24 in number, into the Port Captain's office.

"I am given to understand," he said, speaking with his back to a giant map of Ecuador, "that you hombres are misusing the privileges of this fine port. I will not stand for it. You will cease taking fish. You will find other means of work or face a jail sentence."

Holiday Time

No one in the group said anything until they had been dismissed. Then they laughed and snickered among themselves. "I would rather go to jail than work for my food," said their leader, a muscular Chola Indian. "It is time I had a holiday."

"Yes, yes!" chortled the others. "We shall all go to jail . . . hurrah for the Port Captain!"

Among them was a spy who visited the Port Captain at his home that night and explained that the pirates were only too delighted at the prospect of a jail sentence. "I will deal with them," snapped the austere Captain. "I will brook no disobedience in my port."

The following morning he appeared at his office at nine o'clock, an hour earlier than usual and discovered the duty sentry asleep. This did not assuage the Captain's temper. He stormed into his office, took out a pair of binoculars and opened large green window shutters that permitted him a cinemanic view of the entire port. Two hours later the first tuna boat rounded the breakwater, a pack of pirates alongside, loading their canoes with fish and yowling like the wild men they were.

"Guard!" shouted the Port Captain. "Guard!"

"Sir!"

'Captain Is Angry'

"I want a detail of armed men to bring those hombres to the beach. I have something special in mind for them."

News of his order quickly spread through the town. "The Port Captain is angry," chattered the citizens. "The pirates have been arrested."

Old women, dogs, a burro, young children, shoe-shine boys and even the town carpenter, a meticulous little man who spent most of his day hammering coffins together, came down to the beach.

This was a flat area of brown sand that extended seaward as the tide went down. Here the pirates were corralled, ringed about by 10 sailors with rifles and drawn bayonets. The pirates had lost their enthusiasm of the day before. Their faces were sombre, sullen, like the sun when a cloud has passed over it. They glared at the sailors. They spoke in whispers and shuffled their bare feet in the sand.

The Port Captain kept them waiting a full hour before he appeared, flanked by a seaman carrying a wicker office chair. "What is this?" whispered the carpenter to the town barber. "What is he to do with the chair?"

50 Pushups

"Who knows?" replied the other, "perhaps his legs are weak."

The Port Captain, unsmiling, his naval uniform immaculate, his eyes hard, beckoned to a junior officer. "These robbers of fish must learn what it is to feel genuine exertion. They must demonstrate to the citizens of Manta their physical prowess . . . have them do an hour's PT. Let them begin with 50 pushups!"

He sat down in the chair, lit a cigar, and watched while the naval lieutenant put the pirates of Manta through a rigorous routine of physical jerks. The crowd roared with laughter. Some shouted words of encouragement, others jeered and made jokes at the pirates but no matter what they did the prisoners could not have been more humiliated had they spent 10 years in prison. The next morning there were no pirates to greet the tuna boats.

Ministers Criticize Critics In Grants to Draft-Dodgers

TORONTO (CP)—Forty ministers of the United Church here have signed a petition criticizing the general council for reprimanding a church board which offered $1,000 to groups aiding United States draft dodgers in Canada.

The general council, headed by Rt. Rev. Wilfrid Lockhart, said Dr. J. Raymond Hord and his board of evangelism and social service exceeded its authority in approving the grants.

The petition, protesting against the council's move, was originated by Rev. Robert Lindsey of Toronto and five other local clergymen of the United Church of Canada.

The ministers have sent the petition to Dr. Hord and Dr. Lockhart, moderator of the United Church, and intend to circulate similar petitions throughout Canada.

"This is the first time in history that the council has interfered with a church board," said Mr. Lindsey.

National Anthem Hunt Continues

OTTAWA (CP) — A special joint parliamentary committee has hired Ottawa composer Rex Le Lacheur to help it sift through some 400 sets of lyrics for O Canada, the national anthem.

While the music was adopted earlier this year, the English and French lyrics are to be scrutinized this fall.

The Senate-Commons committee on the national and royal anthems said in a press release that it will work on the lyrics behind closed doors for a while.

"Open meetings may be held at a later date when the committee has reduced the large number of verses to a level that warrants further study and discussion," the press release said.

Mr. Le Lacheur, 57, an unsuccessful Conservative candidate for election in Ottawa East in the last general election, has been hired as a consultant.

A well-known singer and choir-master here, he composed the music for the Centennial Hymn.

The committee called earlier this year for public help in choosing lyrics for O Canada.

The overwhelming response included a bilingual version in which both English and French are used.

The present French lyrics date back to 1880 when Sir Adolphe Routhier wrote them for the music composed by Calixa Lavalee.

The English lyrics were written by Robert Weir in 1908.

'Lord Won't Let Me Down' . . . Or Drown?

By RAM SUNDAR

BOMBAY (CP)—An ancient Hindu text says Indian holy men should be spiritually so built "as to resist fire and water."

Currently, a number of them are demonstrating that they qualify for the description, at least so far as water is concerned.

His Holiness Mouni Baba, a venerable monk well known in New Delhi, has rejected all pleas to leave his tiny island perch in the midst of the flooded Jamuna River.

The island, which has been the 55-year-old monk's home for many years, has been threatened by the rising waters of the river. At one stage his small thatched-leaf cottage was nearly swept away.

Hundreds of his devotees are keeping round the clock vigil on the banks of the river. The New Delhi Boat Club is also taking a hand in the operation.

The danger will not be over until the end of September when the monsoon officially draws to a close.

"This season I have survived two floods and the Lord will not let me down," Mouni Baba told a delegation of Hindus who visited him.

READY TO LEAVE

The Hindus said the monk has let it be known that he will be prepared to leave the island if he receives an assurance from the Indian government that it will enact a law banning the slaughter of cows. Mouni Baba is a supporter of the anti-cow-slaughter movement organized by a Hindu right-wing opposition party.

Some 1,500 miles to the east of New Delhi, a holy man is clinging to his island home in the Brahmaputra River in Assam State. Swami Ramanand Biswas, 72, has lived on the island for 35 years and he also believes that he is immune from floods.

Christian Science Special Service

8 CARD OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our father, Ira F. Smith. —Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. K. Yeo, Mr. and Mrs. C. Cunningham.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our many friends in our sad bereavement in the loss of our beloved wife, mother and grandmother, Florence. We especially thank the Rev. G. Biddle, Rev. N. Noel and McCall Bros. Funeral Home.—Bert Noel and family.

We wish to express our sincere gratitude and appreciation to friends, relatives and neighbours for all the acts of kindness and service, the messages of sympathy, the many floral tributes and gifts, in the recent illness and loss of our daughter, Melanie. A special word of thanks to Rev. R. J. D. Morris, Dr. J. R. LeHuquet and the staff of 4th Royal, R.J.H. for their unique service and support. — Mark and Frances Knowlson and Family.

14 ANNOUNCEMENTS

THIS IS A NOTICE TO THE YOUNG OR THE YOUNG IN HEART

A great many of us would like to do something exciting and different. There are so many activities that fall into this category, but motorcycle trail riding is without a doubt one of the best. You may be in the position of not wanting to buy a trail bike of your own, or not wanting to go out by yourself. I have ten new 100 cc. trail bikes that I will be using for conducted trail rides, once a week. The cost will be $20 an outing for bike, gas, lunch and guide and lots of fun. All you have to supply is yourself, courage and warm clothes.

Anyone interested can contact Mr. Doug. Pearson at 386-3033.

These rides will be conducted on a reservation basis only. So get your name and deposit ($5.00) in soon and let us know which ride you would like to go on. First ride is in the very near future. Come out and have a wonderful day!!

PERFECT EYES ARE RARE

Sooner or later, most eyes require correction. Of ALL HUMAN PHYSICAL CAPABILITIES, THE FUNCTION of the eye is the most easily corrected. Few people realize this, and many need glasses long before they get them. This is often true of children. Uncorrected defects in vision can mar a child's future. Why not have us make an appointment with a skilled eye specialist for your entire family? Should you require glasses, we will be happy to guide you in choosing a frame styled just for YOU.

Large selection of frames at regular and sale prices. Both high quality merchandise of fine styling. Why not bring your prescription to MAYCOCK OPTICAL, 1327 Broad St., the corner of Broad and Johnson, where you can buy single vision glasses complete for as low as $14.95.

BEAUTIFUL
ROCKLAND
HOME OF QUALITY

A most gracious home on one of the most beautiful streets in Rockland. Spacious entrance hall leads to a very lovely living room with dignified open hearth. The separate dining room is perfect for entertaining and sliding glass doors lead to a lovely sunny patio. The kitchen is well designed and has roomy breakfast area. Two large bedrooms, one with fireplace, could be a beautiful den. Very pretty 4-pce. bathroom. Downstairs there is another bedroom and a 2-pce. washroom. Lovely high basement has a fireplace in rec area. There is room here for much more development. The garden is most beautiful and offers seclusion. Truly a home of quality and beauty in a superb setting. Included in the price are stove, fridge, washer and dryer and drapes. There is wall to wall carpet over oak in many of the rooms, adding $31,500.

This 5-year-old contemporary styled home is in an area the very nature of which predestines your investment to be a guilt-edged security. The property is cleared enough for brightness, treed enough for seclusion; the lawns are just seeded, the drive and park area blacktopped. There's a double carport, room to park a boat AND very easy access to a warm sheltered beach. Beautifully panelled, the living room has a stone floor-to-ceiling fireplace, top grade oak floors, a wall of low windows to the sea view and access to a full length deck for summer living. The kitchen is a happy combination of ideally planned work areas, nice eating area and a delightful outdoor view. The bedrooms all have big closets and the whole house has been designed for minimum upkeep. A sheer joy to show.

Earl of Levity Sells City to Guests

By TED GASKELL

To the passing motorist, it might seem that Earl Levy has the easiest job in the world.

But there's more to his job than just standing on a corner, carrying a Red Lion sign and returning the waves and greetings of the motorists.

He looks pleasant and relaxed as he stands there in his top hat and red frock coat. Well, pleasant he may be although his feet don't contribute much to this attitude after eight hours on the pavement, but relaxed he isn't.

His corner isn't the safest in the world. Fast-cornering cars head right for him before they straighten out and if one was to go out of control and not straighten out, then he'd be in a pretty bad spot. One car did just that and smacked into a power pole there but fortunately the Earl of Levity, or Mr. Victoria as he is sometimes called, wasn't on duty at that time.

CAR WATCHER

He keeps an eye on all traffic. He has to know when to return a wave and when to ignore it. He doesn't encourage greetings when he can see that a car might be too close to the one ahead for the driver to be unnecessarily distracted.

The Earl at work

Being a hospitality salesman might sound like an but not to Earl Levy. He's sold everything except "real estate and books." I've never tried either," he said.

He started as a salesman unusual job to most people when he was very young on the prairies, selling radishes and lettuce from the family garden.

Then, as soon as he was old enough he sold newspapers, then ice cream from door to door. He got the idea of bending steel coat hangars into a V-shape and people bought them to keep their windows open in summer.

COAL SALES

One of his more successful ventures was as a coal salesman in Victoria 20 years ago, selling coal in summer. Coal stores well here in summer, there isn't the moisture loss to cause it to break up. So he sold coal, delivering a ton a month. People paid as he delivered and by the time winter came they had their coal stocks all paid for. Other firms were just starting selling by then.

In his time he has sold securities, managed a life insurance firm, been assistant manager of a nickel and dime store for $12.50 a week in 1927.

He's been a car salesman and managed a restaurant, before starting in the pitchman business in Victoria.

Before going to the Red Lion he was the Beefeater for King Arthur's Restaurant and that job had many advantages. For one thing it was a straight five-hour shift which gave him lots of time to walk around the streets of Victoria, admiring old buildings and enjoying Centennial Square. "I just loafed, like the hippies," he said.

But at the Red Lion, there's little time for that. In his off hours he rests his feet.

When he's not acting as sidewalk greeter, he works at the hotel, doing whatever needs to be done and here he meets the people who have waved at him — sometimes weeks before — and finds out that his being there on the sidewalk created the interest that brought the guests to the hotel. He gets lots of mail from guests once they get home.

He has one letter, complete with color pictures of himself, from California visitors thanking him for his kindness during their stay. In this case he noticed their car lights were left on at night. Rather than disturb too many people searching for the owner, he simply disconnected the battery wires and left a note on the windshield. Another lady wrote to the hotel pointing out that he drove her home after an accident he witnessed on the highway and would accept no remuneration.

For all his travelling around as a salesman he has never been outside Canada and has never travelled further east than Winnipeg.

"My people came from Eastern Canada. I figure if they left, there's not much back there worth seeing," he says.

Trustees Need More Trust Teacher Warns Convention

VANCOUVER — The head of the B.C. Teachers' Federation told school trustees from across the province Friday there is "a deplorable lack of mutual trust and co-operation" between the two groups.

Robert Buzza was spedking to over 400 delegatess on the final day of the B.C. School Trustees' Association annual convention at the Hotel Vancouver in Vancouver.

His criticism came a day after school trustees went on record opposing teachers holding seats on school boards. The law now allows teachers to hold office as school trustees in districts other than the one they teach in. There are five such teacher-trustees in the province.

"Many of you appear to fear us and want to work against us rather than with us. Even to the point of attempting to deprive us of our rights as citizens," said Mr. Buzza.

Despite his remarks delegates later refused to reconsider the resolution which passed 162 to 129 Thursday.

Mr. Buzza also rapped trustees for not meeting teachers face-to-face on salary negotiations. Preminminary reports indicate 11 negotiators have already been hired to bargain for school boards.

"Agents cannot produce lower settlements," he warned. "Intercommunications are difficult enough without a centrally-appointed agent attempting to dominate the picture."

Trustees adopted an executive resolution advocating a single province-wide annual bargaining on teacher salaries.

The teachers' federation opposes zone or provincial talks, favoring bargaining between individual school boards and teachers' associations.

RESEARCH SUPPORT

Other highlights:

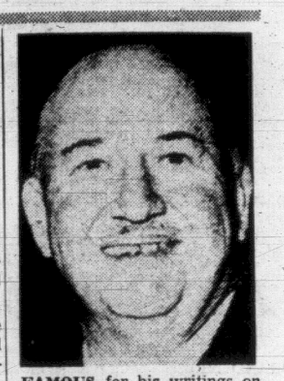

● The year-old Educational Research Institute of B.C. was given a vote of confidence when delegates defeated a move to chop its allocation from $100,000 to $30,000 this year.

● Despite criticism over the time the institute is taking to get into the research field, most trustees agreed with president Frank Beinder that the BCSTA grant to create the institute last year was "the most significant single financial decision this organization has ever made."

● Greater Victoria School Board trustee and former chairman John Porteous was elected to the association's executive.

● Among 70 resolutions, the BCSTA called on the provincial government to increase financial support for regional colleges by 50 per cent, to allow boys' and girls' dressing rooms in elementary schools and for more leadership in the field of educational television.

The convention next year will be held at the Bayshore Inn in Vancouver.

FAMOUS for his writings on the lighter side of life, Pulitzer Prize winner Eddy Gilmore died of a heart attack Friday night in his London home. He covered the Second World War and the Stalin era while based in Moscow for the Associated Press news service.

STRESSES HOUSING

Mrs. Gunning Seeks Saanich Re-Election

Saanich Coun. Edith Gunning confirmed today she will seek re-election in the December municipal elections.

Her platform will include provision of more sewered land, regional garbage disposal and a start as soon as possible on the Royal Oak light industrial estate.

First elected two years ago, Mrs. Gunning initiated the low-rental housing scheme almost ready to start in Saanich. She is chairman of the health and welfare committee and chairman of the committee handling the Hampton Park senior citizens centre.

She has already suggested the municipality look into the possibility of assembling blocks of land for housing and apartments and some "imaginative planning" of low-density apartments.

She said today she is also thinking of land being serviced and leased to buyers "so the high cost of land is taken out. But we can't do this until we have more sewered land."

Other candidates in the election are Coun. William Campbell, Coun. William Noel and A. W. (Bud) Mesher. Reeve Hugh Curtis will seek re-election and will face opposition from Lionel Speller, unless someone else opposes the reeve in which case Mr. Speller says he will run for council.

THE GNOME-MOBILE
Victoria Premiere
(Capitol Theatre)

If you can accept Walter Brennan as both a timber baron and a forest gnome, you will probably enjoy this new comedy-fantasy from the whimsical Walt Disney Studios.

Walt himself has gone, but the old traditions linger — clean family entertainment, kindness to animals, strong human interest and this time a quiet plea for forest conservation.

There is also a crazy car chase, but this is more in the style of Laurel and Hardy and the Keystone Cops than Disney.

Surprisingly, the story is based on a novel by social reformer Upton Sinclair, from which a good but rather uneven script has been evolved by Ellis Kadison.

But it is a natural vehicle for those delightful moppets, Karen Dotrice and Matthew Garber, so well remembered from Mary Poppins and The Three Lives of Thomasina.

Their screen grandfather (Walter Brennan) takes them on motor trip through northern California's lush forests and, en route, they discover three gnomes, one of whom is Brennan himself playing a dual role.

The three tourists set out in search of a gnome colony and various complications ensue. Somehow the gnomes are kidnapped by a villainous sideshow promoter and it transpires that Walter Brennan's friend (Richard Deacon) has been committed to a sanitarium for babbling about gnomes.

There is an over-long anticlimax in which Ed Wynn, another Mary Poppins veteran, shows up as a goofy kind of gnome.

The trick photography required to reduce human beings to the size of gnomes and play them against a full-size background is well in the Disney tradition for holiday entertainment.

ORGANIZED FIRST B.C. UNION

Pioneer Unionist Buried at Ross Bay

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

Many of Victoria's pioneers are buried in Ross Bay Cemetery.

One of them received little if any notice until a recent book recounted the history of trade unions in B.C.

The pioneer was Samuel Nesbitt, the first president of the first union west of Toronto.

That was in 1859 — before Vancouver Island and the mainland of British Columbia were joined (in 1866) and before British Columbia entered Confederation (1871).

The credit for placing him on the record as the pioneer trade unionist belongs to Dr. Paul Phillips in his book No Power Greater: A Century of Labour in B.C.

An advertisement in newspapers in January, 1859, announced a union of bakers.

AIMS STATED

"At a meeting of the practical bakers of Victoria, held at the Royal Hotel on Monday evening, January 17th, they resolved to form themselves into a society for the protection of their trade, together with regulating the wages of journeymen; so that they may have a just compensation for their labour and doing away with Sunday work.

"They hope to merit the approbation of the public by their endeavours to do justice to the men who have served to apprenticeship in the trade. The following officers were elected for three months. Samuel Nesbitt, president. Simon Marshfelder, treasurer. Patrick Kelly, secretary."

A printers union was formed in Victoria in 1862 or 1863 and in 1863 the Journeymen Shipwrights Association of Victoria and Vancouver Island was founded.

Dr. Phillips says these unions did not herald a great surge of labor organization. There were few skilled workers outside the construction industry, little manufacturing and lumber and fishing were yet to develop significantly.

SHORT LIVED

Of the bakers union, "little is known of what became of this pioneering effort. It does not appear to have lasted for any length of time, nor is it known whether any of the objectives were achieved. It is evidence, however, that B.C. took to unionism from the beginning."

Samuel Nesbitt (Victoria writer James K. Nesbitt is a grandson) died in April, 1881, at the age of 52. He is buried on the Fairfield Road side of Ross Bay Cemetery.

He was born in Cavan, Ireland, northwest of Dublin and a Victoria pioneer of 1858.

Neither the obituary notice nor the contemporary account mentioned his union activity of 1859.

A newspaper account of his death described him as an "active and enterprising citizen, possessed of untiring energy and a charitable disposition. Many poor families will miss his benefactions which were generally bestowed in a quiet and unostentatious manner."

Two years after his death, the first international union appeared in British Columbia — Victoria Local 48 of the American Brotherhood of Carpenters. But it disbanded next year.

In 1884 a charter was issued for a union still going strong — Victoria Local 201 of the International Typographical Union.

The first international craft union in Vancouver was also the ITU — four years after Victoria.

Victoria printers have thus had a history longer than any other union in B.C. and Local 201 — most of whose members work at Victoria Press — is the oldest union in B.C.

Why Fret? Get Wise, Improvise

By PAULINE GRAVES

"One man's meat is another man's poison," holds true for houses as it does for many aspects of life.

When you buy a house, usually there are a few things that you would have handled differently, had you planned the house from its outset.

Instead of letting these features irritate you, change them.

Shown here is just such a house, which had a snack or breakfast bar between the dining room and living room.

Instead of letting it bother them, the owners blocked off the bar with a screen, designed by decorator Marjorie Laird Murphy, and doing all of the work themselves.

The screen consists of five 15-inch-wide panels, 8 feet high, extending from floor to ceiling, three in fixed positions and the two end panels hinged for control of access to the dining room.

The bar remained in place, the counter cut off, leaving a not-offensive 3-inch ledge on the dining side, fine for display of bibelots. Concealing the former bar from the living room are the three fixed panels.

To construct the screens, frames of 1"x1"s were made and attached to wall and ceiling, except for the hinged panels, constructed separately. Quarter-inch veneer nailed to the frames provided a smooth surface, decorated with 1"x1" pine molding, cut with one side at an angle for a shadow box effect, glued and nailed to the panels in an arch design.

HANDSOME SCREENS block off a former bar which separated living room and dining room, but was not getting enough use.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Accent on Color for Fall Lift

By JACK BEASTALL

In British Columbia we have a great many coniferous evergreens which provide a continuous green background to the countryside, but we are short of native hardwoods and leaf-losing trees which provide so much of the brilliant fall color in Eastern Canada.

Jack

It is only natural that West Coast gardeners should consider fall color as a definite part of our year round garden and to use plants especially selected for the color effects they will create.

There are so many plants which obligingly suit our requirements, to mention one or two is likely to give the impression our supply is limited. It also leaves a person wide open to criticism by those experienced in growing these colorful garden subjects.

GREATEST APPEAL

In any case, not two persons are going to agree on the beauty of any plant, for we all have our likes and dislikes, so it is much wiser to select for ourselves the plants that have the greatest appeal.

This being a holiday weekend coupled with the fact that many trees and shrubs are beginning to show their true fall colors, the gardener is provided with an ideal time to visit nurseries that specialize in these plants.

A visit to a nursery does more than provide a picture of all the plants that color well in fall, it also enables you to select specimens which color exceptionally well.

While a genu, or a species within a genus, may be widely recognized as good for fall color, it is no guarantee that every plant bearing the name will produce color of the same intensity.

TEND TO DELAY

That is why the gardener desiring certain effects always selects his plants from the nursery rows, choosing the exact intensity of color that suits his requirements.

Because we have such a wonderful fall here we tend to procrastinate. We say we'll leave this and that until next week, and the first thing we know the weather is not suitable for working outside, nor is the soil suitable for planting.

All trees and shrubs are best planted in the fall in this area. When we plant we need a fairly dry, friable soil that can be packed closely around the roots with the fingers. We have that kind of soil now, but once it gets wet and tacky we can no longer obtain the necessary contact with the fine roots.

The mechanical texture of the soil is spoiled if dug when wet, and wet soil put on top of roots leaves a mass of air pockets. Roots will not grow in air, therefore a lot of roots can do nothing more than die.

Once the soil gets wet and cold there is very little root action, so our plants go into the warmth of next summer with a severely reduced root system, and it is not unusual to have a plant wither and die towards the end of May.

IDEAL NOW

Planting has such a long range effect on plants, and there are so many variables over which the gardener has no control, it always pays to do the job when soil conditions are ideal, which they are now.

When plants are not immediately available it is wise to prepare the holes in advance.

Fruit trees, ornamental trees, and roses will not be available for planting for a few more weeks, but the holes can be prepared now, the soil piled in a heap at the side and covered with plastic or boards to keep it from becoming too wet.

Spring flowering bulbs claim first attention with many gardeners. The daffodils should be in the soil now, also the hyacinths, and these will be followed by the tulips and lastly the Dutch iris (bulbous iris).

The sweet pea trench is prepared and sown as given in this column earlier this week.

Other soil preparation that should be done before the ground becomes too wet is the small square for the late October sowing of onions, and the bed for roses if several new plants are being added this fall.

The spot for onions may be only a couple of feet square, for we scatter the seed so that the seedlings will be crowded and unable to make bulbs at the base.

GO TO SEED

If bulbs form before the seedlings are transplanted in March the plants will just go to seed.

One of the most important jobs for this weekend and the weeks ahead is the cleaning up of dead and decaying plant tissue, fallen fruits, and rubbish such as pieces of woods and plastic that are lying on the soil.

The plant tissue and fruits can carry disease germs and pests over winter to infect or infest next year's crops, and rubbish provides a cosy winter home for insects.

When handling diseased material the gardener must consider himself a physician or surgeon, remembering that his hand, clothes, and tools can carry the disease from infected plants to plants that are at present healthy.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Do tigridias (Mexican Shell-flower) need to be dug up and stored over winter? T. G., Victoria.

A. Yes, in much the same way as gladiolus corms, except that since the tigridias are smaller corms, I find that they keep better if stored in a pot of dry soil to prevent complete drying-out.

Q. When should the old blossom heads be removed from hydrangeas? Mrs. V.M., Sidney.

A. Flower heads of any plant can be removed as soon as past their prime. Some gardeners leave them on hydrangeas to protect the young growths over winter. On the other hand, heavy rain or snow on the large heads can weigh down the stems and cause damage that would otherwise be avoided.

WEEK'S WORK

Take another batch of cuttings from geraniums of all kinds if wanted for next year; side shoots of fuchsias will root indoors in small pots of sand to make new plants of large sizes full of blooms.

Paperwhite narcissus and Soleil D'Or (Golden Sun) can be grown in bowls with stones and water, to flower in six weeks.

Cut down old flower stems of perennials as leaves turn yellow as well as when flowers fade.

Whenever soil is not too wet on the surface, get on with work of lifting and dividing perennials, and planting new ones.

A south facing coldframe filled with compost can be readied for winter crop of lettuce, parsley, chives.

May as well take in all squash fruits, tomatoes, peppers and other tender crops which are in the open garden.

If tuberous begonias are spoiled by rain, take up the plants and pack together in boxes under cover until leaves and stems fall. Store the corms in cool, dry place.

Check all produce in storage for early signs of spoilage.

PLASTIC FOAM FOR BEDDING INDUSTRY

Revolution in Slumberland

WINNIPEG — Residential construction offers the greatest single market for plastic materials, a panel discussion on plastics sponsored by the Manitoba Design Institute was told.

Panelist Wallace W. Burkart and Alan H. Todd of B. F. Goodrich Canada Limited, Kitchener, told Manitoba manufacturers attending the discussion that plastics are also playing an increasing role in the transportation, packaging furniture and agricultural industries.

Mr. Todd, a chemical engineer and technical service manager for BFG Chemical Canada, said the main reason for this increase is the low cost, toughness, chemical resistance and thermal and electrical resistance properties in plastics such as polyvinylchloride (PVC). He added that PVC's self-extinguishing and good weathering properties make it "very adaptable to building applications."

He cited current uses for plastics in residential housing ranging from window sashes and frames, house siding, rain gutters and insulation foams to roofdecking, electrical primary insulation, floor tiles and vinyl coated yard goods.

CODE ACCEPTANCE

Both PVC and ABS pipe and fittings for drain waste and vents for houses have received national building code acceptance, he said.

Co-panelist, Wallace Burkart, BFG product manager-foam, added that a "multitude" of flexible PVC profiles are produced for the furniture industry.

These include snap-in furniture edgings for tables and counters, desk edgings and cupboard door edgings. He said the chief purpose of these plastic edgings is scuff resistance but the matching colour properties with natural grained woods make it "almost impossible to tell where the wood starts and the plastic ends."

Mr. Burkart said years ago almost all chairs and chesterfields had a metal spring upholstery system. "Today we have either urethane or latex foam cushioning," he noted. "This means that wherever we sit, in a chair, our car, a theatre or an airplane — we are sitting on some type of foamed cushioning material."

He added that polyurethane is a plastic foam while latex foam rubber is a foamed rubber with thousands of tiny air cells and passages running through the piece of cushioning.

BEDDING NEXT

A "forthcoming revolution" that Mr. Burkart forsees is in the bedding industry where "foams will gradually replace metal springs in mattresses, just as they have replaced the springs in seating."

Mr. Burkart said the many types of cushioning materials on the market today will result in changes in labelling regulations. "It is important for the consumer to know what is inside the pillow or chair that she is buying," he said.

He noted that Ontario has introduced new labelling laws which require manufacturers to inform the buyer whether a foam mattress core is of urethane or latex foam.

Symbolic March Starts Campaign

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP) — A fall program aimed at involving Canadians from coast to coast in helping the developing nations of the world will be launched in Ottawa today by a symbolic hunger march led by Governor-General Michener.

Duncan Edmonds, executive director of the Centennial International Development Program, said at a news conference this week thousands of young people are expected to accompany the Governor-General on the two-mile walk from Rideau Hall to Parliament Hill.

There they will be served a lunch of rice cakes and water, the daily diet of millions of people in other parts of the world

Governor-General Michener will then broadcast a thanksgiving message to the nation.

The CIDP fall program, Mr. Edmonds said, will "provide a dynamic, outward looking international ending to the Centennial Year."

HIT MAJOR CENTRES

Throughout the year the organizations has been training staff and testing programs in several communities. The result is a fall move to hit every major population centre in Canada with an event that will inform people about the needs of the world.

Hunger marches, similar to the spring marches in Ottawa and Winnipeg which raised nearly $250,000 for Oxfam and other aid agencies, are the most common program planned.

Some cities will hold weekend information campaigns with teach-ins, ecumenical services, inter-service club meetings and public rallies.

Mr. Edmonds said raising money was not the object of the campaign, but large sums have been raised for international development as a result of the walks.

Dates have been set for hunger walks of 30 to 40 miles in 14 communities and planning had begun in many others.

Mediterranean Holiday Isles Shown Tuesday

Mediterranean Holiday Isles will be presented by Nicol Smith as the opening travel film on this season's World Adventure Tours on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. at the McPherson Playhouse.

Nicol Smith is the author of five books, the most recent of which is Golden Doorway to Tibet.

During the war Lieut.-Col. Nicol Smith was a secret agent for the OSS in both Thailand and Vichy, France. His travel programs are essentially stories about people: fascinating, bizarre, strange and amusing.

The Mediterranean Holiday Isles include Malta, with its late stone age temples of 2,000 B.C.; Sardinia, with its Emerald Coast which is the exquisite setting for the Aga Khan's new $50 million tourist paradise; Corsica, with its Calanche where stones resembling gargoyles glare at one from hundreds of jutting rocks; and Majorca, with its ancient capital of Palma.

Many more fascinating scenes are presented in Nicol Smith's Mediterranean Holiday Isles.

ROSE OF CENTURY label has been put on Miss-All American Beauty by All-American Rose Selections of Shenandoah, Iowa. The rose was developed from the House of Meilland in France to produce a pink flower on single stem.

Answers to Previous Puzzle

Which Are Good and Bad?

Count that as a lucky day when a yank at both ends of a shoelace causes a formidable knot to disappear. Several such tangles are pictured above. You are asked to determine which knots will bind and which will untangle when both ends are drawn.

Incidentally, knotting and splicing can be an interesting hobby, and its cultivation can be especially useful to members of the legion of yachtsmen in our coastal waters and lakes. An instructive volume covering the subject in detail is The Art of Knotting and Splicing, by Cyrus Lawrence Day (pub. by U.S. Naval Institute for public sale.)

Answer to the problem above: Knots A and B should not bind.

POSERS DAFFIER THAN EVER

Readers often ask to have this poser repeated. It's a classic brain teaser that drives some folks daffy.

Tom, Dick and Harry stopped at a hotel and engaged a suite for the night. They were told the charge was $10 each, so the men paid $30 in advance.

The next morning an assistant manager decided the suite should have been rented for $25, instead of the $30 paid. He gave a bellboy the rebate to take to the three men. The bellboy was not entirely honest, so he gave each man $1 and kept $2 for himself.

So each of the trio, after receiving the $1 rebate, paid only $9 for his room. That made $27 for all three. The bellboy kept $2 which makes $29. What happened to the other dollar?

Solution: It is all in the way the puzzle is stated and the way you figure it. The clerk gave the bellboy $3 and kept $25. The bellboy gave each man $1 and kept $2. Each man paid $8, less $2 to the boy, leaving $25.

Answer: Roughly, fifty miles.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Some alert collectors may have noticed that the measurements of the Vanier commemorative stamp are different from those of any previous Canadian issue.

The reason is that this is the first stamp to be printed on one of the two new presses acquired by the Canadian Bank Note Company which had the contract for printing them.

These presses are designed to print either by the line-engraved, or by the offset process; or by a combination of both. The Vanier stamp is an example of the latter combination.

The new presses are capable of printing stamps in three different sizes, although the vertical dimension will always be 24mm in each case.

Horizontally they can be adapted to print stamps either 20mm, 30mm, or 40mm in width, measuring from perforation to perforation. The Vanier stamp exemplifies the maximum size that can be produced.

●

Although the Toronto Centenary stamp which was released Sept. 28 was issued later than the Vanier commemorative, it was printed on the older press, so still comes in the same size as previous issues.

By the beginning of the year all stamps are expected to be produced on the new presses.

This is important from a philatelist's point of view, for it means that the current Centennial stamps will come to rather a sudden end after having had a much shorter life than usual for a Canadian issue.

So to avoid having to pay fancy prices later, it is advisable to fill in on the current set while available. Fine used specimens of the higher values — especially the $1 — have not been in issue long enough to become plentiful.

Then there are the coils, which are so seldom used these days, not to mention the booklets. And if you include plateblocks, by all means complete them now if you can afford it, although for most collectors it will result in a somewhat concave pocketbook for a while! while!

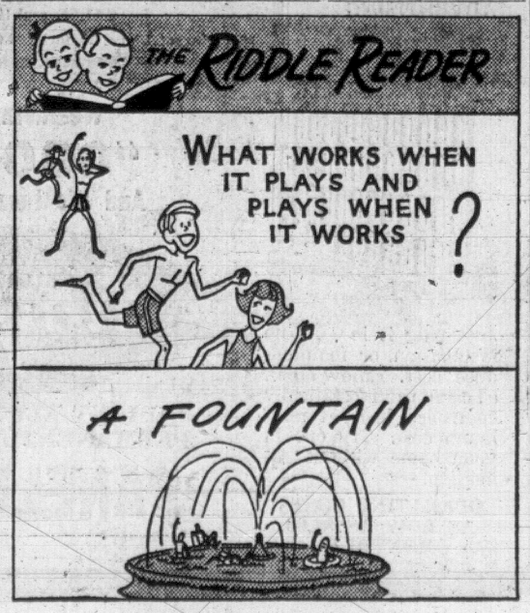

By the way, the new higher postage rates announced in the press lately will not come into effect before next April at the earliest.

Former Cleric N.B. Ombudsman

FREDERICTON (CP) — New Brunswick's first ombudsman is a white-thatched educationist who once described a new job as something that "prolongs my life."

DR. FLEMINGTON
. . . keeps me young

Dr. W. T. Ross Flemington, 70-year-old native of Britannia, Nfld., and former president of Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., was appointed New Brunswick ombudsman by Premier Louis Robichaud.

Friday's announcement of the appointment by the Liberal premier came less than three weeks before the Oct. 23 provincial election.

Dr. Flemington, a United Church clergyman and chief Protestant chaplain with the Canadian Army overseas from 1942-1945, said in a statement Friday that his new job as investigator of complaints by the public against the provincial government "is a great opportunity for me to pioneer in a new field of service to this province."

The quiet - spoken veteran of two world wars said "it will be my concern to make the office human in its operations and humane in its effects."

EXPERIENCE VARIED

Dr. Flemington returned from overseas duty in the Second World War to become Mount Allison president in 1945, retiring in 1962 to become director of education for external aid of Canada. In this position, from which he retired in 1965, he guided programs under which large numbers of foreign students were received by Canadian universities.

It was during a 1962 interview that he referred to his new position with external aid as a job that would prolong his active life.

At that time, Dr. Flemington was one year away from retirement as Mount Allison president. Always ready to turn his wit on himself, he said then that the new job freed him from such prospects as "sliding into senility."

Mr. Robichaud, in his announcement Friday, described Dr. Flemington as a man "who has a wide and deserved reputation for his beadth of human sympathy and understanding.

New Brunswick joins Alberta as the only Canadian provinces using ombudsmen.

PEEVED AT BRITAIN

Separatist Talk In Orkney Islands

KIRKWALL, Orkney Islands (CP)—Discontent is flaring on the tight little islands off Scotland's northern coast.

A few young rebels in the Orkney Islands have urged their fellow residents to break from Britain and seek home rule under Denmark, 450 miles across the North Sea.

Orkney county council found itself confronted Friday with a request that it join with the county council for the more northern Shetland Islands and seek independence for the two groups.

The request came from the Shetland council. But the Orkney council shunted the matter to its business committee for later consideration—a polite way of putting the idea in permanent cold storage, some councillors said.

SUBTLE SNUB

The notion of independence for the 36,000 residents of the two island groups is looked on primarily as a means of voicing discontent with the deal given them by mainland authorities.

The islanders are said to resent a projected amalgamation of their counties with the mainland Scottish county of Caithness for purposes of water and police services.

There has been grumbling in the Orkneys about air services to that remote region.

Some Orcadians believe their ethnic roots are more Scandinavian than Scottish.

LED LIBERALS

The complaint seems widespread that the islands are being neglected by the Labor government in London. The islands are represented in Parliament by Liberal Jo Grimond, leader of his party until last January.

The Shetland county council wanted its Orkney counterpart to join in a combined petition to the Queen.

One Orkney town council expressed support for the petition.

There seems some possibility that Shetland council will undertake the petition on its own.

Marijuana Research Plan Investigated

A psychologist at the University of Victoria is sounding out Ottawa on the legality of a research project on marijuana.

The action by Dr. Gordon Hobson, acting head of Uvic's psychology department, follows a Students' Council motion unanimously supporting a research program on "the uses and abuses of marijuana."

Fourth-year arts student Tom Paul told the council meeting Sunday night it was evident a number of people on campus are using marijuana.

The council indicated it would like the research project handled at the university.

University president Malcolm Taylor said earlier this week it was his understanding possession of marijuana for any purpose, including research, was illegal.

Dr. Hobson has written a narcotics bureau official asking for information.

"As research workers our department is interested in the effect marijuana may or may not have on human behavior," he said.

"We don't know if any work on this problem is taking place in the country."

Rebel Plane Downed After Lagos Attack

LAGOS (CP) — A plane from successionist Biafra was shot down by anti-aircraft fire today after it bombed a residential district of this federal capital that contained several foreign embassy buildings.

The plane's eight crew members—four Africans and four whites—were killed when the plane exploded 30 feet above the Ikoyi residential district.

The bodies of the crew were found hundreds of yards from the plane. One smashed through a roof of the Czechoslovakian embassy; another in the Czech embassy's garden and the third behind the embassy's servants' quarters.

Record Rains Slosh Tofino

A record 5.29 inches of rain fell on Tofino in the 24 hours ending at 4 this morning.

The rain swelled the Kennedy River and left a foot of water on parts of the Tofino-Alberni Highway.

NOT WANTED in Jamaica is touring U.S. black power advocate Stokely Carmichael who has been prohibited from entering the country by the ministry of home affairs. No reason was given.

Besides being wet, some residents were also cold.

Tofino, Ucluelet and Long Beach residents ate cold suppers Friday night during a power blackout. Blasting operation knocked out a transformer near Taylor River Bridge where road widening work is being done.

POWER OFF

Power was off for five hours.

The rain was still falling at press time but the road was once more passable, according to reports from the west coast centre.

Today's rain brought the Tofino total for October up to 8.5 inches. There has only been one day without rain. Previous record for 24 hours in Tofino was 4.40 inches in 1961.

Victoria has had its share with a full two inches this month or five times the normal for the period.

In Tofino its "very wet but we're having no real problems," said Barry Dean of the Maquinna Hotel.

ROAD CLOSED

He said the road had been closed but the conditions had improved and the mail truck got through.

Mr. Dean said a number of visitors are expected today but he didn't know if they would arrive.

"If enough people want to come a ferry will make the run to Ucluelet and visitors can take to paved road from there to Tofino."

Meanwhile, high winds were causing trouble at Patricia Bay airport.

Air Canada cancelled two flights in to Patricia Bay because planes could not land. Consequently two flights out were abandoned.

SOME CLEARING

The weather at the airport was clearing a little by noon and many passengers were in the waiting rooms hoping flights would be available. Meanwhile, some were taken by bus to the ferries to travel to Vancouver and Seattle.

But even if flying conditions were improving the weather office held out little hope for a general improvement.

"It will be a wet weekend," said meteorologist Allan McQuarrie.

Rock Kills Michigan Truck Driver

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A truck driver in Michigan was killed today by a rock that smashed through his windshield from an overpass.

Five other trucks were hit by rocks or gunfire in Ohio and Pennsylvania as the tempo of violence picked up despite attempts to find a solution to the steel hauler's strike.

The Michigan man was killed on U.S. 23 just south of Flint.

The driver, Frederick E. Beck, 40, was hauling animal parts to a soap factory in a flatbed but a state trooper said the load could easily have been mistaken for steel in the darkness.

Bomb Halt for Talks Called Same Old Tale

SINGH
. . . old song?

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — American officials today expressed skepticism about an Indian claim to inside information that North Vietnam would talk peace if the U.S. stopped bombing it.

The claims were made by Indian Defence Minister Sarsar Swaran Singh in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly Friday.

The administration is studying the speech, but officials are reported skeptical of Singh's categorical statement that Hanoi would respond "favorably" if the U.S. unconditionally stopped bombing the North.

Officials said they heard frequent similar assertions from Indian spokesmen in the past, but knew of nothing to suggest New Delhi obtained recent information from Hanoi.

MEMBER OF ICC

Diplomats at the UN attached considerable importance to Singh's speech because India is a member of the International Control Commission in Vietnam with Canada and Poland, and because it has top-level representation in the key capitals involved, including Hanoi.

One American source said it was "a fascinating statement."

The U.S. has repeatedly called for reconvening the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conferences on Vietnam, of which Russia and Britain were co-chairmen. Russia has blocked the efforts.

Even before the Indian call for a stop to bombing—one of many since the start of the UN General Assembly—President Johnson was under greater pressure than ever before to halt the bombing. Most of the pressure came from national rather than international sources.

But authoritative sources said there is no reason to believe he contemplated any great change in strategy. The prospect was for more steady pressure being applied militarily on North Vietnam, sources said.

Cardinals In Front

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals were leading Boston Red Sox 5-2 today in the eighth inning of the third World Series game.

The largest crowd in St. Louis baseball history—54,575 fans—saw the home team jump to a 3-0 lead after two innings.

Each team has won a game in the best-of-seven series.

Quebec Poll: 'Last Chance For Ottawa'

Viet Cong, Press Dodge Egg Barrage

MONTREAL (CP) — Trouble broke out at the University of Montreal Friday when 30 students from South Vietnam protested against the presence of three Vietnamese students of the National Liberation Front who were completing a tour of Quebec.

The three students—two men and woman—were touring the province to explain the viewpoint of the Viet Cong guerrillas.

The 30 students organized a systematic bedlam until Prof. Jacques Yvan Morin, an international law specialist, succeeded in gaining a measure of control.

DODGE VEGETATION

The community centre of Maplewood Avenue in west-central Montreal was packed to the point where even a small section reserved for reporters was so overwhelmed that they went on the stage where they had to dodge tomatoes and eggs.

Ly Van Sau and Mrs. Ngoc Dung spoke for a short time but could hardly be heard, while Le Mai, the third member of the team, did not choose to speak.

"Assassins" and "Communistes" were heard throughout the centre by students protesting against the presence of the three students.

Mr. Sau was derided when he said his country would give every assistance in helping towards Quebec's emancipation.

He was in turn applauded when he compared the lot of the French Quebecers to that of the American Negroes, the South Americans, the Africans and the Asians.

QUEBEC (CP)—Le Soleil, summarizing results of a survey conducted among members of the legislative assembly, says supporters of the Union Nationale party of Premier Daniel Johnson intend to give Ottawa "one last chance" to grant "equality" to Quebec within two or five years before opting for independence.

In a copyright story, the Quebec daily says the survey showed that the majority of Opposition Liberal members favor a "special status" for Quebec and reject independence for economic reasons.

The survey was conducted jointly by Le Soleil and the Toronto Star. Questionnaires were sent to 39 members of the Union Nationale party, 42 Liberals and two of the three independents in the assembly.

The standing in the assembly: Union Nationale 56, Liberals 49, Independents 3, total 108.

SENT TO JOHNSON

Le Soleil says the questionnaire, drafted as debate on possible constitutional changes continued in the province and the country, was sent to Premier Johnson, now recuperating in Hawaii from a bout of phlebitis. The story does not say whether he replied. Identity of those replying was not given.

Replies were received from all 42 Liberals who were sent the questionnaire. Only 34 of the 39 Union Nationale members questioned sent answers.

The Union Nationale members backed their leader's theme of "equality or independence." All insisted on the importance of immediate negotiations with Ottawa.

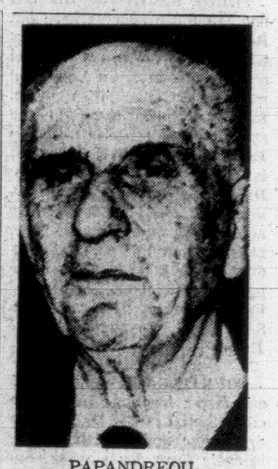

But they differed on just what equality means. A total of 82.3 per cent considered equality meant a special status for the province. The remainder felt it meant economic independence.

WANT TAX POWER

However, they were agreed on these major objectives:

1. Recovery by the province of all taxation powers;
2. Exclusive provincial jurisdiction on education, culture, manpower, social security and immigration;
3. Participation with Ottawa in the drafting of economic and fiscal policies;
4. The right to conclude international agreements;
5. Equal school rights for French minorities in other provinces.

A total of 88.1 per cent favored a special status for Quebec and 95.2 per cent rejected the idea of independence for the province.

PAPANDREOU
. . . released

Former Premier Set Free

ATHENS (Reuters) — The army-backed Greek government tonight freed former premier George Papandreau from house arrest.

Papandreou, leader of the Centre Union party, had been under house arrest since the military took over in April.

An announcement by the minister of public order said that the government had lifted all restrictions on the movements of the former premier and eight other former deputies of his party.

Papandreou, 79, was arrested on the night of the coup, April 21.

He was held for few days in an Athens hospital, then he was placed under strict house arrest in his villa in Kastri, 16 miles north of Athens.

OTHERS SET FREE

The announcement by Public Order Minister Paul Totomis said the government would refer the case of 22 other former deputies of the Centre Union party, now under arrest, to a security committee.

Papandreou was treated at an Athens hospital for a suspected blood clot. The military regime paraded him before the world press seven days after the takeover.

He and his son, Andreas, who was seized and accused of high treason, form a focal point for liberal and left-wing loyalties in Greece.

People Ordered Away From Canal

SUEZ, Egypt (AP)—The Suez Canal cease-fire line separating Egyptian and Israeli forces appears to be hardening day by day into a fortified international border.

Thousands of Egyptian civilians daily are streaming westward away from the canal. Egypt plans to evacuate up to 250,000 persons and all factories from the frontline area vulnerable to Israeli guns.

The evacuation order, coming four months after the United Nations-sponsored ceasefire that ended the June 5-10 war, proves the Arabs do not expect a quick settlement, informed sources say.

The evacuation also diminishes hopes of reopening the Suez Canal, closed to shipping since early June.

The 103-mile canal linking the Mediterranean with the Red Sea, is still considered an important international trade route. But many shippers, forced by the long closing, have found substitute routes.

Oil companies that depended on the canal are planning supertankers that carry huge cargoes around the Cape of Good Hope at less cost than smaller vessels able to fit through the waterway.

Egyptian Vice-Premier Aly Sabry described the evacuation a "a forced migration of all citizens whose stay is not essential and shifting of all industries from the zone of other governments."

MYSTERY OBJECT MAKES SPLASH

Saw Saucer . . . Same Sank

SHELBURNE, N.S. (CP) — Seven navy divers were searching waters off nearby Shag Harbour today for a mysterious object.

Four divers covered the area about a half-mile off shore Friday and three divers from Halifax joined the hunt.

They were sent here Friday after local residents and RCMP reported Wednesday that they had observed an illuminated object splash into the water and float for a time before sinking.

RCMP Constable Ron O'Brien, summoned to the scene minutes after the initial sighting, said he saw a light floating on the water about a half-mile offshore.

"It was being carried out to sea by the tide and disappeared before we could get a boat to it."

Fishermen reported sighting a wide patch of yellow foam in the area immediately after the object splashed down but it had disappeared when divers arrived.

Naval spokesman in Halifax said defence department officials had ruled out the possibility that the object fell from an aircraft or came from a passing ship. No aircraft were reported in the vicinity at the time of the sighting.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for a special RCAF department on unidentified flying objects said Friday his department was following the search with interest.

"We get hundreds of reports every week," he said, "but the Shag Harbour incident is one of the few where we may get something concrete on it."

At least a dozen people reported seeing the object glide into the water and an RCMP spokesman said "the lis is growing."

'RUSSIA GETS JACKPOT; WANTED EGYPT TO LOSE'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The former British commander of the Jordan's Arab Legion says the Soviet Union has stolen the jackpot in the Middle East and now holds a pistol to the head of Western Europe.

He also said the Soviet Union wanted Egypt defeated in the June Middle East War.

The war gave the Russians the chance—after 200 years of trying—to establish their fleet in the Mediterranean, Lt.-Gen. Sir John Glubb said Friday night in a speech to the English Speaking Union.

Glubb spent most of his life in the Middle East. He commanded the famed Arab Legion during the Second World War and until 1953 when he was dismissed by Jordan's King Hussein. He now lives in England.

SIR GLUBB
. . . hold on trade route

Glubb said the Soviet Union warned Egyptian President Nasser Israel was about to attack his ally, Syria. When Nasser sent his army into Sinai, the Soviets immediately supported him and sent warships through the Bosphorus.

He said the Soviets knew that Egypt would be defeated but supported Nasser anyway.

"There can be only one conclusion: namely, that the Soviet government wanted Egypt to be defeated."

Like Napoleon and Sir Winston Churchill, Glubb said the Soviet Union realizes control of Egypt by any great power and naval command of the Mediterranean permits the domination of Europe because the Middle East is a vital trade route for Western Europe.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1967—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Unless we have among us those who know more than they care to reveal, there is not one shred of tangible, scientific proof to indicate that a race of giant ape-like creatures from earth's remote past has somehow survived in remote fastnesses of the Pacific Northwest. Yet from his mountain of non-evidence, Rene Dahinden has defined Sasquatch habits and, within wide limits, worked out a population estimate.

Between Alaska and northern California, he suggests, from 250 to an extreme of 1,000 Sasquatch may rove, feed and mate in small separate bands. He favors the lower figure.

Legend and reports of sightings have helped him fill in his map.

Native accounts hint at two Sasquatch types, the most frequently reported, a hair-covered biped that stands six or eight feet tall. The other and rarer is said to attain a fearsome 16 feet. Sasquatch-hunter Dahinden asks, could these be child and parent?

Rene does not often hear of a sighting from those concerned. Usually, first word comes to him from a relative or friend to whom the principal has confided his incredible tale.

That, he says, while the second of his chubby little cigars expires in the ashtray, is how he learned about the hunter who caught a flicker of movement behind a brush clump in a mountain meadow above the North Thompson.

★

A bear, perhaps. He slipped his rifle safety and began a half-circle that would bring him to the far side of the thicket.

What he saw was no bear.

He raised the rifle; and with finger on trigger, was stayed by a doubt that others claim to have encountered. It wasn't a woman . . . couldn't possibly be . . . and yet . . .

The creature had been feasting on berries. Presently it shambled off; and except for a later screaming in the woods below, that was the end of an experience he remembers as a waking nightmare.

Strange droppings have been reported, but never brought in. Neither has a photograph that sheds any light on the mystery.

"But," Rene points out, "people who travel in that kind of country don't often take cameras along. If there does happen to be a camera, it's usually down in the bottom of a man's pack."

There are, however, those outlandish tracks. They have been reported from as far north as Alaska, and Rene feels they offer the best hope of proving or disproving the existence of the Sasquatch.

Last spring, he arranged with a logger who lives by a Humboldt County access road of uneasy reputation to pass the word when next a heavy-footed chimera locally dubbed

★

Between dark and dawn, three sets of great, flatfooted tracks had been printed deep in the dirt road. They emerged from a rocky draw, ambled along the road, abandoned it for open, low brush, then came back along the road to stop by a box of tractor treads and another of bolts cached beside it.

This ironware had been tossed about in rage or play, presumably by 'Mr. Bigfoot' with his 52-inch stride, and two lesser creatures of his breed that could be mate and child.

Explain it? In this matter, I maintain a state of suspended disbelief. But I think a serious, determined and sustained attempt should be made to come at the truth. Further, if an expedition is ever launched (the only one to date was a quicky California venture financed by two Texas oilmen in 1959) I hope Sasquatch-hunter Rene Dahinden will be included the party.

According to him, this hoax, myth or astounding fact has so far cost him his wife, two sons, and something over $10,000.

He lights another cigar, and produces a final statement. This one is attributed to a Boris Porshnev, in 1958 director of modern history at the USSR Academy of Sciences, and deals with the apemen reputed to haunt the Pamir Mountains:

"It is not a question of belief — we know there are such creatures!"

LUCKY SHOT? Not really. Dale Marcy (right) of Portland, Ore., one of North America's top archers, could have hit a worm in that apple in the eye if he wanted. Fred Usher, president of Victoria Bowmen, is smiling because he knows it. Mr. Marcy is in Victoria this weekend to present a film lecture on bow hunting in Africa tonight and a clinic for local bowmen Sunday. His bow is the latest in the field, $175 worth of precision-engineered wood and glass. (Irving Strickland Photo)

If You're Seeking Fun Just Follow the Arrows

By DON VIPOND

Labour Day three years ago was a special day with an appropriate title for Dale Marcy.

For eight hours that day he crawled through the gullies of the Little Delta River in Alaska stalking a giant cariboo.

It was worth it. After a two-mile game of hide-and-seek he bagged what was then a world's record animal, a moment of triumph for any hunter.

For Dale it was even more because he hunts with a bow. One of the top archers in North America, he bagged the cariboo with a shot covering just 17 yards.

The 44-year-old, from Portland, Ore., is in Victoria to present a free film lecture tonight at the Dockyard Recreation Hall.

CLINIC SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon he will conduct a private clinic for the local archers who are members of the Victoria Bowmen.

It was 22 years ago when Dale was a Nevada State trooper that he was assigned the job policing a hunting area restricted to bowmen.

They asked him to join and "I had so much fun I've been at it ever since."

Both a hunting and a target archer, Dale has bagged deer — three different species — moose, cariboo, bear, mountain goat, cougar and a host of small game.

His score includes birds too. He has taken pheasants, ducks and geese on the wing.

BLEND OF SKILLS

Bow hunting is a blend of skills, he explains. First the stalk and then the question of accuracy.

"I like to get inside 30 yards or even 20 before shooting."

Archery isn't for the pot hunters. On average a bowman gets a deer for every six years he hunts.

"Those are full-time professional deer and you're a part-time amateur hunter. That's why it's a real sport. If you're going out for meat, you better buy it."

Marcy can hit a dime flipped in the air when demonstrating trick shooting. It's not just a gift. It comes from three hours a day at practice.

BOW CHANGED

The days of Robin Hood and the yew long bow are long gone.

Today's bows are a composite of wood and glass, recurved at the ends for added power. Arrows can be glass, wood or aluminum.

Dale's film tonight deals with bow hunting in Africa. It starts at 8 p.m. at the Dockyard Recreation Hall, on Admirals Road opposite Naden.

The public is welcome but those interested are asked to call Fred Usher, president of the Victoria Bowmen, at 384-4289, and let him know they are coming so he can plan accommodation.

MERGER POSTPONING ELECTIONS?

If Sidney and North Saanich vote in favor of amalgamation on Nov. 7, there probably won't be any December elections for the two municipalities.

An official of the department of municipal affairs said today the elections could be postponed until mid-March when the letters patent are made out for the new municipality.

The two councils asked the department for a ruling on the matter, with a view to requesting a postponement of elections if amalgamation is supported.

In March ratepayers would elect members to one council.

Walkout Ended At BCFP

One walkout is over in Victoria but another remains unsettled.

Employees of B.C. Forest Products plywood mill decided Friday afternoon to return to work Tuesday after hearing from officials of the International Woodworkers of America who met management earlier.

The 400 men stopped work Wednesday protesting working conditions.

"The company agreed to certain propositions but refused final agreement until the men returned to work," said union president Murray Drew.

MUST BE THE SALT AIR

Late Boozers More Decorous In Victoria Than Vancouver

How would you like a job where you have to tell drunken clients, some of them rowdy, they can't buy what they want most — more booze?

This is the dicey task of the liquor store clerk.

The law prohibits him selling anything to people who he believes to be intoxicated.

It's a decision he has to make and a tough one too because drunks, or near drunks, show all the behavior patterns other people do.

Liquor store managers in Greater Victoria report the problem is not so serious.

But nine out of 10 after-midnight patrons of Vancouver's late closing liquor stores are drunk, a Liquor Control Board delegate told the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention in Penticton Friday.

"And the other 10 per cent are bootleggers or taxi drivers calling for people who can't make it," said James Dunn, an employee in a late-closing store in the heart of Vancouver's skid-road district.

His is one of three Vancouver liquor stores open to 2 a.m. five nights a week.

"Often it's a matter of judging degree of impairment — these guys are all drunk," Mr. Dunn said in commenting how store employees decide whether or not to sell liquor to customers.

"The majority of these customers after midnight are difficult to handle and are to some degree impaired."

He was speaking during debate on a resolution urging the government to set midnight as closing time at all liquor stores.

The convention's resolution noted that after midnight service "puts great strain and responsibility on employees as they must make quick decisions" on matters involving impairment.

Locally most liquor stores close at 6 p.m. with some 9 and 11 p.m. closings.

But trouble with customers?

Very little, report district store managers today.

In relation to the thousands served, it's negligible.

"Let's face it, we have a little different clientele," said one manager.

"Now and again," said another, "we have to tell someone to go and take a walk around the block and come back next week."

MARIJUANA CHARGES

Two youths today were charged with possession of marijuana.

Brian Hobbs, 20, of 530 Craigflower, and Garry Nieman, 19, of 131 Sims, were arrested by RCMP officers Friday night in separate incidents.

They were remanded to Tuesday for plea in magistrate's court.

Hobbs, represented by lawyer Alan Bigelow, was released on his own recognizance. Bail was set at $1,000 for Nieman.

Yvan de Montigny, 26, of Abbotsford, was sentenced to one year for obtaining goods by false pretenses.

Court was told de Montigny purchased a $31.95 coat from Tip Top Tailors, 1412 Douglas St., with a worthless cheque Sept. 30.

He asked the court for help, saying "I'm not really a bad guy, there's just something wrong. I need help to find what it is."

Francis Grills, 17, of 508 Ellis was charged with robery with violence. The charge arose out of a purse-snatching incident Sept. 30.

The case, which was transfered from juvenile court, was remanded to Tuesday.

AA Meeting Here Today

More than 200 delegates from Vancouver, New Westminster, Seattle and Victoria are attending a weekend conference of Alcoholics Anonymous which opened today at the Ingraham Hotel.

There will be a public meeting in the hotel from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday at which ex-alcoholics will tell of their experiences.

Fun Centre Bid Call Next Year

Saanich hopes to call tenders for a $100,000 senior citizens' centre early next year, Coun. Edith Gunning said today.

She is chairman of a special projects committee handling details of the centre, which will be built in Hampton Park. It is part of the $1.25 million recreation program.

Plans should be complete this year, she said.

Earlier this week, architect John Di Castri said a centre as planned with auditorium, lounge, reading room, activity rooms and service areas would cost between $245,430 and $284,130 depending on plan and construction.

Coun. Gunning said the high figures were not "surprising" because the committee started from the ideal and will cut down.

ELASTIC PLAN

The architect had plans under way to cut the project approximately in half and will bring in two separate plans — one to see if an auditorium can be excluded but other items left in and the second include an auditorium but adapt it for other uses.

The referendum approved by ratepayers earlier this year specified $100,000 for this project.

The first stage of the recreation program, the Tillicum Arena near the drive-in theatre, is expected to go to tender by the end of December and, if construction starts early in the new year, should be ready for use this time next year.

The estimated cost of the arena has exceeded the allocation by $54,000. The bylaw set $420,000 but the estimate is $474,000.

Last two stages of the program are a $470,000 swimming pool and community centre at Gordon Head and a $260,000 community centre on the McRae Estate — which Saanich has expropriated but not yet purchased.

Firemen's Flame

Miss Fire Prevention, Darlene Andruff, 20, a dockyard typist, is naval firemen's choice of they'd most like to slide down girl they'd most like to slide down poles with. She's publicizing Fire Prevention Week which ends Oct. 14. Almost 600 Canadians were burned to death in 1966. All district fire departments are devoting week to promotion of fire prevention.

FALLING SHORT OF TARGET

'Embarrassing Response' Seen To Burns Unit Fund Campaign

The fund drive for a special hospital unit to treat severe burns is falling well short of its target.

Almost $80,000 is needed before federal and provincial money is available, but the campaign which began earlier this year has raised only a fraction over a quarter of this sum.

The Victoria Labour Council endorsed the burns unit at St. Joseph's Hospital as its Centennial project last year and local contractors also expressed interest.

But local unions have given less than $1,000 since they were asked to contribute last March.

"It's an embarrassing response," admitted labor council secretary Larry Ryan.

BINGO PLANNED

"But our program is not complete. The program is continuing and every opportunity we get we are stressing the need to back this project. A big bingo is planned in November."

The city of Victoria is the major contributor, agreeing earlier to give a total of $20,000 — $5,000 this year, $5,000 next year and $10,000 in 1969.

A spokesman for local general contractors said nothing has been contributed to date but the project will be "reactivated in a couple of weeks and we will be working with the unions."

Another general contractor said he hasn't been approached for money but intended to donate.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said a meeting is planned for Oct. 18 with the Victoria Labour Council He said "contributions have been coming in slowly" but didn't say how much has arrived.

TO HONOR TOONE

The burns unit is to be named after the late A. W. Toone, former secretary-treasureer of the Victoria Labour Council and mayor of Victoria.

The five-bed unit would provide treatment not available here for severe burns. Elaborate ventilation and other equipment would keep it germ-free.

The first proposal, for a unit within the hospital, would have cost $90,000 with $40,000 needed in local contributions.

This was changed later to an extension of the hospital with the cost increasing to $156,000 with $79,000 needed locally.

Last July plans were changed again, to house the unit within an extended emergency area. The costs remained the same as the second proposal.

The labor council has made it clear in the past that it never intended to raise all the local amount, simply as much as it could.

WATER SHORTAGE PLAGUES SCHOOL

Durrance School on West Saanich Road has 97 pupils and a water shortage.

The school is served by a well which has never produced sufficient water. On one occasion there was no water and the children were sent home.

The well was dug four years ago to a depth of 100 feet. But there is no water, so the drilling went down 235 feet—about the height of a 21-storey building.

So far it has cost School District 63 about $15,000 for drilling and installing pumps and storage tanks. But it's a shaky system yet.

When the school opened last month a hose was left on and the storage tank was emptied. Teachers are constantly required to see that pupils don't waste water.

The problem is so acute the board has delayed a necessary school expansion until more water is available.

School board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay says board officials are spending sleepless nights pondering other water sources. All she could report is that the board is investigating.

Ask The Times

Q. How did the Victoria lacrosse team get the name Shamrocks and in what year? D.J.S.

A. The name was chosen at a meeting attended by team members in 1950. According to Det.-Insp. Bill Andrews, the team's first goal tender, "we just thought it would be a good name."

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Willow Fork May Be Scientific Instrument

By PETE LOUDON

How does a school board find an underground supply of water in the atomic age?

It calls in a water diviner.

That's what happened in School District 63 (rural Saanich) when the decision was made to build Durrance School, according to board chairman Mrs. N. G. Lindsay.

●

She said two diviners, a geologist and an engineer, were consulted four years ago before the school's inadequate well was dug.

And the city of Victoria this week hired a diviner to find a well in Beacon Hill Park.

Does this mean tax monies are being paid out for witchcraft — and with the provincial government approving it?

●

Not in the opinion of some technical experts. They say water divining, despite its name, appears to be a scientific procedure.

Until some university makes water divin..., a subject of extensive research, they don't associate themselves with it professionally however . . . nor can they explain it.

Almost every rural area has its water witches, water dowsers or diviners. The name changes with the locale. They have various methods for finding hidden water.

●

One of the most commonly seen is the chopped off fork of a willow. With the bark peeled away and the fork held with the branches toward the body, one branch in each hand, they walk back and forth across the land parcel.

They swear that when they cross the proper spot to dig a well, the tip of the willow wand tugs downward.

●

And laugh as you may, it works in a surprising number of cases.

There's an anonymous engineer in the provincial service who uses a willow wand to locate underground water pipes and mains. He's never missed yet.

His theory is that static electricity is involved. Some people carry different charges than others. Some people can witch a well and others can't.

He says it's a purely physical thing unrelated to witchcraft and one day science will explain it and put the strange reaction to use.

●

Geologists often use strange instruments and arrive at their decisions after studies of terrain and ground strata. But the willow wand results are just as certain.

Vice-chairman of the Saanich school board J. M. Kinnaird goes along with this. He recalls his father using two diviners, one after another, to find a well.

●

The second arrived at the exact point where the first had recommended the digging begin.

After all, if 50 years ago, someone had said you would soon be able to see what's going on in New York by looking into a box in your front room, you'd have considered him to be daft too.

Rebel Plane Downed After Lagos Attack

LAGOS (CP) — A plane from successionist Biafra was shot down by anti-aircraft fire today after it bombed a residential district of this federal capital that contained several foreign embassy buildings.

The plane's eight crew members—four Africans and four whites—were killed when the plane exploded 30 feet above the Ikoyi residential district.

The bodies of the crew were found hundreds of yards from the plane. One smashed through a roof of the Czechoslovakian embassy; another in the Czech embassy's garden and the third behind the embassy's servants' quarters.

Record Rains Slosh Tofino

A record 5.29 inches of rain fell on Tofino in the 24 hours ending at 4 this morning.

The rain swelled the Kennedy River and left a foot of water on parts of the Tofino-Alberni Highway.

NOT WANTED in Jamaica is touring U.S. black-power advocate Stokely Carmichael who has been prohibited from entering the country by the ministry of home affairs. No reason was given.

Besides being wet, some residents were also cold.

Tofino, Ucluelet and Long Beach residents ate cold suppers Friday night during a power blackout. Blasting operation knocked out a transformer near Taylor River Bridge where road widening work is being done.

POWER OFF

Power was off for five hours.

The rain was still falling at press time but the road was once more passable, according to reports from the west coast centre.

Today's rain brought the Tofino total for October up to 8.5 inches. There has only been one day without rain. Previous record for 24 hours in Tofino was 4.40 inches in 1961.

Victoria has had its share with a full two inches this month or five times the normal for the period.

In Tofino its "very wet but we're having no real problems," said Barry Dean of the Maquinna Hotel.

ROAD CLOSED

He said the road had been closed but the conditions had improved and the mail truck got through.

Mr. Dean said a number of visitors are expected today but h. didn't know if they would arrive.

"If enough people want to come a ferry will make the run to Ucluelet and visitors can take to paved road from there to Tofino."

Meanwhile, high winds were causing trouble at Patricia Bay airport.

Air Canada cancelled two flights in to Patricia Bay because planes could not land. Consequently two flights out were abandoned.

SOME CLEARING

The weather at the airport was clearing a little by noon and many passengers were in the waiting rooms hoping flights would be available. Meanwhile, some were taken by bus to the ferries to travel to Vancouver and Seattle.

But even if flying conditions were improving the weather office held out little hope for a general improvement.

"It will be a wet weekend," said meteorologist Allan McQuarrie.

Rock Kills Michigan Truck Driver

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A truck driver in Michigan was killed today by a rock that smashed through his windshield from an overpass.

Five other trucks were hit by rocks or gunfire in Ohio and Pennsylvania as the tempo of violence picked up despite attempts to find a solution to the steel haulers strike.

The Michigan man was killed on U.S. 23 just south of Flint.

The driver, Frederick E. Beck, 40, was hauling animal parts to a soap factory in a flatbed but a state trooper said the load could easily have been mistaken for steel in the darkness.

Bomb Halt for Talks Called Same Old Tale

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — American officials today expressed skepticism about an Indian claim to inside information that North Vietnam would talk peace if the U.S. stopped bombing it.

SINGH
. . . old song?

The claims were made by Indian Defence Minister Sarsar Swaran Singh in a speech to the United Nations General Assembly Friday.

The administration is studying the speech, but officials are reported skeptical of Singh's categorical statement that Hanoi would respond "favorably" if the U.S. unconditionally stopped bombing the North.

Officials said they heard frequent similar assertions from Indian spokesmen in the past, but knew of nothing to suggest New Delhi obtained recent information from Hanoi.

MEMBER OF ICC

Diplomats at the UN attached considerable importance to Singh's speech because India is a member of the International Control Commission in Vietnam with Canada and Poland, and because it has top-level representation in the key capitals involved, including Hanoi.

One American source said it was "a fascinating statement."

The U.S. has repeatedly called for reconvening the 1954 and 1962 Geneva conferences on Vietnam, of which Russia and Britain were co-chairmen. Russia has blocked the efforts.

Even before the Indian call for a stop to bombing—one of many since the start of the UN General Assembly—President Johnson was under greater pressure than ever before to halt the bombing. Most of the pressure came from national rather than international sources.

But authoritative sources said there is no reason to believe he contemplated any great change in strategy. The prospect was for more steady pressure being applied militarily on North Vietnam, sources said.

Cardinals Win 5-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Boston Red Sox 5-2 today in the third game of the World Series.

The largest crowd in St. Louis baseball history—54,575 fans — saw the home team jump to a 3-0 lead after two innings.

Each team has won a game in the best-of-seven series.

Quebec Poll: 'Last Chance For Ottawa'

Viet Cong, Press Dodge Egg Barrage

MONTREAL (CP) — Trouble broke out at the University of Montreal Friday when 30 students from South Vietnam protested against the presence of three Vietnamese students of the National Liberation Front who were completing a tour of Quebec.

The three students—two men and woman—were touring the province to explain the viewpoint of the Viet Cong guerrillas.

The 30 students organized a systematic bedlam until Prof. Jacques Yvan Morin, an international law specialist, succeeded in gaining a measure of control.

DODGE TOMATOES

The community centre of Maplewood Avenue in west-central Montreal was packed to the point where even a small section reserved for reporters was so overwhelmed that they went on the stage where they had to dodge tomatoes and eggs.

Ly Van Sau and Mrs. Ngoc Dung spoke for a short time but could hardly be heard, while Le Mai, the third member of the team, did not choose to speak.

"Assassins" and "Communistes" were heard throughout the centre by students protesting against the presence of the three students.

Mr. Sau was derided when he said his country would give every assistance in helping towards Quebec's emancipation.

He was in turn applauded when he compared the lot of the French Quebecers to that of the American Negroes, the South Americans, the Africans and the Asians.

QUEBEC (CP)—Le Soleil, summarizing results of a survey conducted among members of the legislative assembly, says supporters of the Union Nationale party of Premier Daniel Johnson intend to give Ottawa "one last chance" to grant "equality" to Quebec within two or five years before opting for independence.

In a copyright story, the Quebec daily says the survey showed that the majority of Opposition Liberal members favor a "special status" for Quebec and reject independence for economic reasons.

The survey was conducted jointly by Le Soleil and the Toronto Star. Questionnaires were sent to 39 members of the Union Nationale party, 42 Liberals and two of the three independents in the assembly.

The standing in the assembly: Union Nationale 56, Liberals 49, Independents 3, total 108.

SENT TO JOHNSON

Le Soleil says the questionnaire, drafted as debate on possible constitutional changes continued in the province and the country, was sent to Premier Johnson, now reeuperating in Hawaii from a bout of phlebitis. The story does not say whether he replied. Identity of those replying was not given.

Replies were received from all 42 Liberals who were sent the questionnaire. Only 34 of the 39 Union Nationale members questioned sent answers.

The Union Nationale members backed their leader's theme of "equality or independence." All insisted on the importance of immediate negotiations with Ottawa.

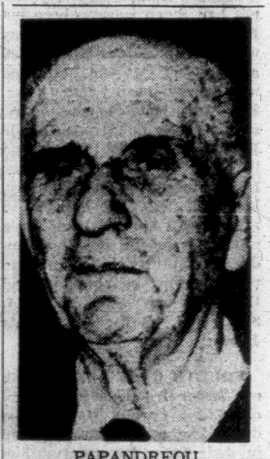

But they differed on just what equality means. A total of 82.3 per cent considered equality meant a special status for the province. The remainder felt it meant economic independence.

WANT TAX POWER

However, they were agreed on these major objectives:

1. Recovery by the province of all taxation powers;
2. Exclusive provincial jurisdiction on education, culture, manpower, social security and immigration;
3. Participation with Ottawa in the drafting of economic and fiscal policies;
4. The right to conclude international agreements;
5. Equal school rights for French minorities in other provinces.

A total of 88.1 per cent favored a special status for Quebec and 95.2 per cent rejected the idea of independence for the province.

PAPANDREOU
. . . released

Former Premier Set Free

ATHENS (Reuters) — The army-backed Greek government tonight freed former premier George Papandreau from house arrest.

Papandreou, leader of the Centre Union party, had been under house arrest since the military took over in April.

An announcement by the minister of public order said that the government had lifted all restrictions on the movements of the former premier and eight other former deputies of his party.

Papandreou, 79, was arrested on the night of the coup, April 21.

He was held for few days in an Athens hospital, then he was placed under strict house arrest in his villa in Kastri, 16 miles north of Athens.

OTHERS SET FREE

The announcement by Public Order Minister Paul Totomis said the government would refer the case of 22 other former deputies of the Centre Union party, now under arrest, to a security committee.

Papandreou was treated at an Athens hospital for a suspected blood clot. The military regime paraded him before the world press seven days after the takeover.

He and his son, Andreas, who was seized and accused of high treason, form a focal point for liberal and left-wing loyalties in Greece.

People Ordered Away From Canal

SUEZ, Egypt (AP)—The Suez Canal cease-fire line separating Egyptian and Israeli forces appears to be hardening day by day into a fortified international border.

Thousands of Egyptian civilians daily are streaming westward away from the canal. Egypt plans to evacuate up to 250,000 persons and all factories from the frontline area vulnerable to Israeli guns.

The evacuation order, coming four months after the United Nations-sponsored ceasefire that ended the June 5-10 war, proves the Arabs do not expect a quick settlement, informed sources say.

The evacuation also diminishes hopes of reopening the Suez Canal, closed to shipping since early June.

The 103-mile canal linking the Mediterranean with the Red Sea, is still considered an important international trade route. But many shippers, forced by the long closing, have found substitute routes.

Oil companies that depended on the canal are planning supertankers that carry huge cargoes around the Cape of Good Hope at less cost than smaller vessels able to fit through the waterway.

Egyptian Vice-Premier Aly Sabry described the evacuation a "a forced migration of all citizens whose stay is not essential and shifting of all industries from the zone of other governments."

'RUSSIA GETS JACKPOT; WANTED EGYPT TO LOSE'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The former British commander of the Jordan's Arab Legion says the Soviet Union has stolen the jackpot in the Middle East and now holds a pistol to the head of Western Europe.

He also said the Soviet Union wanted Egypt defeated in the June Middle East War.

The war gave the Russians the chance—after 200 years of trying—to establish their fleet in the Mediterranean, Lt.-Gen. Sir John Glubb said Friday night in a speech to the English Speaking Union.

Glubb spent most of his life in the Middle East. He commanded the famed Arab Legion during the Second World War and until 1953 when he was dismissed by Jordan's King Hussein. He now lives in England.

GLUBB
. . . hold on trade route

Glubb said the Soviet Union warned Egyptian President Nasser Israel was about to attack his ally, Syria. When Nasser sent his army into Sinai, the Soviets immediately supported him and sent warships through the Bosphorus.

He said the Soviets knew that Egypt would be defeated but supported Nasser anyway.

"There can be only one conclusion: namely, that the Soviet government wanted Egypt to be defeated."

Like Napoleon and Sir Winston Churchill, Glubb said the Soviet Union realizes control of Egypt by any great power and naval command of the Mediterranean permits the domination of Europe because the Middle East is a vital trade route for Western Europe.

MYSTERY OBJECT MAKES SPLASH

Saw Saucer . . . Same Sank

SHELBURNE, N.S. (CP) — Seven navy divers were searching waters off nearby Shag Harbor today for a mysterious object.

Four divers covered the area about a half-mile off shore Friday and three divers from Halifax joined the hunt.

They were sent here Friday after local residents and RCMP reported Wednesday that they had observed an illuminated object splash into the water and float for a time before sinking.

RCMP Constable Ron O'Brien, summoned to the scene minutes after the initial sighting, said he saw a light floating or the water about a half-mile offshore.

"It was being carried out to sea by the tide and disapreared before we could get a boat to it."

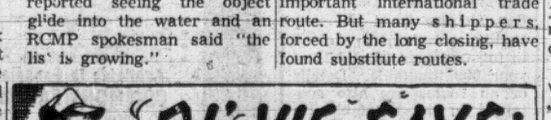

Fishermen reported sighting a wide patch of yellow foam in the area immediately after the object splashed down but it had disappeared when divers arrived.

Naval spokesman in Halifax said defence department officials had ruled out the possibility that the object fell from an aircraft or came from a passing ship. No aircraft were reported in the vicinity at the time of the sighting.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for a special RCAF department on unidentified flying objects said Friday his department was following the search with interest.

"We get hundreds of reports every week," he said, "but the Shag Harbor incident is one of the few where we may get something concrete on it."

At least a dozen people reported seeing the object glide into the water and an RCMP spokesman said "the list is growing."

They're givin' Ottawa five years t' save Confederation. Thet's longer'n I thought we had.

Analyst's Comments — Monday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — They're putting Frazier on Royal Chic and off his last he may get the job done. My Madronna, dropping 11 pounds, Sherri's Star and Abine loom dangerously in this company. Rosalito showed fair speed and from the pole has to be considered. Mercilynn has met better and Eliabhai drops down. The eligibles are full of possibilities: Salemtown goes well for the boy. Cherie Q is better than her last shows and Seven L was closing stoutly. In a scramble . . . ROYAL CHIC, Seven L, Sherri's Star.

SECOND RACE—Heather W and Fleet Brother should be in the van of these early. The former stopped as if she had been hit in the head with a 2-by-4. The latter, who may be underrated, came on again and may go better here. The rest like to come out of it, and since there isn't that much between them, it may be a matter of luck and riding skill. Shadows Sake may be the most reliable. Picalad went well for the boy. Satin's Kin shoved slop at easier but went about the job in crisp style under a clever ride . . . SATIN'S KIN, Shadows Sake, Fleet Brother.

THIRD RACE—The boy has not had much success here but Boyaggio could be the one they will have to catch. He chased a swift one in Swan Lady and may draw clear with these. Star Pal hung tough to the stretch and is dangerous. Double Event switches to Phillips and is better than the last shows. Dark Bug tried it Saturday, loves the goo, but is hard to assess. All Smoke should save ground from the pole. If Andrews can tuck in behind the pace he may be able to grind them down late . . . ALL SMOKE, Boyaggio, Double Even.t

FOURTH RACE — Few crank out faster fractions in this society than Cranky Maggie. She drops five and will throw slop in their faces for a ways. Sun Lodge, Eastern Jewel and Social Club also like to ramble near the lead. Eastern Jewel has a class edge and a better post here and may be the staunchest. Dark Doll who went Saturday and Sienna Fire are the dangers late and benefit from a pace duel . . . EASTERN JEWEL, Dark Doll, Cranky Magie.

FIFTH RACE—Bring out the tea leaves and the crystal ball—you need them here. Pils Friday likes this distance better than the marathon and can run on anything. Wild Bruce found the marathon too much and could be a different horse in here. Punters Joy is remarkably consistent and is game in the stretch. Dainty Duchess obviously favors the soft stuff as does Jakes Special who ran well for the boy. Sir Silver Scot is by no means out of it. But in the consistency department few can top Milford of Kent. He's not in easy but at the weights may be the one to fear . . . MILFORD OF KENT, Wild Bruce, Punters Joy.

SIXTH RACE — Bouncy Belle and Christopher B like to chase the rabbit and will probably be out winging. The former has been packing it up—with fast company—at shorter but has won at the distance and the rider helps. Christopher chased the best on the grounds but may feel the package. Enchalade hasn't been showing too well but always against the big boys. Polizonte couldn't cope with much the same but he has a shot if they decide to take him off the pace and take one run. Silver Wave has a look. The one we fear is War Top. He turned back slightly easier in sizzling time and may loom large in the stretch . . . WAR TOP, Polizonte, Bouncy Belle.

SEVENTH RACE — This is True picks up two pounds but we've always believed he was more at home sprinting than at a distance. He has a Churchillian bulldog approach and the pole may give him the edge. Princess Vega may miss Harris—few get them out of the gate more quickly—but Shields is hardly a liability and she loves the mud. Kenos Boy moves up and is crying for a win but the top two don't stop to pick the daisies. One final note: Gladys Ann has been freshened up, is in good hands and is an interesting possibility at a price . . . THIS IS TRUE, Princess Vega, Gladys Ann.

EIGHTH RACE—Who's Hydn moves inside and may not look back. Malheur Kitten, Primali and Cocoa Silk are likely to be in the second flight. Malheur Kitten switches to Sam who gets a lot of mileage out of horses. If Ron Arnold can get good position with G Day the others may be in trouble late . . . WHO'S HAYDN. G Day, Malheur Kitten.

Canadians See Filipino Healer Under Guard

MANILA (AP)—A large group of ailing and infirm Americans and Canadians had its rendezvous with a Filipino faith healer in a well guarded beach resort in northern Luzo today, it was reported.

The Philippine Medical Association reported the meeting as it watched the activities of Antonio Agpaoa, a grade-school dropout and self-made "doctor".

The 28-year-old healer was convicted of illegal medical practice either years ago.

Dr. Pacifico Marcos, PMA president, said the group—which included 108 from the Detroit, Mich., area and two Canadian invalids—met Agpaoa at a beach resort in La Union, on the western coast.

"My men reported they were driven away by burly men guarding the cottages occupied by Agpaoa and his patients," Marcos said. He said two of those assisting the faith-healer were identified as an American man and woman.

Marcos said nothing could be done to prevent anyone from seeking a cure from Agpaoa but that the local board of medical examiners could obtain a court injunction to stop him from administering treatment because of his previous conviction.

He said the 110 patients, who flew from Windsor, Ont., to Manila Thursday night accompanied by six relatives and friends, were reported paying Agpaoa $500 each.

"We strongly suspect that they were conned by their own countrymen," Marcos said.

Calling Agpaoa "an imposter with a gimmick," the Manila Times says his "so-called scarless operations have been exposed here and abroad as a parlor magician's trick effected with chicken entrails and expert 'palming.'"

The Philippines Herald says: "If what he is doing is something punishable under our laws, something similar to the one that led to his conviction in court, then there is no reason on earth why this should not be done fast.

"Not only is it embarrassing to the government authorities involved but also to the medical profession in this country. And this is not to add the horrific, if not ridiculous, image that the Philippines is gaining elsewhere in the world as a land where the hocus-pocus quackeries reminiscent of the dark ages are still being performed."

Names of the patients were not available.

Prince Ends City Visit

Crown Prince Harald of Norway left Victoria for Vancouver Friday after being entertained at lunch at the Union Club by Attorney-General Robert Bonner and the B.C. government.

Mr. Bonner was deputizing for Premier Bennett, who is touring Sweden.

The prince, who is heir to the throne of Norway, is spending the weekend cruising B.C. coastal waters aboard a private yacht owned by lumber executive H. R. MacMillan.

In Vancouver Friday night he was entertained at a dinner in the Bayshore Inn given by more than 400 members of the B.C. Sons of Norway.

He is due to fly back to Oslo Monday.

Beaten to Death

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Police said today Gene Koh, 21, son of a contracting and quarrying magnate here, was kidnapped today then beaten to death. His millionaire father had received a $250,000 ransom note.

Troubled Chelsea XI Hammered by Leeds

LONDON (CP) — Chelsea, playing its first game since manager Tommy Docherty resigned, crashed 0-7 to Leeds United in English League soccer today.

The humiliating defeat came 24 hours after Docherty, suspended by the English Football Association for misconduct, gave up his job.

(See also story on Page 12.)

Docherty was in West Germany today as his former team slumped to disaster. Speculation was he might be seeking a job with a West German team.

Meanwhile, Sheffield Wednesday, slamming Coventry City 4-0, regained the lead in the First Division standings with 16 points from 11 games. Liverpool, defeated 1-2 by Leicester, had 15 points and Manchester United and Tottenham Hotspur were in joint third place at 14.

TAKEN OFF FIELD

Two Scottish international—Denis Law of Manchester United and Ian Ure of Arsenal—were ordered off the field in a stormy affair at Manchester's Old Trafford Stadium. It happened eight minutes from the end after a fist fight between the two players.

Manchester, cheered on by a crowd of 60,000, won 1-0 with a goal by John Aston.

Ambulances Sabotaged

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Explosions at five-second intervals Friday night wrecked three ambulances of the only firm providing such service in Texarkana. Police said no injuries were reported.

Investigators said there was a strong odor of dynamite afterward and they found ashes left by fuses to each vehicle.

Richard Birtcher, owner of the city licenced ambulance service, was sheriff of Miller County, on the Arkansas side of Texarkana, until his defeat in last year's election.

Birtcher said he could think of no reason for the dynamiting.

Two Escape Injury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Americans escaped without injury today when their light plane crashed in the Thompson River near Ashcroft, search and rescue headquarters reported. They were identified as Robert K. Brabrook and Merrill Eugene Loudon, both from Wenatchee.

Korean Bid 'Suspicious'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Pressure at the United Nations to pull U.S. troops out of Korea and scuttle a commission set up to reunify the country has aroused Western suspicion that the diplomatic moves may be linked to mounting Communist border attacks.

The General Assembly's steering committee agreed at the outset of the session to discuss a proposal by the Soviet Union and several other Communist nations for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korean soil.

Over-riding Western opposition, the steering committee voted Thursday to have the 122-nation assembly also debate a call by Cambodia, Congo (Brazzaville) and Yemen to dissolve the UN Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea.

U.S. Ambassador William Buffum challenged the inclusion of an item that had already been debated and defeated the previous year and noted that the Russian Korean item was already on the docket anyway.

Australian Ambassador Patrick Shaw asserted that a proposal to pull out the UN presence "starts to have a somewhat ominous ring about it" in view of the rash of attacks from the North over the past 12 months.

COMMISSION 'FAILED'

The Soviet Union gave strong support to the Cambodian proposal charging that no progress had been made in the last 20 years in reunifying Korea. It added that "the commission has failed to prevent the establishment of a strong American military presence in Korea."

The North Korean Communist party organ Minjoo Chosun was reported in Seoul, South Korea, today to have charged the U.S. with using the UN "as a tool of aggression in Korea."

The peace that generally prevailed after the armistice along the 151-mile line dividing North and South Korea was shattered late last year when armed bands of North Koreans began ambushing UN patrols. In one 18-day period, the forays resulted in the deaths of six Americans and 25 South Koreans.

TROOPS CLASH

The attacks were stepped up in 1967. Last April, some 60 North Koreans and 40 troops from the South clashed. For the first time since the 1953 armistice, South Korean forces had to use artillery to drive back the Communists.

The Northerners have also been infiltrating subversives and saboteurs into South Korea, the Seoul government claims.

So far this year, 14 American soldiers have been killed and 61 have been wounded in incidents involving North Korean troops.

The sharp step-up in Red attacks is believed by Western officials to be intended to raise public doubts in Seoul about the commitment of 50,000 South Korean troops to Vietnam and to distract U.S. attention from the Vietnamese war.

Clash Kills 73 Cong

SAIGON (CP) — Waterborne American infantrymen killed 73 Viet Cong guerrillas in a gruelling battle through the rain-swollen streams and swamps of the Mekong Delta, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The spokesman said nine Americans were killed and 23 wounded in the 8½-hour clash Friday — one of the heaviest in the densely-populated delta region since the monsoon began there in July.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Continuous rain on the south coast brought a new October record total for Tofino for a 24-hour period. This station on the west coast measured 5.29 inches. The previous record was 4.40 inches in 1961. A strong circulation will continue to bring in Pacific disturbances from the southwest. Rain and gales are expected on the south coast today and Sunday. There should be some slight improvement between disturbances but the general picture is a cloudy, soggy weekend for southwestern B.C. Cloud and occasional rain will be the weather in other regions.

AND WATCH OUT FOR CATS

Sign Language Known Only to Natives on Our Gulf Island Maze

Signs play a large part in the way of life on the Gulf Islands. They lead the way to everyting but the public beaches.

An exasperated tourist on Pender Island complained he had spent two fruitless days looking for a public beach. There were signs along the way, he admitted, but they led nowhere.

●

This problem is not peculiar to Pender. The Gulf Islanders know where the public beaches are, but they ain't tellin' no strangers. Beaches yes. Public no.

An example is the public beach near Beddis subdivision, probably Salt Spring's finest. Signs point out the way but tend to disappear at the beach itself. We looked for several days, always ending up at the end of a road, a rocky pinnacle 400 feet above sea level.

●

We had the choice then of contemplating the setting sun (it was too late to swim anyway) or observing bird life in the tops of the Douglas firs below.

We finally found it. (You reach it through a gate cleverly disguised as the entrance to a cow pasture). In answer to a question, a resident nearby said

"How would you like having a bunch of unwashed kids shouting and drowning next to your house?"

We took our child home and washed him in rain water.

There are other signs of the ridiculous times on the Gulf Islands

by Ed Gould

On Bob Evan's dog farm near Ganges there is a sign proclaiming the training of sheep dogs. On the very same signpost is another sign warning of the dire penalties that will be inflicted on any woollen-picking dog caught molesting Evans' own sheep!

Sprinkled through miles of bush near Beaver Point are hand-lettered signs prohibiting shooting or hunting because of "grazing horses."

The horseman involved complains that more than one hunter has grazed his horses while hunting deer.

Cat lovers are prevalent as the cats themselves on Old Scott Road. A sign warns: Watch For Cats. One driver, a feline hater, said "I always watch for them. But they're too darned fast for me!"

●

Meanwhile, a St. Mary Laker selects his uninvited callers with care. His lawn sign reads Trespassing by appointment only!

A "private" war has ended in a truce among residents of high-faluting Sunset Drive near Vesuvius.

Seems every other resident was a retired wing commander, general or captain. And each of these worthies had duly noted his status on his rurla mail box.

●

One low caste Sunset Driver de-escalated this military poopery by prefacing his rank before his name as, Private Joe Blow (ret.)!

But for sheer dogged ingenuity, the prize for signing must go to the Salt Springer who has scared trespassing yachtsmen off his pier for years with sign lettered, R.C.M.P.

It stands for Reserved — Charles Mouat Property!

March Deadline Set For Indian Builders

DUNCAN—Cowichan Indians have to meet a March 31 deadline in the building of 20 new houses or lose the department grant.

In order to meet the challenge the band council has hired a professional builder from Vancouver.

Bill Boychuk's job will be to act as project supervisor.

Abner Thorne and his housing committee are hoping all the construction work can be done by Indian labor.

The houses are to be built on the Boys Road sub-division and this week gangs have been busy setting lines for the installation of city sewer service.

Boys Road sub-division will also get city water.

Already there has been a six-month delay in getting the project off the ground but Mr. Thorne said Friday: "Ordering and purchasing of materials will be the only possible holdup now and it is hoped there will be no more stumbling blocks."

In April at the time of mass protests by Cowichan Indians about their poor housing conditions protest committee chairman Abraham Joe estimated 80 new houses were needed immediately to meet the shortage.

Federal authorities have now pledged financial support to build these houses over a four-year period — if the band can mee the March deadline.

Reserve land north and east of Boys Road has in past years been subject to flooding but band manager Ross Modeste says the new sub-division will not face this problem.

S. W. Simpson of the department of labor has approved one four-month pre-apprenticeship carpentry training program for the Cowichan band.

Chairman of the Cowichan's community planning committee Abel Joe said Friday the course, to be held on the reserve, must have an enrolment of 10 to 12 students.

Mr. Joe said he is confident he can get at least the minimum enrolment.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

District Hospital Gets Ottawa Grant

CAMPBELL RIVER—The federal government has approved a $54,853 grant for this district's hospital.

The announcement was made in Ottawa by Health Minister Allan MacEachen.

The grant will assist in constructing an extension to the existing hospital, which will provide an enlarged emergency department and an additional 25 hospital beds.

The new construction is expected to be completed by March, 1968.

★ ★ ★

PORT ALBERNI—The provincial government will pick up part of the cost of land for hospital parking lots but not for nurses' residences.

This emerged when the regional hospital board here discussed financing for a new nurses' residence. The present residence is outmoded and would cost more to update than it is worth.

Alberni-Clayoquot hospital board now plans to purchase a building used by the sisters teaching at Smith Memorial School and adapt it as a residence.

★ ★ ★

CAMPBELL RIVER—Options on land for the proposed new arena here have been obtained.

But they can be cancelled if electors do not approve the arena referendum.

That is the word from R. C. Rathie, director of the district's recreation commission.

Site for the new complex is Second Avenue and Dogwood. It would include a hockey and skating rink.

★ ★ ★

LAKE COWICHAN— More than 200 applications have been made for night courses here with the most popular program being one to help women lose weight.

Other popular courses are English for New Canadians and a music program.

Course organizers hope that anyone knowing New Canadians will tell them the language program is available.

Vocational courses centre on the logging industry and later this year it is intended to start a heavy duty mechanics course.

Also planned for later is a seminar-type course involving adults on adolescence and problems of maturity.

Academic subjects for persons wishing to complete their high school study is also available and the correspondence courses are being continued.

One course that proved popular in previous years is not offered this year — Chinese cooking. No instructor has been found who can teach the subject.

Educationists Watching School

NANAIMO — A school with a radical precast design is going up here.

It is Wellington junior secondary school — a pentagon-shaped building with arms extending from each of its faces.

The department of education is carefully studying the construction because it could set a trend that will be followed elsewhere in the province in future.

The walls are of pre-stressed, pre-fabricated concrete made in North Vancouver and put in place by a 65-ton mobile crane, the biggest on the Island.

Toronto uses similar techniques and 11 schools have been built this way in California. The process is called Standard Construction Systems Development.

Two arms of the building, costing $672,000, are being erected.

Waterway Tunnel To Be Lined

Work will start in mid-November on concreting the walls of the water district's five-mile tunnel to Sooke Lake.

Hardrock miners will discontinue boring at the Sooke Lake end of the tunnel to allow the concreting to be done. However work from the Goldstream end will continue.

Water commissioner Ron Upward said Friday the mining of the tunnel is expected to be completed by spring of next year when the remaining 3,250 feet of rock should be bored through.

The new tunnel is being made to tap the water supply in Sooke Lake and other reservoir lakes in the watershed. The present outmoded delivery system makes it possible to tap only one-quarter of the water supply.

The concreting of the entire tunnel will be done over three years and then a pipeline of creosoted wooden staves will be connected through the tunnel. It is expected to be done during 1970.

Arthur Mayse

Unless we have among us those who know more than they care to reveal, there is not one shred of tangible, scientific proof to indicate that a race of giant ape-like creatures from earth's remote past has somehow survived in remote fastnesses of the Pacific Northwest. Yet from his mountain of non-evidence, Rene Dahinden has defined Sasquatch habits and, within wide limits, worked out a population estimate.

Between Alaska and northern California, he suggests, from 250 to an extreme of 1,000 Sasquatch may rove, feed and mate in small separate bands. He favors the lower figure.

Legend and reports of sightings have helped him fill in his map.

Native accounts hint at two Sasquatch types, the most frequently reported, a hair-covered biped that stands six or eight feet tall. The other and rarer is said to attain a fearsome 16 feet. Sasquatch-hunter Dahinden asks, could these be child and parent?

Rene does not often hear of a sighting from those concerned. Usually, first word comes to him from a relative or friend to whom the principal has confided his incredible tale.

That, he says, while the second of his chubby little cigars expires in the ashtray, is how he learned about the hunter who caught a flicker of movement behind a brush clump in a mountain meadow above the North Thompson.

★

A bear, perhaps. He slipped his rifle safety and began a half-circle that would bring him to the far side of the thicket.

What he saw was no bear.

He raised the rifle; and with finger on trigger, was stayed by a doubt that others claim to have encountered. It wasn't a woman . . . couldn't possibly be . . . and yet . . .

The creature had been feasting on berries. Presently it shambled off; and except for a later screaming in the woods below, that was the end of an experience he remembers as a waking nightmare.

Strange droppings have been reported, but never brought in. Neither has a photograph that sheds any light on the mystery.

"But," Rene points out, "people who travel in that kind of country don't often take cameras along. If there does happen to be a camera, it's usually down in the bottom of a man's pack."

There are, however, those outlandish tracks. They have been reported from as far north as Alaska, and Rene feels they offer the best hope of proving or disproving the existence of the Sasquatch.

Last spring, he arranged with a logger who lives by a Humboldt County access road of uneasy reputation to pass the word when next a heavy-footed chimera locally dubbed 'Mr. Bigfoot' left his spoor.

★

Between dark and dawn, three sets of great, flatfooted tracks had been printed deep in the dirt road. They emerged from a rocky draw, ambled along the road, abandoned it for open, low brush, then came back along the road to stop by a box of tractor treads and another of bolts cached beside it.

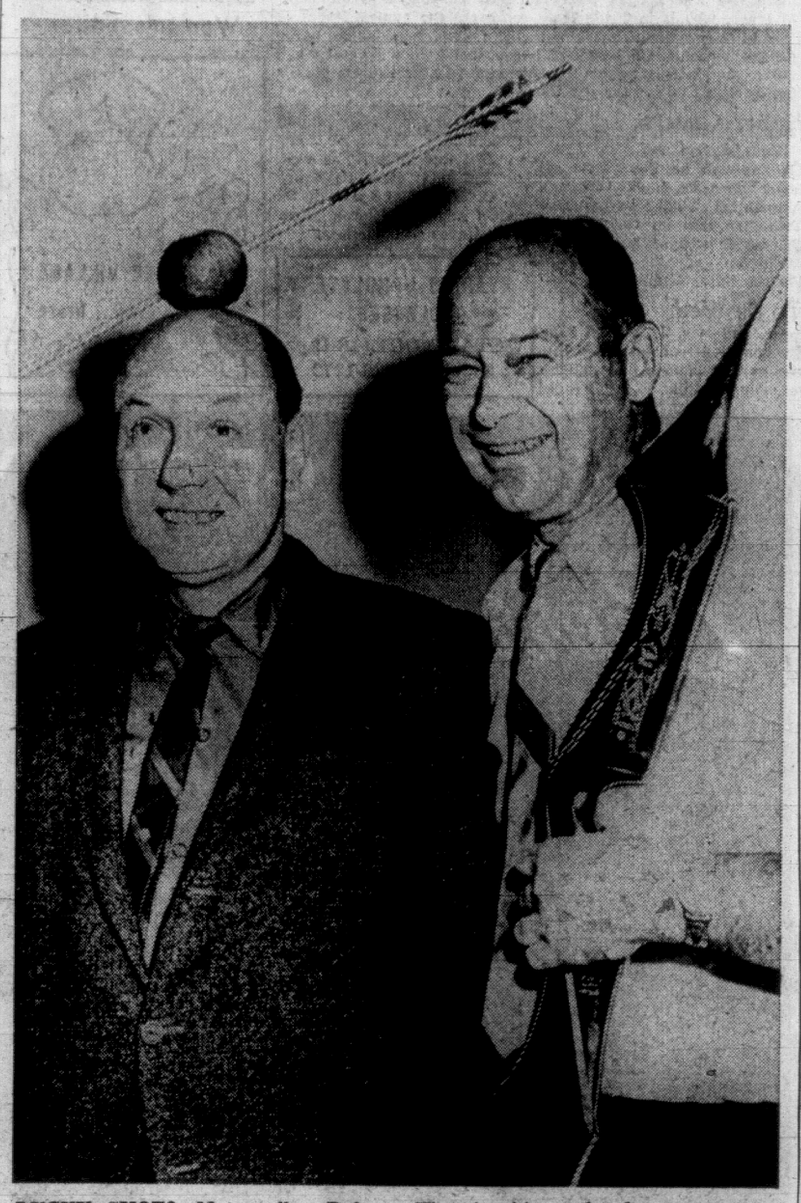

This ironware had been tossed about in rage or play, presumably by 'Mr. Bigfoot' with his 52-inch stride, and two lesser creatures of his breed that could be mate and child.

Explain it? In this matter, I maintain a state of suspended disbelief. But I think a serious, determined and sustained attempt should be made to come at the truth. Further, if an expedition is ever launched (the only one to date was a quicky California venture financed by two Texas oilmen in 1959) I hope Sasquatch-hunter Rene Dahinden will be included the party.

According to him, this hoax, myth or astounding fact has so far cost him his wife, two sons, and something over $10,000.

He lights another cigar, and produces a final statement. This one is attributed to a Boris Porshnev, in 1958 director of modern history at the USSR Academy of Sciences, and deals with the apemen reputed to haunt the Pamir Mountains:

"It is not a question of belief — we know there are such creatures!"

LUCKY SHOT? Not really. Dale Marcy (right) of Portland, Ore., one of North America's top archers, could have hit a worm in that apple in the eye if he wanted. Fred Usher, president of Victoria Bowmen, is smiling because he knows it. Mr. Marcy is in Victoria this weekend to present a film lecture on bow hunting in Africa tonight and a clinic for local bowmen Sunday. His bow is the latest in the field, $175 worth of precision-engineered wood and glass. (Irving Strickland Photo)

If You're Seeking Fun Just Follow the Arrows

By DON VIPOND

Labour Day three years ago was a special day with an appropriate title for Dale Marcy.

For eight hours that day he crawled through the gullies of the Little Delta River in Alaska stalking a giant cariboo.

I was worth it. After a two-mile game of hide-and-seek he bagged what was then a world's record animal, a moment of triumph for any hunter.

For Dale it was even more because he hunts with a bow. One of the top archers in North America, he bagged the cariboo with a shot covering just 17 yards.

The 44-year-old, from Portland, Ore., is in Victoria to present a free film lecture tonight at the Dockyard Recreation Hall.

CLINIC SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon he will conduct a private clinic for the local archers who are members of the Victoria Bowmen.

It was 22 years ago when Dale was a Nevada State trooper that he was assigned the job policing a hunging area restricted to bowmen.

They asked him to join and "I had so much fun I've been at it ever since."

Both a hunting and a target archer, Dale has bagged deer — three different species — moose, cariboo, bear, mountain goat, cougar and a host of small game.

His score includes birds too. He has taken pheasants, ducks and geese on the wing.

BLEND OF SKILLS

Bow hunting is a blend of skills, he explains. First the stalk and then the question of accuracy.

"I like to get inside 30 yards or even 20 before shooting."

Archery isn't for the pot hunters. On average a bowman gets a deer for every six years he hunts.

"Those are full-time professional deer and you're a part-time amateur hunter. That's why it's a real sport. If you're going out for meat, you better buy it."

Marcy can hit a dime flipped in the air when demonstrating trick shooting. It's not just a gift. It comes from three hours a day at practice.

BOW CHANGED

The days of Robin Hood and the yew long bow are long gone.

Today's bows are a composite of wood and glass, recurved at the ends for added power. Arrows can be glass, wood or aluminum.

Dale's film tonight deals with bow hunting in Africa. It starts at 8 p.m. at the Dockyard Recreation Hall, on Admirals Road opposite Naden.

The public is welcome but those interested are asked to call Fred Usher, president of the Victoria Bowmen, at 384-4289, and let him know they are coming so he can plan accommodation.

MERGER POSTPONING ELECTIONS?

If Sidney and North Saanich vote in favor of amalgamation on Nov. 7, there probably won't be any December election for the two municipalities.

An official of the department of municipal affairs said today the elections could be postponed until mid-March when the letters patent are made out for the new municipality.

The two councils asked the department for a ruling on the matter, with a view to requesting a postponement of elections if amalgamation is supported.

In March ratepayers would elect members to one council.

Walkout Ended At BCFP

One walkout is over in Victoria but another remains unsettled.

Employees of B.C. Forest Products plywood mill decided Friday afternoon to return to work Tuesday after hearing from officials of the International Woodworkers of America who met management earlier.

The 400 men stopped work Wednesday protesting working conditions.

Still unsettled is a three-day strike at Van Isle Moulding and Millwork in Saanich. Company and IWA officials met Friday and employees were meeting this morning.

MUST BE THE SALT AIR

Late Boozers More Decorous In Victoria Than Vancouver

How would you like a job where you have to tell drunken clients, some of them rowdy, they can't buy what they want most — more booze?

This is the dicey task of the liquor store clerk.

The law prohibits him selling anything to people who he believes to be intoxicated.

It's a decision he has to make and a tough one too because drunks, or near drunks, show all the behavior patterns other people do.

Liquor store managers in Greater Victoria report the problem is not so serious.

But nine out of 10 after-midnight patrons of Vancouver's late closing liquor stores are drunk, a Liquor Control Board delegate told the B.C. Government Employees' Association convention in Penticton Friday.

"And the other 10 per cent are bootleggers or taxi drivers calling for people who can't make it," said James Dunn, an employee in a late-closing store in the heart of Vancouver's skid-road district.

His is one of three Vancouver liquor stores open to 2 a.m. five nights a week.

"Often it's a matter of judging degree of impairment — these guys are all drunk," Mr. Dunn said in commenting how store employees decide whether or not to sell liquor to customers.

"The majority of these customers after midnight are difficult to handle and are to some degree impaired."

He was speaking during debate on a resolution urging the government to set midnight as closing time at all liquor stores.

The convention's resolution noted that after midnight service "puts great strain and responsibility on employees as they must make quick decisions" on matters involving impairment.

Locally most liquor stores close at 6 p.m. with some 9 and 11 p.m. closings.

But trouble with customers? Very little, report district store managers today.

In relation to the thousands served, it's negligible.

"Let's face it, we have a little different clientele," said one manager.

"Now and again," said another, "we have to tell someone to go and take a walk around the block and come back next week."

MARIJUANA CHARGES

Two youths today were charged with possession of marijuana.

Brian Hobbs, 20, of 530 Craigflower, and Garry Nieman, 19, of 131 Sims, were arrested by RCMP officers Friday night in separate incidents.

They were remanded to Tuesday for plea in magistrate's court.

Hobbs, represented by lawyer Alan Bigelow, was released on his own recognizance. Bail was set at $1,000 for Nieman.

Yvan de Montigny, 26, of Abbotsford, was sentenced to one year for obtaining goods by false pretenses.

Court was told de Montigny purchased a $31.95 coat from Tip Top Tailors, 1412 Douglas St., with a worthless cheque Sept. 30.

He asked the court for help, saying "I'm not really a bad guy, there's just something wrong. I need help to find what it is."

Francis Grills, 17, of 508 Ellis was charged with robery with violence. The charge arose out of a purse-snatching incident Sept. 30.

The case, which was transfered from juvenile court, was remanded to Tuesday.

AA Meeting Here Today

More than 200 delegates from Vancouver, New Westminster, Seattle and Victoria are attending a weekend conference of Alcoholics Anonymous which opened today at the Ingraham Hotel.

There will be a public meeting in the hotel from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday at which ex-alcoholics will tell of their experiences.

Fun Centre Bid Call Next Year

Saanich hopes to call tenders for a $100,000 senior citizens' centre early next year, Coun. Edith Gunning said today.

She is chairman of a special projects committee handling details of the centre, which will be built in Hampton Park. It is part of the $1.25 million recreation program.

Plans should be complete this year, she said.

Earlier this week, architect John Di Castri said a centre as planned with auditorium, lounge, reading room, activity rooms and service areas would cost between $245,430 and $284,130 depending on plan and construction.

Coun. Gunning said the high figures were not "surprising" because the committee started from the ideal and will cut down.

ELASTIC PLAN

The architect had plans under way to cut the project approximately in half and will bring in two separate plans — one to see if an auditorium can be excluded but other items left in and the second include an auditorium but adapt it for other uses.

The referendum approved by ratepayers earlier this year specified $100,000 for this project.

The first stage of the recreation program, the Tillicum Arena near the drive-in theatre, is expected to go to tender by the end of December and, if construction starts early in the new year, should be ready for use this time next year.

The estimated cost of the arena has exceeded the allocation by $54,000. The bylaw set $420,000 but the estimate is $474,000.

Last two stages of the program are a $470,000 swimming pool and community centre at Gordon Head and a $260,000 community centre on the McRae Estate — which Saanich has expropriated but not yet purchased.

Firemen's Flame

Miss Fire Prevention, Darlene Andruff, 20, a dockyard typist, is naval firemen's choice of girl they'd most like to slide down poles with. She's publicizing Fire Prevention Week which ends Oct. 14. Almost 600 Canadians were burned to death in 1966. All district fire departments are devoting week to promotion of fire prevention.

FALLING SHORT OF TARGET

'Embarrassing Response' Seen To Burns Unit Fund Campaign

The fund drive for a special hospital unit to treat severe burns is falling well short of its target.

Almost $80,000 is needed before federal and provincial money is available, but the campaign which began earlier this year has raised only a fraction over a quarter of this sum.

The Victoria Labour Council endorsed the burns unit at St. Joseph's Hospital as its Centennial project last year and local contractors also expressed interest.

But local unions have given less than $1,000 since they were asked to contribute last March.

"It's an embarrassing response," admitted labor council secretary Larry Ryan.

BINGO PLANNED

"But our program is not complete. The program is continuing and every opportunity we get we are stressing the need to back this project. A big bingo is planned in November."

The city of Victoria is the major contributor, agreeing earlier to give a total of $20,000 — $5,000 this year, $5,000 next year and $10,000 in 1969.

A spokesman for local general contractors said nothing has been contributed to date but the project will be "reactivated in a couple of weeks and we will be working with the unions."

Another general contractor said he hasn't been approached for money but intended to donate.

A spokesman for St. Joseph's Hospital said a meeting is planned for Oct. 18 with the Victoria Labour Council He said "contributions have been coming in slowly" but didn't say how much has arrived.

TO HONOR TOONE

The burns unit is to be named after the late A. W. Toone, former secretary-treasureer of the Victoria Labour Council and mayor of Victoria.

The five-bed unit would provide treatment not available here for severe burns. Elaborate ventilation and other equipment would keep it germ-free.

The first proposal, for a unit within the hospital, would have cost $90,000 with $40,000 needed in local contributions.

This was changed later to an extension of the hospital with the cost increasing to $156,000 with $79,000 needed locally.

Last July plans were changed again, to house the unit within an extended emergency area. The costs remained the same as the second proposal.

The labor council has made it clear in the past that it never intended to raise all the local amount, simply as much as it could.

WATER SHORTAGE PLAGUES SCHOOL

Durrance School on West Saanich Road has 97 pupils and a water shortage.

The school is served by a well which has never produced sufficient water. On one occasion there was no water and the children were sent home.

The well was dug four years ago to a depth of 100 feet. But there is no water, so the drilling went down 235 feet—about the height of a 21-storey building.

So far it has cost School District 63 about $15,000 for drilling and installing pumps and storage tanks. But it's a shaky system yet.

When the school opened last month a hose was left on and the storage tank was emptied. Teachers are constantly required to see that pupils don't waste water.

The problem is so acute the board has delayed a necessary school expansion until more water is available.

School board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay says board officials are spending sleepless nights pondering other water sources. All she could report is that the board is investigating.

Ask The Times

Q. How did the Victoria lacrosse team get the name Shamrocks and in what year? D.J.S.

A. The name was chosen at a meeting attended by team members in 1950. According to Det.-Insp. Bill Andrews, the team's first goal tender, "we just thought it would be a good name."

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Willow Fork May Be Scientific Instrument

By PETE LOUDON

How does a school board find an underground supply of water in the atomic age?

It calls in a water diviner.

That's what happened in School District 63 (rural Saanich) when the decision was made to build Durrance School, according to board chairman Mrs. N. G. Lindsay.

●

She said two diviners, a geologist and an engineer, were consulted four years ago before the school's inadequate well was dug.

And the city of Victoria this week hired a diviner to find a well in Beacon Hill Park.

Does this mean tax monies are being paid out for witchcraft — and with the provincial government approving it?

●

Not in the opinion of some technical experts. They say water divining, despite its name, appears to be a scientific procedure.

Until some university makes water divining a subject of extensive research, they don't associate themselves with it professionally however . . . nor can they explain it.

Almost every rural area has its water witches, water dowsers or diviners. The name changes with the locale. They have various methods for finding hidden water.

●

One of the most commonly seen is the chopped off fork of a willow. With the bark peeled away and the fork held with the branches toward the body, one branch in each hand, they walk back and forth across the land parcel.

They swear that when they cross the proper spot to dig a well, the tip of the willow wand tugs downward.

●

And laugh as you may, it works in a surprising number of cases.

There's an anonymous engineer in the provincial service who uses a willow wand to locate underground water pipes and mains. He's never missed yet.

His theory is that static electricity is involved. Some people carry different charges than others. Some people can witch a well and others can't.

He says it's a purely physical thing unrelated to witchcraft and one day science will explain it and put the strange reaction to use.

●

Geologists often use strange instruments and arrive at their decisions after studies of terrain and ground strata. But the willow wand results are just as certain.

Vice-chairman of the Saanich school board J. M. Kinnaird goes along with this. He recalls his father using two diviners, one after another, to find a well.

●

The second arrived at the exact point where the first had recommended the digging begin.

After all, if 50 years ago, someone had said you would soon be able to see what's going on in New York by looking into a box in your front room, you'd have considered him to be daft too.

Analyst's Comments — Monday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — They're putting Frazier on Royal Chic and off his last he may get the job done. My Madronna, dropping 11 pounds, Sherri's Star and Abine loom dangerously in this company. Rosalito showed fair speed and from the pole has to be considered. Mercilynn has met better and Ellabhai drops down. The eligibles are full of possibilities: Salemtown goes well for the boy. Cherie Q is better than her last shows and Seven L was closing stoutly. In a scramble . . . ROYAL CHIC, Seven L, Sherri's Star.

SECOND RACE—Heather W and Fleet Brother should be in the van of these early. The former stopped as if she had been hit in the head with a 2-by-4. The latter, who may be underrated, came on again and may go better here. The rest like to come out of it, and since there isn't that much between them, it may be a matter of luck and riding skill. Shadows Sake may be the most reliable. Picalad went well for the boy. Satin's Kin shoved slop at easier but went about the job in crisp style under a clever ride . . . SATIN'S KIN, Shadows Sake, Fleet Brother.

THIRD RACE—The boy has not had much success here but Boyaggio could be the one they will have to catch. He chased a swift one in Swan Lady and may draw clear with these. Star Pal hung tough to the stretch and is dangerous. Double Event switches to Phillips and is better than the last shows. Dark Bug tried it Saturday, loves the goo, but is hard to assess. All Smoke should save ground from the pole. If Andrews can tuck in behind the pace he may be able to grind them down late . . . ALL SMOKE, Boyaggio, Double Even.t

FOURTH RACE — Few crank out faster fractions in this society than Cranky Maggie. She drops five and will throw slop in their faces for a ways. Sun Lodge, Eastern Jewel and Social Club also like to ramble near the lead. Eastern Jewel has a class edge and a better post here and may be the staunchest. Dark Doll who went Saturday and Sienna Fire are the dangers late and benefit from a pace duel . . . EASTERN JEWEL, Dark Doll, Cranky Magie.

FIFTH RACE—Bring out the tea leaves and the crystal ball — you need them here. Pils Friday likes this distance better than the marathon and can run on anything. Wild Bruce found the marathon too much and could be a different horse in here. Punters Joy is remarkably consistent and is game in the stretch. Dainty Duchess obviously favors the soft stuff as does Jakes Special who ran well for the boy. Sir Silver Scot is by no means out of it. But in the consistency department few can top Milford of Kent. He's not in easy but at the weights may be the one to fear . . . MILFORD OF KENT, Wild Bruce, Punters Joy.

SIXTH RACE — Bouncy Belle and Christopher B like to chase the rabbit and will probably be out winging. The former has been packing it up—with fast company—at shorter but has won at the distance and the rider helps. Christopher chased the best on the grounds but may feel the package. Enchalade hasn't been showing too well but always against the big boys. Polizonte couldn't cope with much the same but he has a shot if they decide to take him off the pace and take one run. Silver Wave has a look. The one we fear is War Top. He turned back slightly easier in sizzling time and may loom large in the stretch . . . WAR TOP, Polizonte, Bouncy Belle.

SEVENTH RACE — This is True picks up two pounds but we've always believed he was more at home sprinting than at a distance. He has a Churchillian bulldog approach and the pole may give him the edge. Princess Vega may miss Harris —few get them out of the gate more quickly — but Shields is hardly a liability and she loves the mud. Kenos Boy moves up and is crying for a win but the top two don't stop to pick the daisies. One final note: Gladys Ann has been freshened up, is in good hands and is an interesting possibility at a price . . . THIS IS TRUE, Princess Vega, Gladys Ann.

EIGHTH RACE—Who's Hydn moves inside and may not look back. Malheur Kitten, Primali and Cocoa Silk are likely to be in the second flight. Malheur Kitten switches to Sam who gets a lot of mileage out of horses. If Ron Arnold can get good position with G Day the others may be in trouble late . . . WHO'S HAYDN, G Day, Malheur Kitten.

Cards Take Series Lead

(AP Wirephoto)

BIG 'YAZ', Boston Red Sox leftfielder Carl Yastrzemski, holds his leg as he rolls on the ground at home plate after he was struck by a pitch tossed by St. Louis Cardinals hurler Nelson Briles in the first inning today of the third World Series game. Cardinals won the game 5-2 to take a 2-1 lead in the series.

5-2 Win Over Boston

By JACK HAND

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Nelson Briles, promoted from bullpen to starter after Bob Gibson's leg was broken in July, pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-2 victory over Boston in today's third World Series game with the help of Mike Shannon's two-run homer.

Opening up a 2-1 lead in games in their first home start before a St. Louis record crowd of 54,575 at Busch Stadium, the Cards jumped away to an early lead off loser Gary Bell and never were headed.

Briles, a 24-year-old Santa Clara product in his fourth year as a pro, backed up his 14-5 regular season record with a seven hitter.

Three times Carl Yaztrzemski, the Red Sox's fearsome slugger, came up with men on base, three times Briles disposed of the threat by making Yaz bounce into a double play in the fourth and ground out harmlessly to second in the sixth and eighth.

Briles finished up the season with nine straight wins after taking Gibson's spot in the starting rotation after the July 15 accident. The handsome dark-haired youngster coddled the early lead and pitched his way out of minor threats in six of the last seven innings.

SIX SINGLES

Six of the seven Red Sox hits were singles and the only extra baser was Reggie's Smith's 360-foot home run leading off the seventh.

Lou Brock's opening triple and Curt Flood's single gave the Cards their first run off the 30-year-old Bell in the first inning.

Tim McCarver, hitless in the first two games, started the second inning with a single and rode home free on Shannon's 360-foot home run blast into the left field stands.

After the Red Sox broke through for their first run in the sixth on Mike Andrews' pinch single, Jose Tartabull's sacrifice and Daltor Jones' single, the Cards came right back in their half o the inning.

Brock, the Cards' speedy bullet, beat out a perfectly placed bunt for his second base hit and sixth of the Series. When Lee Stange, third Red Sox pitcher, threw widly past first base on his third attempt to pick off Brock, Lou went all the way to third base. Roger Maris singled to right on a 3-2 pitch, driving in Brock.

GAP NARROWED

Smith's homer narrowed the gap to 4-2 in the seventh but St. Louis struck again in the eighth against Dan Osinski, fourth and last Boston pitcher.

Maris beat out a single on a checked swing as the ball rolled between first and second. Orlando Cepeda, hitless in his first 10 Series a bats after a fine regular season, broke out of his slump with a double off the wall in right centre, scoring Maris

The victory tipped the scales heavily in favor the Cardinals, who went into this third game as 2-1 favorites to win it all. They play the next two at home Sunday and Monday and could wrap it up without returning to Boston.

Bob Gibson, who struck out 10 Red Sox while winning Wednesday's opener 2-1, was scheduled to work for St. Louis Sunday against Jose Santiago, the Puerto Rican who lost to him at Fenway Park.

Manager Red Schoendienst of the Cards was able to assure Gibson of three starts if the Series goes seven games and each with the required three days of rest.

There was the first mild rhubarb of the Series in the first inning when Briles' pitch hit Yastrzemski. Manager Dick Williams of the Red Sox came out to argue, claiming that

Record Rains Slosh Tofino

A record 5.29 inches of rain fell on Tofino in the 24 hours ending at 4 this morning.

The rain swelled the Kennedy River and left a foot of water on parts of the Tofino-Alberni Highway.

Besides being wet, some residents were also cold.

Tofino, Ucluelet and Long Beach residents ate cold suppers Friday night during a power blackout. Blasting operation knocked out a transformer near Taylor River Bridge where road widening work is being done.

POWER OFF

Power was off for five hours.

The rain was still falling at press time but the road was once more passable, according to reports from the west coast centre.

Today's rain brought the Tofino total for October up to 8.5 inches. There has only been one day without rain. Previous record for 24 hours in Tofino was 4.40 inches in 1961.

Victoria has had its share with a full two inches this month or five times the normal for the period.

In Tofino its "very wet but we're having no real problems," said Barry Dean of the Maquinna Hotel.

ROAD CLOSED

He said the road had been closed but the conditions had improved and the mail truck got through.

Mr. Dean said a number of visitors are expected today but he didn't know if they would arrive.

"If enough people want to come a ferry will make the run to Ucluelet and visitors can take to paved road from there to Tofino."

Meanwhile, high winds were causing trouble at Patricia Bay airport.

Air Canada cancelled two flights in to Patricia Bay because planes could not land. Consequently two flights out were abandoned.

An airport spokesman said surface winds weren't particularly strong but at the 2,000-foot level 35-40 mile winds made it difficult for planes to line up with the runway for landing.

SOME CLEARING

The weather at the airport was clearing a little by noon and many passengers were in the waiting rooms hoping flights would be available. Meanwhile, some were taken by bus to the ferries to travel to Vancouver and Seattle.

But even if flying conditions were improving the weather office held out little hope for a general improvement.

"It will be a wet weekend," said meteorologist Allan McQuarrie.

"There is a low pressure system of moist air with pockets of disturbances which will bring surges of rain. I see no sign of a change for Monday."

He said winds were from the southeast at 10 to 15 miles an hour in the city with speeds of 25 to 40 in the open water. Gale warnings are in effect.

UMPIRES GET RAISE

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert announced today that the World Series pay for each of the six umpires has been increased from $4,000 to $5,000.

The six-man crew is composed of John Stevens, Frank Umont and Ed Runge of the American League and Al Barlick, Augie Donatelli and Paul Pryor of the National League.

STRIKE TALKS

QUEBEC (CP)—Talks were held today in an attempt to end the 17-day Montreal transit strike.

Attending the meeting were Acting Premier Paul Dozois, Labor Minister Maurice Bellemare, Lucien Saulnier, chairman of Montreal's executive council, and Maurice Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions which represents the five unions involved in the strike.

Fraud Term

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Morin, 52, an accountant specializing in income tax consultancy, was found guilty on 11 charges of fraud, after which he pleaded guilty to 63 more. He was sentenced to one year in jail and fined $3,700. The charges arose from tax returns prepared by Morin for various individuals in which he fraudulently made claims for non-existant dependants or greatly increased the number of dependants.

BERLIN (AP) — Mark Spitz, 17, of Santa Clara, Calif., smashed the world's record for the 100-metre butterly tonight, churning the distance in 55.68 seconds in a swimming meet between West Germany and the United States.

Young Suspect

TORONTO (CP) — Police said today a 13-year-old girl, one of four persons arrested Friday on narcotics charges, is the youngest narcotic suspect in Metropolitan Toronto and possibly in Canada.

QUEBEC POLL:

'Last Chance For Ottawa'

QUEBEC (CP)—Le Soleil, summarizing results of a survey conducted among members of the legislative assembly, says supporters of the Union Nationale party of Premier Daniel Johnson intend to give Ottawa "one last chance" to grant "equality" to Quebec within two or five years before opting for independence.

In a copyright story, the Quebec daily says the survey showed that the majority of Opposition Liberal members favor a "special status" for Quebec and reject independence for economic reasons.

The survey was conducted jointly by Le Soleil and the Toronto Star. Questionnaires were sent to 39 members of the Union Nationale party, 42 Liberals and two of the three independents in the assembly.

The standing in the assembly: Union Nationale 56, Liberals 49, Independents 3, total 108.

SENT TO JOHNSON

Le Soleil says the questionnaire, drafted as debate on possible constitutional changes continued in the province and the country, was sent to Premier Johnson, now recuperating in Hawaii from a bout of phlebitis. The story does not say whether he replied. Identity of those replying was not given.

Replies were received from all 42 Liberal who were sent the questionnaire. Only 34 of the 39 Union Nationale members questioned sent answers.

The Union Nationale members backed their leader's theme of "equality or independence." All insisted on the importance of immediate negotiations with Ottawa.

But they differed on just what equality means. A total of 82.3 per cent considered equality meant a special status for the province. The remainder felt it meant economic independence.

WANT TAX POWER

However, they were agreed on these major objectives:

1. Recovery by the province of all taxation powers;

2. Exclusive provincial jurisdiction on education, culture, manpower, social security and immigration;

3. Participation with Ottawa in the drafting of economic and fiscal policies;

4. The right to conclude international agreements;

5. Equal school rights for French minorities in other provinces.

A total of 88.1 per cent favored a special status for Quebec and 95.2 per cent rejected the idea of independenee for the province.

$215.10 Payoff For One-to In First Race

The largest one-to payoff this year—$215.10—was paid in the opening race at Sandown this afternoon when longshot Avons Brownie crossed the wire ahead of Whip'n Blinkers.

Third was favored Souzem, who was away slow from the gate and made a strong bid in the final quarter to catch the leaders.

Avons Brownie paid $52, $17.90 and $5.60; Whip'n Blinkers paid $8.50 and $4, and Souzem, $2.80.

Time for the six and a half furlongs was 1:24.3.

Rebel Plane Downed After Lagos Attack

LAGOS (CP) — A plane from successionist Biafra was shot down by anti-aircraft fire today after it bombed a residential district of this federal capital that contained several foreign embassy buildings.

The plane's eight crew members—four Africans and four whites—were killed when the plane exploded 30 feet above the Ikoyi residential district.

The bodies of the crew were found hundreds of yards from the plane. One smashed through a roof of the Czechoslovakian embassy; another in the Czech embassy's garden and the third behind the embassy's servants' quarters.

People Ordered Away From Canal

SUEZ, Egypt (AP)—The Suez Canal cease-fire line separating Egyptian and Israeli forces appears to be hardening day by day into a fortified international border.

Thousands of Egyptian civilians daily are streaming westward away from the canal. Egypt plans to evacuate up to 250,000 persons and all factories from the frontline area vulnerable to Israeli guns.

The evacuation order, coming four months after the United Nations-sponsored ceasefire that ended the June 5-10 war, proves the Arabs do not expect a quick settlement, informed sources say.

The evacuation also diminishes hopes of reopening the Suez Canal, closed to shipping since early June.

The 103-mile canal linking the Mediterranean with the Red Sea, is still considered an important international trade route. But many shippers, forced by the long closing, have found substitute routes.

Oil companies that depended on the canal are planning supertankers that carry huge cargoes around the Cape of Good Hope at less cost than smaller vessels able to fit through the waterway.

Egyptian Vice-Premier Aly Sabry described the evacuation a "a forced migration of all citizens whose stay is not essential and shifting of all industries from the zone of other governments."

Briles had been throwing at his ace slugger.

Plate umpire Frank Umont of the American League listened to Williams and then called Schoendienst from the Cardinal dugout. Umont told the managers he could handle the situation.

Briles said he pitched his normal game, trying to keep the ball away from the hitters. He said the pitch Smith hit over the right field wall was right down the middle.

The game, threatened by drizzle and fog all morning, was played in warm sunshine. However, neither club took batting or fielding practice as the field remained covered until about an hour before the game. On the orders of Commissioner William Eckert, the lights were turned on at the start of the game.

Asked how he pitched to Yaz, Briles said "I watched how he swung against the others, and I tried to work on him. I got him twice on fast balls and once on a breaking ball."

Schoendienst, beaming in victory, said he would pitch Steve Carlton, a long, lean lefty, in Monday's fifth game against Jim Lonborg, who won a one-hitter Thursday.

Rock Kills Michigan Truck Driver

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A truck driver in Michigan was killed today by a rock that smashed through his windshield from an overpass.

Five other trucks were hit by rocks or gunfire in Ohio and Pennsylvania as the tempo of violence picked up despite attempts to find a solution to the steel haulers strike.

The Michigan man was killed on U.S. 23 just south of Flint.

Canadians See Filipino Healer Under Guard

MANILA (AP)—A large group of ailing and infirm Americans and Canadians had its rendezvous with a Filipino faith healer in a well guarded beach resort in northern Luzo today, it was reported.

The Philippine Medical Association reported the meeting as it watched the activities of Antonio Agpaoa, a grade-school dropout and self-made "doctor".

The 28-year-old healer was convicted of illegal medical practice either years ago.

Dr. Pacifico Marcos, PMA president, said the group—which included 108 from the Detroit, Mich., area and two Canadian invalids—met Agpaoa at a beach resort in La Union, on the western coast.

"My men reported they were driven away by burly men guarding the cottages occupied by Agpaoa and his patients," Marcos said. He said two of those assisting the faith-healer were identified as an American man and woman.

Marcos said nothing could be done to prevent anyone from seeking a cure from Agpaoa but that the local board of medical examiners could obtain a court injunction to stop him from administering treatment because of his previous conviction.

He said the 110 patients, who flew from Windsor, Ont., to Manila Thursday night accompanied by six relatives and friends, were reported paying Agpaoa $500 each.

"We strongly suspect that they were conned by their own countrymen," Marcos said.

Calling Agpaoa "an imposter with a gimmick," the Manila Times says his "so-called scarless operations have been exposed here and abroad as a parlor magician's trick effected with chicken entrails and expert 'palming.'"

The Philippines Herald says: "If what he is doing is something punishable under our laws, something similar to the one that led to his conviction in court, then there is no reason on earth why this should not be done fast.

"Not only is it embarrassing to the government authorities involved but also to the medical profession in this country. And this is not to add the horrific, if not ridiculous, image that the Philippines is gaining elsewhere in the world as a land where the hocus-pocus quackeries reminiscent of the dark ages are still being performed."

Names of the patients were not available.

Troubled Chelsea XI Hammered by Leeds

LONDON (CP) — Chelsea, playing its first game since manager Tommy Docherty resigned, crashed 0-7 to Leeds United in English League soccer today.

The humiliating defeat came 24 hours after Docherty, suspended by the English Football Association for misconduct, gave up his job.

(See also story on Page 12.)

Docherty was in West Germany today as his former team slumped to disaster. Speculation was he might be seeking a job with a West German team.

Meanwhile, Sheffield Wednesday, slamming Coventry City 4-0, regained the lead in the First Division standings with 16 points from 11 games. Liverpool, defeated 1-2 by Leicester, had 15 points and Manchester United and Tottenham Hotspur were in joint third place at 14.

TAKEN OFF FIELD

Two Scottish international—Deniz Law of Manchester United and Ian Ure of Arsenal—were ordered off the field in a stormy affair at Manchester's Old Trafford Stadium. It happened eight minutes from the end after a fist fight between the two players.

Manchester, cheered on by a crowd of 60,000, won 1-0 with a goal by John Aston.

Prince Ends City Visit

Crown Prince Harald of Norway left Victoria for Vancouver Friday after being entertained at lunch at the Union Club by Attorney-General Robert Bonner and the B.C. government.

Mr. Bonner was deputizing for Premier Bennett, who is touring Sweden.

The prince, who is heir to the throne of Norway, is spending the weekend cruising B.C. coastal waters aboard a private yacht owned by lumber executive H. R. MacMillan.

In Vancouver Friday night he was entertained at a dinner in the Bayshore Inn given by more than 400 members of the B.C. Sons of Norway.

He is due to fly back to Oslo Monday.

Beaten to Death

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — Police said today Gene Koh, 21, son of a contracting and quarrying magnate here was kidnapped today then beaten to death. His millionaire father had received a $250,000 ransom note.

Ambulances Sabotaged

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Explosions at five-second intervals Friday night wrecked three ambulances of the only firm providing such service in Texarkana. Police said no injuries were reported.

Investigators said there was a strong odor of dynamite afterward and they found ashes left by fuses to each vehicle.

Richard Birtcher, owner of the city licenced ambulance service, was sheriff of Miller County, on the Arkansas side of Texarkana, until his defeat in last year's election.

Birtcher said he could think of no reason for the dynamiting.

Two Escape Injury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Americans escaped without injury today when their light plane crashed in the Thompson River near Ashcroft, search and rescue headquarters reported. They were identified as Robert K. Brabrook and Merrill Eugene Loudon, both from Wenatchee.

Saw Saucer . . . Same Sank

SHELBURNE, N.S. (CP) — Seven navy divers were searching waters off nearby Shag Harbor today for a mysterious object.

Four divers covered the area about a half-mile off shore Friday and three divers from Halifax joined the hunt.

They were sent here Friday after local residents and RCMP reported Wednesday that they had observed an illuminated object splash into the water and float for a time before sinking.

RCMP Constable Ron O'Brien, summoned to the scene minutes after the initial sighting, said he saw a light floating or the water about a half-mile offshore.

"It was being carried out to sea by the tide and disappeared before we could get a boat to it."

Fishermen reported sighting a wide patch of yellow foam in the area immediately after the object splashed down but it had disappeared when divers arrived.

Naval spokesman in Halifax said defence department officials had ruled out the possibility that the object fell from an aircraft or came from a passing ship. No aircraft were reported in the vicinity at the time of the sighting.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for a special RCAF department on unidentified flying objects said Friday his department was following the search with interest.

"We get hundreds of reports every week," he said, "but the Shag Harbor incident is one of the few where we may get something concrete on it."

At least a dozen people reported seeing the object glide into the water and an RCMP spokesman said "the list is growing."

Korean Bid 'Suspicious'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Pressure at the United Nations to pull U.S. troops out of Korea and scuttle a commission set up to reunify the country has aroused Western suspicion that the diplomatic moves may be linked to mounting Communist border attacks.

The General Assembly's steering committee agreed at the outset of the session to discuss a proposal by the Soviet Union and several other Communist nations for the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korean soil.

Over-riding Western opposition, the steering committee voted Thursday to have the 122-nation assembly also debate a call by Cambodia, Congo (Brazzaville) and Yemen to dissolve the UN Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea.

U.S. Ambassador William Buffum challenged the inclusion of an item that had already been debated and defeated the previous year and noted that the Russian Korean item was already on the docket anyway.

Australian Ambassador Patrick Shaw asserted that a proposal to pull out the UN presence "starts to have a somewhat ominous ring about it" in view of the rash of attacks from the North over the past 12 months.

COMMISSION 'FAILED'

The Soviet Union gave strong support to the Cambodian proposal charging that no progress had been made in the last 20 years in reunifying Korea. It added that "the commission has failed to prevent the establishment of a strong American military presence in Korea."

The North Korean Communist party organ Minjoo Chosun was reported in Seoul, South Korea, today to have charged the U.S. with using the UN "as a tool of aggression in Korea."

The peace that generally prevailed after the armistice along the 151-mile line dividing North and South Korea was shattered late last year when armed bands of North Koreans began ambushing UN patrols. In one 18-day period, the forays resulted in the deaths of six Americans and 25 South Koreans.

TROOPS CLASH

The attacks were stepped up in 1967. Last April, some 60 North Koreans and 40 troops from the South clashed. For the first time since the 1953 armistice, South Korean forces had to use artillery to drive back the Communists.

The Northerners have also been infiltrating subversives and saboteurs into South Korea, the Seoul government claims.

So far this year, 14 American soldiers have been killed and 61 have been wounded in incidents involving North Korean troops.

The sharp step-up in Red attacks is believed by Western officials to be intended to raise public doubts in Seoul about the commitment of 50,000 South Korean troops to Vietnam and to distract U.S. attention from the Vietnamese war.

Clash Kills 73 Cong

SAIGON (CP) — Waterborne American infantrymen killed 73 Viet Cong guerrillas in a gruelling battle through the rain-swollen streams and swamps of the Mekong Delta, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The spokesman said nine Americans were killed and 23 wounded in the 8½-hour clash Friday — one of the heaviest in the densely-populated delta region since the monsoon began there in July.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Continuous rain on the south coast brought a new October record total for Tofino for a 24-hour period. This station on the west coast measured 5.29 inches. The previous record was 4.40 inches in 1961. A strong circulation will continue to bring in Pacific disturbances from the southwest. Rain and gales are expected on the south coast today and Sunday. There should be some slight improvement between disturbances but the general picture is a cloudy, soggy weekend for southwestern B.C. Cloud and occasional rain will be the weather in other regions.
